$60,000 Apartment Fire Under Probe

An investigation was conducted late yesterday into the cause of a fire that destroyed an apartment building under construction at 631 S. York Road in Bensenville. Results were not available at press time.

The Bensenville police and fire departments and the Illinois state fire marshal conducted the investigation of the fire that caused an estimated $60,000 damage.

Bensenville Fire Chief Martin Heinrich said the blaze orginated at the back entrance of the building, but could give no definite indication as to the cause.

THE OWNERS of the building, John Kamenko of Elmhurst and Alex King of Addison, had no idea how the blaze could have started. King reported, however, the contractors had been using heating units in the building, but he didn't know if there were any burning that night.

Heinrich reported there were heating units in the center of the basement and the gas was turned on. He determined this by the way the fire was burning. The fire chief reported that to the best of his knowledge there were no heaters near the rear door.

Gary Nischke of Des Plaines reported the fire to Bensenville police at 12 10 a.m. Wednesday.

"It was going pretty good when we got there," Heinrich said. "In a matter of minutes the building was caving in." Heinrich said the fire department arrived at the scene about 12·30 a.m.

MRS. HANNA Erickson, of 4N411 York Road, Bensenville, the first house north of the fire scene, reported she did not notice the fire next door until she smelled smoke in their own house. Mrs. Erickson's house and garage were scorched by the intense heat of the fire

Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Piepinbrink, of 4N373 York Road, Bensenville, the first house south of the fire scene, reported they heard nothing or saw nothing until the fire phone rang in their house. Piepinbrink is a Bensenville fireman.

Two witnesses near the scene, Mrs. Elenor Franz, of 454 S. Center St. and Mrs. Marga Margrette Eriksen, of 445 S. Center St., both in Bensenville, reported hearing an explosion just prior to hearing the fire trucks drive by on York Road.

HEINRICH SAID the building was probably nearing completion before the fire broke out.

"They were up to about where they would start closing in the partitions," Heinrich said

Brick was being delivered Wednesday morning to the fire scene, but Kamenko could not say what would be done.

The Bensenville Fire Department was aided on the scene by fire equipment from the Addison department while Wood Dale firemen stood by at the Bensenville station Civil defense units from Bensenville and Addison also helped out at the scene

Further investigation into the cause of the fire was continuing yesterday afternoon.

ONLY SMOLDERING RUBBLE remained late Wednesday morning after fire swept through an apartment building under construction in Bensenville. Bensenville Fire Chief Martin Heinrich estimated the damage to be about $60,000.

by KEN HARDWICKE

Stan Rossol burned grass in ashtrays and passed around the marijuana leaf to a room of adults. Shortly after, a box full of "maryjanes" (marijuana-rolled cigarettes) circulated among the group.

If this sounds like the Itasca police department is going to 'pot,' it is partly right

Rossol, Itasca police chief, was holding an informal "pot party" in the village hall Tuesday night but the sole purpose was to inform adults on the facts about the country's most-abused drug

It was an establishment "cop-out" as Rossol explained to village citizens that DuPage County police are out to stop illegal marijuana use, and to purchase a mobile narcotics unit and extensive cooperation among the municipalities.

THE DRUG TALK before concerned citizens and the Itasca Village Board was enhanced by a movie that documented the facts on marijuana without taking a pro or con opinion.

The movie, narrated by Sonny Bono of Sonny and Cher who have publicly condemned the use of drugs as the social panacea to problems, revealed some misconceptions — favorable and unfavorable — on marijuana.

Most of the audience were members of the establishment who dealt with bathtub gin during their days instead of today's classroom chemistry

While Rossol and county police are out to put the legal fix on drug pushers, they believe that it is the adult's fault for the recent misuse of drugs by the young

"We're copping out with our own kids," Rossol told parents. "We don't discuss marijuana with them."

THE CHIEF's contention is that parents are afraid to speak to their children about drugs, and consequently the youth are never properly informed of drug consequences.

Blasting the so-called educators who "opinionate" on the use of marijuana without substantial proof, Rossol asserted that law enforcement only deals with the facts.

"We in law enofrcement haven't been opinionating," Rossol stated. "We try to document the subject with proof."

Rossol added that Margaret Mead, noted anthropologist and other pseudo-intellectuals have a position of authority to influence the youth with their statements He also lambasted the press for taking out of context what she said

"I have yet to see these so-called educated people do something for our society," said Rossol.

Where there is fire there is smoke and not all the best kind, according to the police chief

"NOBODY CAN SAY for sure how marijuana will react on individuals," Rossol said. "There are only two ways an LSD user can wind up — suicide or the graveyard."

A doctor in the audience agreed with Rossol that LSD is almost untraceable in the human body and has been found to cause fetus deformities.

To combat public ignorance on marijuana and other illegal drugs, Rossol favors a strong program on drug education starting as low as the junior high school level.

A massive education program along with school rehabilitation programs is needed to effectively counteract the rising drug problem in the county.

"I don't believe throwing them in jail is the remedy," Rossol said. "And although Itasca has never had a registered case of drug abuse, we know that there are purchases being made around the area."

THE POLICE CHIEF will be speaking to the Itasca PTA on drug abuse April 28 in the Washington School. The public is invited to attend the informative drug meeting.

"If we could deter just one drug user, we'd feel better," said Rossol.

His future drug speaking engagements are aimed at that end.

Series Begins On Candidates

For candidates seeking DuPage county offices, the March 17 St. Patrick's Day primary election will be basically calm because most of the candidates are unopposed within their own party.

Only one of the four offices to be filled is an intra-party contest, with two Republicans seeking the nomination for county treasurer for the November election.

In order to keep our readers informed, the Register is presenting a series of profiles on the candidates. Starting today, with superintendent of schools and continuing next week, each issue will present interviews with the men seeking each office. Turn to page 5.

Science Fair Slated At St. Peter's School

St. Peter's Catholic School, Itasca, will hold its annual Science Fair Sunday from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. at the school hall.

Fourth through eighth graders will display their science projects under the direction of teachers Patrick O'Donnell and Thomas Logan.

Judges will be present to award outstanding science exhibits.

Need Paperboys For Bensenville

Ambitious boys who want to become young businessmen are urged to contact the Register office in Addison immediately

Paddock Publications is looking for boys to deliver the Register in the Bensenville area.

"We offer an opportunity for boys to get in on the ground floor of a new circulation system, earning excellent wages for delivering the modern Register and getting a crack at valuable prizes and special bonuses for their efforts to make this quality local newspaper available to additional subscribers," said Hank Swierenga, director of the new circulation program

"Compact routes designed for ease of service and good financial return to the newsboy are now being formed throughout the village of Bensenville. Hard-hitting, aggressive promotion, to already solid carrier routes, will help carrier boys add subscribers"

ADDITIONAL carrier boys are being sought to bring to 600 the number of boys delivering Paddock Publications newspapers throughout the western and northwestern suburbs, according to Swierenga.

Those interested in additional information call 543-2400 at once, he said, and become a newsboy right away.

Boys applying will be given details of the planned improvement in the Register's delivery system, and how they can benefit from participation.

Prizes, trips like to New Orleans and Disneyland and cash earnings are part of becoming a Register carrier, Swierenga said.

Toot, Toot... But It Ain't On The Track!

by VIRGINIA KUCMIERZ

Milwaukee Road's plan for the creation of a mass transit district along its suburban line from Chicago to Elgin almost got off on the wrong track Tuesday night as mayors and representatives of the communities along the rail line met n Bensenville to learn about the proposed project transit-plan.

Approximately 19 communities located directly on the railroad's west suburban line or adjacent to it were represented at the meeting held by Milwaukee Road officials and representatives of the line's commuter association.

REACTION TO THE mass transit plan, which would entitle the district to two-thirds federal funding for coaches and locomotives, was mixed, but the opposing voices led by Wilbert H. Nettke, Village Pres. Itasca and Mayor Richard Baker, Hanover Park, were strong.

Milwaukee Road officials will be meeting with the individual village boards to discuss the project in greater detail and "answer many of the problems and questions you posed tonight," according to Thomas H. Ploss, company attorney and chairman of the special task force created to expedite the program.

"Milwaukee Road just doesn't have the funds available for capital improvements to keep up with the growing communities along the Chicago-Elgin line," Curtiss E. Crippen, railroad president told the group.

HE EXPLAINED rapidly increasing patronage on the Milwaukee west suburban line had taxed the capacity of the existing fleet, particularly during rush hours and pointed to the urgency of a solution such as the creation of a mass transit district.

"The stark fact is the Milwaukee Road cannot exist as a private enterprise and invest in new equipment. The amount of capital needed immediately cannot be afforded," Ploss said.

Yet the need for expanded service is there, according to Ploss.

"We estimate by 1974 the line will require 36 additional bi-level cars and 13 locomotives," he said.

BAKER AND NOTTKE both opposed to what they termed "federalism" wanted to know where the remaining one-third financing would come from and if the villages would pay it individually or as a group.

Although the mass transit district, if formed would levy taxes with a referendum, Ploss told the group, Milwaukee Road had no intentions of using tax revenue.

"This is a step in the right direction to federalism," Nettke said. "Most transportation facilities are operated inefficiently. The railroads must reevaluate their operation. If they don't we'll be subsidizing inefficiencies."

PLOSS DEFENDED the Milwaukee operation, stating the company was using every piece of equipment to its maximum, but added "the days are gone when the railroads have a monopoly on transportation."

R. R. Rickson, chairman of the transportation committee on the DuPage County Board of Supervisors said, "I don't like this federal funding any more than anyone else but if we don't help the railroads they will go out of business and unfortunately we'll be spending $6 million for a four lane highway with no parking facilities at the end.

Doors Open At Hospital

A display on reproduction, some exotic pets, and a police dog training and attack demonstration are a few of the things in store for those who attend the Bensenville Animal Hospital open house to be held Sunday from 1:30 to 4 p.m.

The hospital, located at Irving Park Road and Route 83, in Bensenville scheduled the open house in response to Gov. Richard Ogilvie's designation of the first week in March as the second annual Illinois Veterinary Medical Education Week.

The open house, attended by over 500 people last year, will also include a 15-minute film on expanding demensions in veterinary medicine, a demonstration of basic fundamentals in dog grooming, and displays on X-ray equipment, surgical technique, and preserved specimens of tumors, embryos, and pathological conditions.

'Viet-Rock' Comes Off Convincingly

by MURRAY DUBIN

They looked as if they were ready to picket something.

The hair, the headbands, the peace and love symbols made you think they belonged in Champaign-Urbana rather than on the stage of the Mill Run Playhouse rehearsing tomorrow's performance of "Viet-Rock."

But as casual as they appeared and as unconcerned as they acted, when the lights went on and the music began, the 17 people in the "Viet-Rock" cast fused into a cohesive performing unit.

The funny musical, called "a contemporary study of our war," combines macabre humor with uproarious overstatement and a sobering look at the blood and guts of war.

STICKING LIKE glue to the Vietnam war, the cast sings, dances, curses, praises and laughs about the conflict. Revolving before the audience's eye on the circular stage, the Loyola and Mundelein drama students play cowboys and Indians in the first act and American and South Vietnamese troops later on.

Particularly convincing in his performance as an Army sergeant was Bill Jaeger, a long-haired, thin actor who reminded you of every "you should a seen my sergeant" story you've ever heard.

The only lapse from the Vietnam theme was the rousing number "The Onion That Ate Chicago," but even that, with blind justice falling off her pedestal, had strains of Vietnam running through it.

The second act began more quietly than the first, with the opening number "Please God" chilling the attentive audience. But the razor-edged lines are only a minute away as the sergeant says, "Spill your blood, boobies! That's the highest form of love."

KRIS KUNZ, a leggy redhead who had "The Loner" stenciled to the back of her dungaree jacket, was great in the second act and through the entire show. Involved in the last three musical numbers of the show, she exemplified the enthusiasm and fervor that the entire cast brought to the theater with them.

The show's music will never rival that of "Hair," but it is adequate and Bubbles Lasowski and the Boys in the Band provide an effective background sound.

The performance, sponsored by the Northwest Suburban Peace Coalition, will begin at 8 p.m. and will feature Curtis MacDougall, a Democratic candidate for the 13th Congressional District race, speaking before the performance.

The Library's 'Booked Solid'

by KEN HARDWICKE

All booked-up and no place to go. That seems to be the unfortunate plight of the Wood Dale Public Library these days.

Librarians have already filled the library's third addition with ample reading material. The new addition was completed in October. Now, library officials are seeking village permission to occupy the vacated police department adjacent to the building.

The old police offices offer cramped library facilities some 480 feet to expand. But library officials must have village council approval to move into the vacant space.

"The old police department was built with the stipulation that it would become part of the library when vacated," asserted George F. Welter, library designer and engineer.

TO DATE there has been no formal council action allowing the library to occupy the urgently-needed space.

Besides seeking additional space, the Wood Dale Library wants a village guarantee to use present parking lot space for future building construction.

"We are now looking for the village to give us a deed to this lot or a long lease," said Welter.

Welter added the lease would give the library the necessary land to build a two-story addition onto the present structure. The new library extension is tentative and can only be built through a future bond issue.

"We have to have the land before we decide to build on it," said Welter.

Wood Dale's library currently has 15,200 books on its shelves and offers a wide variety of services to the public.

AMONG THE library's more prominent services are seven drawers of historic art reproductions and an extensive pamphlet file. Also available are more than 100 records (popular and semi-classical) and a well-organized periodical department.

Presently the library is crowded with studying children and the additional building and land space being sought figures in the library board's future planning.

"About 4,300 books were checked out of this library in February," stated Ruth Welter, head librarian. That number is a clear indication of library demands and needs.

While books and people continue to pile up within the limited space of the library, officials are keeping a sharp ear attuned to council approval for future library progress.

Bomb Threat False Alarm

"There is a bomb in the Highland School and some children are going to be hurt."

Those words were spoken over the telephone to Wood Dale Police Matron Phyllis LaFarge Monday night, launching an extensive search and investigation by village police and fire department authorities.

Fortunately, no bomb was found after a three-hour search of the school by local officials.

The anonymous caller phoned village police at approximately 7:53 p.m. Monday. After making the bomb threat, the caller promptly hung up the telephone.

POLICE CHIEF Arthur D. Christy said the caller was not a juvenile but appeared to be a male adult.

"This was a false alarm, but further incidents will mean prosecution for the person involved," said Christy.

The police chief was especially high in his praise for Wood Dale's Volunteer Fire Department and William Overlin, acting-chief.

"I commend the volunteers for devotion to duty and a thorough intensive search made of the building," Christy said. "They did a marvelous job."

School Names Scheck Scholarship Finalist

Roy S. Scheck, 429 North Walnut St., Itasca, has been officially announced as a National Merit Scholarship finalist by Rev. Gregory F. Lucey, principal of Campion Jesuit High School in Prairie du Chien, Wisc.

Scheck will be a candidate for a diploma in the Latin-Scientific course during the 90th commencement exercises at Campion in May.

The scholarship finalist will enroll at Northwestern University in September.

Club Planning Its 'Mardi Gras'

Shall we dance?

The Bensenville Park District is inviting area residents to join in on the festivities of the First Annual White Pines Mardi Gras to be held April 4 at the White Pines Country Club.

Costumes for the affair are optional, but preferred. Costume prizes will be awarded for King Rex, Queen Venus, King Zulu and the Queen's Handmaiden.

A donation of $7.50 per couple is being asked. The price includes dinner, a bottle of champaigne per couple and dance music by the "Green Street Revelars."

The dinner menu includes lasagne, chicken, beef, salads, relishes, desserts and Louisiana coffee.

The Park District said reservations may be made by phoning its offices, 766-7015 or 766-4334.

Proceeds from the affair will go to the Bensenville Boys Athletic Association (BBAA).

Chorale To Sing

The Moody Chorale, the a cappella choir of Moody Bible Institute, Chicago, will sing at the Itasca Evangelical Free Church, on Sunday at 7 p.m.

The church is located on Bonnie Brae and George streets in Itasca. This concert will be held at the onset of the annual Missionary Conference. Everyone is invited to attend the concert.

Moody chorale is heralded on two continents as outstanding in its field. In 1954, 1958, and 1967, the group presented concerts in six European countries. Newspapers dubbed them "missionaries in song," a title that has remained with them through the years.

The chorale tours parts of the United States and Canada twice yearly presenting masterworks of sacred choral music, gospel songs and hymn arrangements. Five record albums featuring their work have been released.

No admission will be charged for the concert; a free-will donation will be accepted.

New School System Needed, Professor Says

by VIRGINIA KUCMIERZ

Public schools are monopolies and Robert Renshaw, Democratic candidate for state senator from the 39th Dist. wants to break them up.

Renshaw who is a professor of economics at Northern Illinois University is proposing a bold, innovative and "truly capitalistic" approach to education.

"Although government financing of education is justified, it doesn't follow that government must also assume the responsibility for educational administration," Renshaw said Wednesday and he went to explain just what his trust-busting tactics would includee.

"GOVERNMENT CAN require a minimum level of education, financing it by giving parents redeemable vouchers for a specified sum per child per year to be spent on an educational service of acceptable quantity and quality."

Renshaw's plan would totally eliminate the personal property tax as a means for financing education. The money for the vouchers, would come from a state income tax. "I believe education should be financed by ability to pay," Renshaw said.

His proposal for this sweeping educational reform came at a candidates' night sponsored by the Addison township Democratic Organization in Bensenville, where he appeared with six other Democrats running for state and county offices.

Following his play, the state or an accrediting agency would establish minimum educational standards which all schools would have to meet, such as specific number of English courses, each student must take.

THEN THE STATE would determine how much this minimal education would cost per year and issue tuition vouchers to parents in that amount for every child they have attending school.

Parents could spend these vouchers anywhere they wish. School district boundaries would become meaningless. If parents prefer to send their children to a nonpublic school meeting the set standards, they could.

All schools would also be free to set their tuition rates.

If a school charges a high tuition, and the parent elects to send his child there the parent pays the difference.

Renshaw feels there would be "a powerful incentive for educators to provide local schools in a community under this system."

EDUCATION WOULD become a marketable commodity, which parents would, in effect, be purchasing for their children, with money that was guaranteed.

"When the consumers and the money is there, you can be sure there will be also somebody there to provide the desired service," he explained.

Renshaw contends this plan will upgrade education, because the people providing the services will have to continuously justify the quality of the product in relation to the price charged. If a school has high tuition rates that parents don't consider are worth paying they can send their child to another school.

"Initially, the distribution of children and teachers will be upset, but the market system will smooth this out."

THE NEW SYSTEM would also improve teaching standards, and reward the better teachers, because better teachers would be sought by school administrators for their institutions, Renshaw feels.

Most importantly, Renshaw said, the voucher system "would provide a wider range of choice to parents . . . a major disadvantage of the present public school system is the lack of genuine diversity in educational programs and policies.

"In public education there are forces which inhibit the processes of invention and innovation. Public schools in all fairness, cannot make any kind of radical change which would be repulsive to some group of parents."

Renshaw stresses, "There is nothing in the system I advocate to prevent a local community from establishing a system of public schools supported by local taxes if the voters of that community wish to tax themselves to provide a better education than would be provided by the tuition vouchers alone. Presumably the property tax would be much less."

Richard Schultz, assistant prosecuting attorney will speak at the college March 12.

Attempted Theft From Safe Fails

A burglar was thwarted in his attempt to break into the safe of the Scott Store, 1105 S. York Rd. in Bensenville early Tuesday morning.

According to police reports, the burglar gained entrance by prying the store's aluminum doors open with a pry bar. When he attempted to break into the safe by battering the combination locks, the safe jammed.

"It probably was the work of an amateur," Bensenville Police Lt. Art Garcia said.

The store's assistant manager, Raymond Majewski of Elmhurst, reported about $25 in change was missing. Store officials could not provide a complete list of missing items until they took an inventory, according to police.

The burglary attempt was first reported by Sgt. Lawrence Bienemen of the Bensenville Police Department. While on his routine patrol, Bienemen noticed the front double doors of the store were pried open.

Meet To Discuss Planner's Study

Two meetings will be held later this month by Addison officials to discuss the master planner's 20-year study on the future of Addison.

The village board, zoning board of appeals and plan commission will meet March 18 and 25 to determine what proposals should be adopted by the village.

The plan was presented to the officials two weeks ago by Thomas Dykes.

Beware the Sun God

The Sun God will sleep tomorrow. The skies will darken and the world will be left in shadows.

The ancient beliefs of what happens during an eclipse of the sun are held by few persons today even though many "believers" put much faith in the other celestrial bodies and their relationships.

The Illinois Society for the Prevention of Blindness reminds the public not to view the eclipse directly. Parents are especially reminded to prevent their children from permanently damaging the sensitive retinas.

At midday tomorrow, the eclipse is scheduled to occur and many children may be outdoors playing. It would be only natural to look up when the sky becomes suddenly dark. The injury from scarring is painless and the realization comes too late.

At 11:30 a.m. tomorrow, maybe everyone should get outside and dance to please the Sun God so the sunlight will return — but beware of looking.

The vacuum left with the departure of GOP Chairman Elmer Hoffman who will not be a candidate for re-election after the March 17 primary is throwing the Republican primary picture into a tailspin. For the first time in memory the DuPage County situation is unpredictable and will become more so until primary votes are counted.

With conservative and liberal factions announcing candidates to succeed Hoffman, it's a foregone conclusion that every candidate on the GOP primary ticket is on a hot spot on the chairman issue. The Ogilvie camp in DuPage County who is said to have everything sewed up in Cook County is less cocky about what has been formerly known as Hoffmanland.

And this is going to be a central issue for the county GOP chairmanship: Will he be county oriented or will he be directed from Springfield? The Ogilvie "machine," myth or fact?

With the Governor's "patronage" coming in for some hot publicity lately, this facet as it pertains to DuPage County can be expected to get a thorough airing.

IT IS IN THIS climate that James Pate Philip, York GOP chairman and seeking nomination for a third term in the state legislature, held a full blown press conference at his home Tuesday to toss his hat in the ring for the Republican chairmanship.

It will be recalled that Carl Nadelhoffer, Naperville attorney and the Ogilvie county campaign manager in 1968, already had made his announcement. These two candidates represent pretty well the conservative and moderate (liberal) political division in DuPage County, the so-called split.

To further stir up the DuPage political situation, Jay Rockefeller (D-West Virginia Sec. of State), who carries some pretty good credentials, stopped off at Fmhurst College Thursday in support of Adlai Stevenson III in his Democratic primary bid for the U. S. Senate. He is touring the state.

According to Democratic County Chairman William A. Redmond if the GOP insists on a split they ought to make it a three-way deal because there are going to be a lot of Democratic votes to count this fall. The Rockefeller name, he says, will cause many solid Republicans to cross over in 1970.

"The issue before DuPage County Republicans," says Philip, "is the kind and quality of leadership they want in the decade of the 1970's."

THE CRITERION OF that leadership should be, he says, "how much water they have carried to the elephant." He cites his record: two terms as township chairman, precinct committeeman, past president of state Young Republicans, and numerous services with national, state and local organizations.

"I am not a vindictive person," this GOP chairman candidate tells us, "and am willing and know how to heal honest differences." Philip is sales manager for a large business organization.

His program will be to integrate the warring elements within the party "on a basis of common fairness to all concerned." The tradition of "open primaries" developed under Hoffman will be preserved, Philip promises, and he intends to work closely with township chairman on "policies and procedures."

The grass-roots voter is going to play a more active part in GOP politics of the future, he says. He'll rely on leading Republicans for advice and the main fundraising will be through the efforts of volunteer GOP citizen groups.

"Elmer Hoffman had an enviable election success and that's what counts," this ambitious chairman candidate points out. "DuPage Republicans must adjust to this new decade to carry on and do equally as well."

WHAT ARE HIS chances? It takes 205 precinct committeeman votes. He says he has at least 150, knows his own 37th District committeemen well and most in the 38th.

Will he have the backing of Elmer Hoffman? He's called "Hoffman's man." He laughs and says: "No one speaks for Elmer Hoffman. Why don't you ask him?" But he goes on with, "I'm hopeful he'll support me."

The retiring chairman tells us he's free to use whatever political influence he has where he thinks it will do the party the most good. That political strength is rated as big.

Right now the conservative strength in DuPage County plus dissension factors cropping up appear to place Pate Philip out front in the race for GOP county chairman. This race has every indication of overshadowing the March 17 primary.

Parents Are Sent Back to Classroom

by KEN HARDWICKE

Roselle's parents went back to school Sunday Truant after too many years to remember, the parents of St. Walter's students came bearing wedding rings, gray hair and tight budgets.

Hopefully, they came with open minds and fiscal responsibility to reward the young with the education they so urgently need.

For the children, the sign of the times was expressed with the visual disappointment that an "extra" day of school brings.

"IF IT WAS A nicer day, I wouldn't mind it so much," remarked one girl student whose lost play time was almost as valuable as the school's request for state aid.

Sunday was a dismal day — almost reflecting the mood of Catholic schools throughout the state who opened up their doors so others could open up their hearts and eventually their pocketbooks.

For St. Walter's 587 students, it was Sunday school without religion. And while reading, writing and arithmetic were being taught in the classrooms, the lesson so urgently stressed to parental ears echoed with financial overtones.

It was money that was the subject of everyone's attention Sunday but while politicians were busy "passing the buck" the school collection plate remained relatively barren.

IT WAS AN abbreviated school day Sunday. Students performed regular learning techniques from 1 to 3:30 p.m. and over 600 people from Roselle came to witness the learning process at work.

"There were a lot of outside people here who weren't parents," praised Dan O'Shea, a member of St. Walter's Board of Education.

State Representatives William Redmond and James "Pate" Phillips were also present for the Open House Sunday as was Roselle Village Pres. Robert Frantz.

"The parents were pleased," Patrick Clifford, Pres. of the school board said. "They're all for aid to parochial schools."

WITH PARENTS shuffling from classroom to classroom, students were on their best behavior.

"We need money like any other school in the area and we need it now," asserted Sister Therese Thoenen, principal.

St. Walter's parishioners hope that Sunday's school session will have state officials bearing gifts of coin in the near future.

Percy To Talk At Seminar

James B. Strenski, general chairman for the Planning for People Seminar, has announced that U.S. Sen. Charles Percy, Loyola Prof. Dr. Paul Mundy, and Bill Berry of Chicago Urban League, will be the speakers for the Planning for People Seminar April 10.

"It would be difficult to find three more knowledgeable speakers in the area of human relations," Strenski said. "We are fortunate that these three exceptional people, oktstanding in their given fields, are able to give some of their time and attention to our community and its problems."

The keynote speaker for the seminar will be Percy April 10. He will speak on "Housing in the Suburbs," discussing the need for moderate income housing in the suburbs, what government plans are available, and how private citizens and public-interest groups can cooperate with local government in supplying the need through available government programs.

Berry will speak Thursday, April 16, on "Poverty-Bigger Than Race." He will discuss the problems of poverty, and suburbia's stake in their solution.

BERRY IS AN ALUMNUS of Oberlin College and Duquesne University. He has completed graduate studies in the schools of social work at the University of Pittsburgh and Western Reserve University. Berry began his work in the field of race relations with the Urban League of Pittsburgh. He assumed his recent position as Executive Dirfector of the Chicago Urban League in January, 1956. In April of 1965, Berry was selected as "Chicagoan of the Year" in the field of Social Welfare by the Chicago Junior Association of Commerce and Industry in addition to many other honors and awards.

On Thursday, April 23, Dr. Paul Mundy, sociology department of Loyola University, will speak on "Social Responsibilities in Suburbia." Dr. Mundy will focus attention on the social responsibility of suburbia to the problems of the poor, paying special attention to the positive action that can be taken by individuals and groups of citizens'.

MUNDY RECEIVED his Ph.D. from Catholic University of America in 1951. Since that time he has written and spoken extensively on poverty, race, and attitudes towards the poor.

Mundy is currently Consultant for Human Relations for the National Council for Christians and Jews. He is also a consultant for the Human Relations Commission of Skokie and Oak Park.

The speeches will be given on the respective dates listed, at Edman Chapel on the Wheaton College Campus. All will begin at 8:15 p.m., and will be followed by open question and answer periods. Tickets are $1 for the series and can be obtained through the Wheaton Chamber of Commerce and Wheaton City Hall. All high school and college students will be admitted free upon presentation of a student I.D.

Strenski said that "An opportunity for action on 'people problems' that may not occur again, has been presented to our community through this seminar. I'm sure that the response to the seminar will indicate that this community recognizes the problems that do exist, and is willing to seek solutions to them."

Incumbent Merrill Gates.

Gates Opposed To Aid For Non-Public Schools

Merrill Gates has accumulated a long list of qualifications for the office of DuPage County Superintendent of Education Service Region more commonly known as county Superintendent of Public Schools.

Most of Gate's experience in school administration has been in the DuPage county area and he has served as county superintendent of public schools since 1967

The 59-year-old superintendent received his bachelors degree from North Central College in Naperville and his masters degree from Northwestern University. He has also attended summer and evening courses at the University of Illinois.

GATES SERVED in administrative capacities with the Naperville School District from 1941-1955. In 1955 he became assistant superintendent of DuPage County schools and in 1967 he became county superintendent of schools. Recently the name of the position was changed to Suintendent of the Educational Service Region of DuPage County and his salary is paid by the state.

The present superintendent opposes state aid to nonpublic schools. He feels legislation so far proposed is unconstitutional.

"If we are having problems financing one system, how can we finance two," he said.

There are mandatory public school programs which now receive no direct state aid according to Gates. He feels the state should assume 45-48 per cent of the cost to support students.

The incumbent superintendent is opposed to teachers' strikes. He pointed out that a teacher strike could not be comparable to an industrial strike.

"The loser is always the child in a teacher strike, not the employer," Gates said.

IN RESPONSE TO the $12 million revenue surplus the county has accumulated, Gates told the Register he saw no problem as long as the money was spent "prudently." However, "If they want the money, the county should collect it in the name of the county and not in the name of schools," Gates said. He criticized the surplus since it was collected mostly from school taxes, but has not been spent for schools.

Gates said he is also opposed to the moving of his office from Wheaton to the County Building at the DuPage Airport on North Avenue.

"I don't care about the plush setting idea being pushed on me by the county board," Gates said, "We should stay in Wheaton to centrally serve the people and have personal contact."

Gates often goes out into the community, but said he did not attend school board meetings unless invited.

Gates has been instrumental in establishing the Audio-Visual Institute of DuPage. This is a county film library which often sends out about 3,000 films to county schools including non-public during one week.

FORTY ELEMENTARY districts and 10 high school districts are under the jurisdiction of the county superintendent. This would include 17 high school buildings and 188 elementary school buildings

Gates sees himself as an "arm of the state" in his position as county school superintendent. "I work closely with the state superintendent of public instruction," Gates said.

In reference to defeated school referendums, Gates said, "The people are the losers." He added that the boards of education are "agents of the people." However, when a board comes back immediately with another referendum, the public is insulted."

Gates said he has "great faith in the board operation of schools" and will continue to support it through his office.

Jensen Cites Need To 'Define' Role

Gordon Jensen, the conservative Democratic candidate for Superintendent of Educational Service Region — formerly Superintendent of DuPage County Schools, said his primary reason for aspiring to the office is a need to "define" the superintendent's role.

That is about as far as Jensen will commit his campaign A loser twice before for the same office, Jensen has apparently lost the political "moxie" to challenge the incumbent on crucial issues.

If he has a differing political view of the office, now held by Republican Merrill Gates, he hasn't given any indication of what it is. He certainly doesn't oppose his opponent's programs but thinks his candidacy allows for a needed competitive atmosphere.

"I'M AN ADMIRER of Merrill Gates," said the Democrat.

Jensen's admiration of Gates and his vocal unwillingness to differ with the incumbent's policies have clouded the campaign and given the public a carbon copy candidate instead of a choice.

Jensen has the qualifications to assume the job but not the hungry desire to make it a competitive race. Despite his urgency that the superintendent of schools should initiate vocational education and personality-development (sex education) programs, Jensen's programs coincide almost identically with those of his opponent.

The Democratic high school principal in Western Springs wants the county office to be a position of leadership and innovation but his candidacy does little to enhance those wishes.

A PRINCIPAL FOR 10 years, eight years service at Blackhawk Jr. College and one year in the Chicago public school system qualifies Jensen to run for the post on experience instead of issues or alternate programs.

In the crucial issueshe differs little with his opponent but may be saving his political acumen for a later date . . . closer to the November elections, the real showdown.

A conservative who opposes state aid to non-public schools, busing of students and teacher strikes, Jensen foresees year-round schools for better use of facilities and cooperative programs.

Jensen feels the voters should realize the importance of the state-financed office for future education. But he doesn't think his candidacy will influence voters as much as party labels already do. The way his campaign is oriented, he may be right.

Challenger Gordon Jensen.

Viewing the superintendent post as a "complaint center" for dissatisfied citizens, Jensen sees the need for the post as a "ear for persons with legitimate gripes." He adds there is really nowhere else for dissatisfied school taxpayers to go.

WITH THE CURRENT financial crisis facing non-public schools, Jensen does not see a state program that can effectively support both systems.

Aware of inadequate teacher salaries he opposes teacher strikes but favors IEA sanctions instead.

One of the candidate's biggest arguments is also shared by his opponent. Jensen objects to the superintendent's office being relocated away from Wheaton to the DuPage County Airport. If elected he vows to move the office and staff to a more convenient location where the public can be better served.

Unless party labels are the deciding factor, there isn't too much that Jensen's present candidacy offers that his Republican opponent hasn't already proposed.

The Way We See It

Vote for Rentschler

Illinois Republicans face a difficult challenge in the March 17 U S. Senate primary: They must select a man to compete in November with a Democratic candidate who has a great deal of appeal just because of his name Adlai E. Stevenson III. And they also must choose a man to fill the shoes of the late Sen. Everett M Dirksen, a difficult task

Two candidates, both with many years of loyalty to the party and political activity on various levels, are competing for the nomination. Sen. Ralph T Smith, who was appointed to the senate vacancy last year, is being challenged by William H Rentschler

Smith is former speaker of the Illinois House of Representatives and was a member of the House for 15 years. Rentschler, although never elected to public office, is known throughout the state for his activity as campaign manager in Illinois for President Nixon in 1968. It was the Illinois vote that put the President over the top and Nixon has given much praise and credit to Rentschler for his performance

Of the two contenders, we believe Rentschler is the stronger candidate and we recommend his nomination.

Rentschler's attitude on several top issues seems more likely to bring about solutions than does Smith's position.

Rentschler favors a much tougher approach on pollution than does Smith, who has remarked that he does not think pollution is a problem that has to be solved "tomorrow or the next day "

Rentschler supports the efforts of Atty. Gen William Scott in suing industrial concerns who fail to comply with pollution standards and said if they don't comply, "put padlocks on the plants " Smith does not agree with such a tough approach and would prefer to "turn the corner in four or five years."

On the important issue of inflation, Rentschler favors sharp cuts in government spending, particularly in defense, where he would like budget decreases of from $5 to $10 billion, and in the space program, which he says should not be stepped up when there are urgent problems to face on the domestic level

Rentschler does not favor a policy of tight money and high interest rates because, he said, they are hurting the nation in too many ways, particularly in drying up the housing market

Smith, on the other hand, prefers to stop inflation with an administration policy calling for "whatever puts less money in the hands of the consumer." He blames inflation on previous administrations and is not as eager as Rentschler to cut back on government spending. For example, Smith favors government subsidies for the SST (supersonic transport) plane as "something that has to be developed for the world of the future and probably wouldn't by private capital."

Rentschler is opposed to the SST spending, calling it an unneeded subsidy of private industry.

Another major issue is the future of America's metropolitan areas and the role of the black man in the nation's future.

Rentschler, a Chicago area resident who has operated businesses in Chicago's black areas, is more familiar with the problems of the city and its blacks and justifiably criticizes the Republican Party for "writing the black man off." Smith says the black man is receiving more from the Nixon administration than from previous administrations and is happier than under those administrations.

Rentschler has a good understanding of urban and suburban needs. His more independent approach to issues better serves the interests of the Republican Party, Republican voters and the State of Illinois.

We encourage Republicans to nominate him on March 17.

The Political Beat

Political Odds Men 'Out'

by CHARLES E. HUFNAGEL

Exuding an optimism that defies description, even causing some of the old professionals who have seen political candidates come and go to take a new look, William H Rentschler, the Republican underdog in the race for the U.S. Senate, is writing primary campaign history in the face of overwhelming odds

What's the status of this campaign? There's a shaking of heads and a perfunctory writing him off but there are some reservations too and with good reason

This candidate who managed a brilliant campaign in 1968 in Illinois for President Nixon refuses to believe what he hears and actually thinks if he can get to the GOP voters he can beat what he calls the "Ogilvie party machine."

TAKE THE "delayed" GOP Lincoln Day dinner Sunday night in DuPage County which hosted state, county and local Republican blacktie people where Sen. Ralph Tyler Smith was the headline speaker Rentschler wasn't supposed to be on hand much less to get the microphone. But he got the platform and almost stole the show to the consternation of Republican adversaries whose campaign maneuver seems to be: Keep Rentschler out of sight

But Rentschler had a little help from Elmer Hoffman, retiring GOP chairman. Hoffman said this county was dedicated to open primaries and fairness to GOP voters wouldn't hurt the party. Rentschler got five minutes

All Republicans holding office, he said, came up through the ranks via open primary. That's been the GOP style

"WE DON'T NEED a machine," he told the Lincoln Day diners. The party must articulate a philosophy in step with these times and formulate a program which has the support of the grass-roots voters.

He brought down the house when he ended his talk with: Daley has his Adlai, Ogilvie his Senator Smith, but the people who vote have their Rentschler After all, a quick and ready man with a happy phrase.

Senator Smith who learned a thing or two as speaker of the Illinois House, refused to be non-plused. He let it be known in no uncertain terms that the only person who dictated to Smith was Ralph T. Smith, or perhaps Mrs. Smith on occasion.

In the course of his remarks the Senator predicted the nomination of Judge Carswell for the Supreme Court by a 60-30 margin He made a point when he said that with his 12 years experience with legislation at Springfield he was no novice in assuming responsibility at Washington.

YET THE MAJOR issue in this GOP primary campaign seems to be the organization of the party under a leadership responsible to the voters who make the GOP a vital factor in the two-party political process. This is an issue that transcends any individual in the party or any group of individuals. Others than Rentschler are saying that when the voice of the grassroots voter is no longer listened to, the Republican Party is on the way to dusky death. The same for the Democratic Party.

This is what is making the underdog Rentschler tick in this campaign, and he is pursuing it with a dedication comparable to personalities of biblical times. Why is he doing it? No one knows. Who's backing him? No one knows. Why does he suffer this harshness of campaigning? He'll tell you it's for the good of the party. Has he been let down politically? He'll never say so

Does he think he'll win? He smiles and says, "Of course, if I can talk to the people."

SO WITH MRS. Rentschler always at his side, he seeks an audience everywhere and anywhere. Is this a kind of political craziness? That question strikes him as not very intelligent. We are in an age that calls for involvement and commitment, is his theme. There's a task for everyone and if each will assume it we can have a responsible government and a sane society. He wants to start with the Republican Party.

But the problem, Rentschler says, is to make people understand this That's his mission in this Republican primary.

Charles Hufnagel

Polluted Antipollution?

by BARRY SIGALE

If and when the village of Addison gets a pollution control agent to police its "friendly" skies, there is one thing that is essential.

It should be a choice devoid of politics. The new expert on pollution should not be hamstrung by pet projects of the persons who hired him.

IT SEEMS A LITTLE early to be discussing the problems that could be inflicted upon a pollution control agent even before it has been decided what criteria to set up to hire such a man and what his duties will be. Indeed, they haven't even decided to put such a specialist on their payroll.

But all indications are that the board will move in this direction and it is on this premise that this column will be attuned to.

Politics seems to be everywhere these days. The Metropolitan Sanitary District of Greater Chicago was recently accused by its fired superintendent Vinton Bacon of injecting pet projects into Bacon's daily routine. If left alone he would have been able to attack the more vital problems facing it.

Now comes word that the state's environmental chief, William L. Rutherford, is apparently on the way out of his new job because of a matter of politics.

This kind of activity is pollution in and of itself. It's not bad enough that the air and water is filled with "crud" but now (and as always) the people who are supposed to be fighting the problems of today are being hampered by those who would prefer power to bad lungs.

Barry Sigale

POLLUTION OF THE AIR, as has been said many times before, knows no boundaries. The other day, through the haze, local persons were able to get a whiff of some of the smoky materials of the "Crud Manufacturing Company." What's bad is that they are located in northern Indiana.

Water pollution is the same. Floating down Salt Creek in Addison the other day was a bottle with an S.O.S. note in it from an adventurer who was lost in the Mediterranean Sea. From 1963.

But you're right. It's not really a joking matter. After all, when you laugh your lungs get filled with icky oxygen straight out of the fog that accompanies polluted air.

Bensenville is a good example of a town that has decided to attack pollution from within, if that's possible. A joint effort is needed by all nearby communities and if each hired a specialist to do nothing but police the skys and waterways the job could be accomplished.

The Bensenville man is Richard Young and he has been extra busy lately getting polluters in the village to come under exacting standards of control.

He is currently working with the Clow Corp. Cast Iron Pipe Foundry Co. among others, who has been accused in the past of being apparent polluters in the western suburbs.

A HOST OF corporations throughout the area have been allowed to get away with minimum standards of control over their excess waste, including sewage. It is to that problem that Young is addressing himself and a specialist of this kind would do Addison a world of good.

After all, pollution is our worst enemy.

The Fence Post

Secretary Finch's War on Bassinets Misdirected

We have just read that our secretary of health, education and welfare, Mr. Finch, urges parents to limit their children to two. We feel very strongly on this point, and we would like to make known our views through the people's section of your editorial page.

We are one of the couples "in this country who simply don't get the message. . ." to limit themselves to two children. We are high school educators and the parents of three. It seems to us that to attack our environmental problems by limiting family size might make the problems smaller, but would not eliminate them. To rescue our environment we need the resolve and wisdom to utilize our vast talents towards a complete solution. We need the courage to rise about a materialistic philosophy and the self-discipline to put our priorities back into proper perspective. Mr. Finch suggested that the starting point to improve the quality of life would be for parents to limit their families. In other words, he would improve the QUALITY of life for SOME by denying life itself to others?

WE MIGHT POSSIBLY decrease pollution, waste, poverty, urban unrest, etc., by limiting future births. But, in addition, we might possibly deprive the world of some valuable contributions — a cure for cancer, a lasting racial brotherhood, even a more perfect answer to pollution or crime or overpopulation. The person viewed as a "future pollutor" can also be viewed as a "future Einstein." It is interesting that limiting families to two children in the past would have deprived the world of Bach, Shakespeare, Dwight D. Eisenhower, etc.

Our secretary of health, education and welfare suggested that the government might have to offer "disincentives" to discourage parents from having large families. Why not offer stronger "disincentives" to the pollutors in industry? Could it be that we, as parents, do not have as much influence on our lawmakers as some members of "big business?"

In fighting our environmental battles, it is insidious to decide that because more people increase our problems we should therefore limit the number of people. Analogously, in fighting a military battle more soldiers increase the problems of military management, but do we limit the number of soldiers or do we strive for more effective management? Why not use our technology and resources to control the pollution, to lessen urban strife, to instruct the people of the world in environmental control, etc.? Why must a solution be a negative one — eliminate future lives? Can a country that is capable of putting men on the moon, really, in good conscience, rescue its natural habitat by refusing life to future human beings — human beings who might even find space for living on the lunar surface?

Mr. Finch claims that the American people must be prepared "to meet the costs of environmental restoration — costs that may range from less powerful autos to less frequently occupied bassinets." If America's values encourage us to solve our problems by sacrificing, with equal readiness, our automobiles and our future children — God help us

Protect Unpopular

I hope no one pays any attention to the Black Panther speech at Forest View High School. He seeks to protect liberty by denying it. Free speech in the Bill of Rights means the protection of radical and unpopular speeches or it means nothing. The popular point of view needs no protection.

Headline 'Unsubstantiated'

I feel a few comments are in order after reading your newspaper Feb. 24.

On the front page in bold type was the headline "DEATH FAULT OF HOSPITAL?" and if one were a fast reader the question mark may have been completely ignored.

YET, WHEN I READ the article, there was nothing to be found to even substantiate the supposition of possible wrong doing. So, why the title or wording in the headline?

I realize there seems to be an open season on physicians and headlines sell copy, but I would think responsible reporting is also necessary before any article of this sensitivity is printed.

As a staff member of Northwest Community Hospital and familiar with the other physicians and their attempts to give high quality medical care, I feel this article does nothing more than disturb the doctor-patient relationship which is of paramount importance in the care of any patient.

In contrast, on the same page as this article was a small column reporting some auto accidents which occurred over the weekend. No comment was made of the long hours spent in that same Emergency Room to treat the victims of these accidents. My associate, to mention one doctor, was in the hospital from 1 a.m. to 3 p.m. Sunday, helping to care for these patients.

PLEASE, LET US have more reporting in a responsible manner.

Head Hits Head

by G. C. SKIPPER

There are groaners and then there are superdowners.

The following selected with extreme care after two weeks of dillydallying and one good, old-fashioned serious scream from Roger the Wire Editor (strangling on reams and rolls of wire copy) — Yaaakkk! Gaaggggg! cried Roger — the following, as said somewhere earlier, should fall into either category without too much thinking.

(Who coined that "Joy" phrase, anyway??)

In Des Moines, tat-tat-ta-taaaaaa, the Iowa House got off to a head start Tuesday when Speaker William Harbor gaveled in the afternoon session.

The head of the mallet flew off and struck Chief Clerk William Hendrick on the head.

HENDRICK, RUBBING his head, said he might designate the speaker's podium as a "hard hat area."

Down yonder in Williamson, W. Va., Roger Franklin Justice, 28, a prisoner at Moundsville state penitentiary, had a motion for a writ of habeas corpus denied in Mingo County Circuit Court Wednesday.

So he took matters into his own hands. Justice escaped from the county jail and hasn't been seen since.

Amsterdam's beginning to sound like the United States. A middle-aged man who thought he had been overtaxed stalked into the tax office, stripped, put his clothes on the counter and shouted, "Take it all then!"

The man then walked out of the building. He was brought back a few minutes later, persuaded to dress and taken to a mental hospital for examination.

AND PHILADELPHIA'S got its troubles too. Making a clean sweep of city hall there is becoming progressively more difficult, janitors complained Thursday.

The janitors claim their brooms contain less horsehair these days. The Procurement Department explained there are not enough horses available for brooms.

(Whatever happened to the glue factory?)

Then, in York, England, 10-year-old Victor Cammidge, his wrist and elbow broken, saw an ambulance arrive at his home to take him to the hospital.

He ran.

"I thought they were going to cut my arm off," he said later.

Victor eventually was found hiding in a half-full barrel of beer at a nearby public house.

Here come da groaner, now — Kenneth Haney couldn't understand why he was arrested for vagrancy. He admitted loafing around the City-County Building in Wheeling, W. Va., but said he saw no harm in it.

THE POLICE DID. They said Henry had been doing his laundry in the restrooms of the building.

(No' tonight, Henry!)

And if that's not groaner enough, here come da superdowner — from London: Jenny Winmill,19, and David Atkinson, 20, who say they don't even like each other very much, claim a new world record for a single kiss — 1 hour, 35 minutes and 40 seconds.

The record-breaking attempt was in aid of charity.

(On second thought, maybe a real superdowner is a man in a Nehru jacket driving an Edsel . . .)

Square Dance News

Like The Man Said, It's Tough All Over

NOW MANY of you might think life is dull in the bird house at the Brookfield Zoo. Not so.

THERE'S beauty everywhere, and we certainly are not devoid of optical delights around here.

AH, LOOK at that delightful specimen. It's not every day that they're as lovely as that. My, my, my . . .

HEY, BABY, how about you and me cutting out somewhere for a little bit of my kind of fun? Yeah, you . . .

HEY WAIT a second! Nobody told me this chick's got a boyfriend. A most startling complication . . .

SOME GUY once said discretion is the better part of valor; unfortunately, that includes owls . . .

3 Contest Winners

Competitive coloring has earned three area children prizes in the weekly coloring contests, with the names of the fourth week's winners to be announced next Monday.

Winners of the first three contests are: Laura Barry, 38 Lonsdale Road, Elk Grove Village; Charles Killhoff, 2903 Martin, Rolling Meadows, and Bob Soto, 4004 Eagle Lane, Rolling Meadows.

PRIZES IN THE four weekly contests, open to children between the ages of 7 and 11, include a Kodak Instamatic camera, a Vincent Price painting set, as well as membership for parents in the Chicago Horticultural Society or tickets for the family to the Chicago World Flower and Garden Show, to be held at the International Amphitheatre in Chicago March 7-15. The grand prize, a movie camera, will be awarded at the flower show.

Contest sponsors include: Charles Klehm and Son Nursery, Amling's Flowerland, W. Atlee Burpee Co., Coca Cola Bottling Co. of Chicago and the Eastman Kodak Co.

The Almanac

by United Press International

Today is Friday, March 6, the 65th day of 1970 with 300 to follow.

The moon is approaching its new phase.

The morning stars are Mercury and Jupiter.

The evening stars are Venus, Mars and Saturn.

On this day in history:

In 1836 Mexican forces captured the Alamo at San Antonio, Tex., killing the last of 187 Americans who had held out for 13 days, including famous frontiersman Davey Crockett. From the slaughter arose the cry, "Remember the Alamo!"

In 1857 the Supreme Court handed down its landmark Dred Scott Decision, ruling that Scott, a Negro slave, could not sue for his freedom in a federal court.

In 1964 King Paul died at the age of 62 and son Prince Constantine became ruler of Greece. Three years later Constantine was sent into exile by a military regime which took over the country.

In 1968 long-time American Congressman Joseph Martin, former Speaker of the House, died at the age of 83.

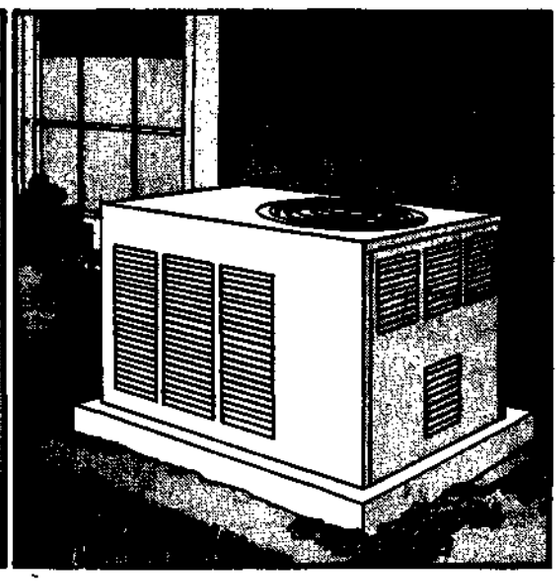
We'll do your spring housecleaning free if you order gas air conditioning now.



Have your home cleaned for free! Buy your gas central air conditioning during the month of March, and we'll give you a certificate for a spring housecleaning by Servicemaster®, national professional home cleaners.

They'll strip the kitchen floor and re-wax it . . . clean and sanitize appliances, countertops, cabinets . . . vacuum all carpets, rugs, floors and all upholstered furniture . . . clean and sanitize bathrooms and powder rooms . . . dust areas above head height in all rooms . . . remove dust and finger prints from door jambs, window ledges, baseboards, light switches . . . they even clean and sanitize your telephones. (Or, if you wish, your certificate can be used for other plans . . . such as carpet or drapery cleaning.)

It's worth $60 or more, and it's all on the house if you order gas air conditioning during the month of March.

Keep your home cool for less! Gas air conditioning keeps your home cool and comfortable for far less than the cost of electric air conditioning. (And with our special low summer air conditioning rate, you'll pay less to operate all your gas appliances.) Gas air conditioning is quieter, too. And more dependable . . . because it has fewer moving parts to repair, replace, or lose efficiency.

In fact, gas air conditioning is so dependable, Northern Illinois Gas Co. guarantees the cooling unit for two years. If you have a problem with it, we'll fix it at no additional cost for parts or labor. And you get a 5-year warranty on the sealed refrigeration circuit from the manufacturer.

Convenient, low cost financing is available. So why sweat-out another hot, humid summer? Call us now. We'll clean your home free, and help you keep it clean and cool for less, with gas air conditioning.

Remember...the housecleaning offer ends March 31st.

ADEPT IN MANY handicrafts, Mrs. Mary Jordan of Rolling Meadows favors crocheting and is delighted with the current rebirth of interest in this needle art. She teaches a course in it.

Fashion Vests Did It

The Renascence in Crochet

by BILLIE BACHHUBER

Have you tried to buy a crochet hook lately? They are in short supply

Helen Klotz, proprietor of Ball O' Yarn in Arlington Heights, says the recent upsurge of interest in the nearly forgotten art of crocheting "has gone almost beyond reason." Her shop orders hooks nearly every other day to keep up with the demand. And the popularity of crocheting apparently is nationwide. Boyle Needle Co. reports they sold over a year's supply of hooks in one week, Helen noted.

Mrs. Albert Jordan, crochet instructor in District 214's adult education program, agrees with Helen Klotz that fashion is responsible for the renewed interest in crocheting. The crocheted vest did it.

MARY JORDAN said she foresaw the current popularity of this handiwork and was delighted. Adept at knitting, crewel embroidery (which she also teaches), needlepoint, hairpin lace (made on a loom) and others, Mrs. Jordan is fondest of crocheting.

"Personally, I find it easier, much more versatile and more interesting than knitting." She transfers this enthusiasm to her students.

Mrs. William Novacak of Elk Grove Village is one of Mary Jordan's most enthusiastic "graduates" from the 10-week crochet class, conducted at Arlington High School. Though she also enjoys knitting and sewing, Barbara prefers crocheting

"EACH STITCH YOU put in, you can see your work grow," she said.

Both Barbara and Mary think the ability to produce in a short time a beautifully fashioned handicraft may be one of crocheting's biggest appeals to women. With new yarns now on the market, a crocheter can make anything from lacy tablecloths and bedspreads to rugs on the floor . . . "even draperies for your windows!" says Mary.

However, the current resurgence of this "old-fashioned" art may be due also to women's desire to create something fashionable . . . at considerable savings. At $3.60 to make her own pink, wool mini dress, Mrs. Novacak surmises she saved at least $20 or $30. Comparing the hand-fashioned dress to a "very lovely" machine-crocheted dress she purchased at Christmas time for $40, Barbara feels prouder of her own handiwork. Her first vest cost her $1.32 compared with a $15 store price tag! She also saves on gifts (potholders, loop vest sweaters, afghan, hats, scarves and others). And then there's the satisfaction of a job well-done.

"FROM A SIMPLE piece of string or yarn, you accomplish so much . . . and such a wide variety," commented the mother of three. "It's almost as satisfying as watching your children grow," she added with a smile.

Mary Jordan thinks it's fun teaching women "something to do." So many women asked her to show them how to crochet, she explained, that she decided to ask for a class. She presently is instructing a class of 20 to 25 at Arlington High School. Novices are taught basic stitches at the very first session and many finish a potholder the first week, she said. Increasing and decreasing stitches are taught in the second class meeting and by the third week most students are ready to start a long vest.

"Many can finish it in one week," smiled the teacher.

OF COURSE, she added, some beginners are slower than others. She works longer with these. Says Barbara Novacak, "She has has the patience of a saint."

Crochet evolved from the French croche (hook), a tool for lacemaking and a form of knitting done with one hook, according to Mrs. Jordan. She thinks it may date back to the 16th century and was a popular convent art in the 1800s. Eventually groups of stitches grew from this lacemaking to become the separate art, crochet, she said. Mary learned the handicraft and others at age six from her grandmother.

Besides teaching classes in crocheting and crewel embroidery, this lively lady attends night school two nights a week (drawing and painting and sociology). And she recently added to her list of accomplishments at home by fashioning a dress of woven-crochet. This consists of a simple mesh stitch with bright strands of colors woven through with a darning needle.

MARY PREDICTS this method of crochet — which she thinks is new — will become very popular. However, she recommends it for suits as she finds the weight a little heavy for dresses.

Among the items crocheted by area women, who are buying crochet hooks like hotcakes, are scarves, hats, mittens, sweaters and vests, suits, dresses, baby sets (booties, blankets, sweaters and bonnets), tablecloths, bedspreads, afghans . . . and yes, doilies!

"I teach my students to make a doilie," said Mrs. Jordan.

Barbara Novacak displays hers on the family TV set, and thinks it adds femininity and delicacy to her room Besides she's proud of her accomplishment. Why not get "hooked" and join the fun?

Toy Making on Up Trend

by PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — Make way for the doll with acid indigestion.

This wonder from the world of play weeps and rubs its tummy when fed. Only when treated with a hot water bottle does the thing stop its wretched crying.

The sick doll and talking furniture and talking piggy banks and baby dolls for boys are among playthings unveiled last week at the Toy Fair in New York, an event sponsored by the Toy Manufacturers of America.

The silliest thing at the fair for 9,000 out-of-town toy merchants: a witchcraft game — made in Salem, Mass., the place where witches once had a hard time.

Maybe before Christmas, and maybe later, the toy makers have in mind something to make parents cheer: toy packages that serve double duty — and toy packages that dissolve in water!

HERBERT R. SAND, vice president of Ideal Toy Corp., says that baby dolls for boys won't make sissies out of the little brothers of the land.

"This generation of parents will understand that there is a stage in the boy child's development in which doll play is valid and necessary," he said. "No shame and no sham."

The dolls of the '70s also will be more realistic. Foams that feel like skin will respond to weather or atmosphere — warm or cold, wet or dry, light or dark.

This might create a whole new market, of course, for play suntan lotions and underarm deodorants. You've got to do something for a doll that "sweats." Don't you?

After new developments in dolls, the craze in playland is space toys, mostly games, rockets, and vehicles connected with moon exploration.

THE TOY PEOPLE are feeling prosperous Sales of playthings last year hit $2,041,000,000 — up 11.9 per cent over the previous year and a record.

It took the industry 150 years to hit the first $1 billion mark in sales — and only seven years later to break through $2 billion.

Industry spokesmen expect the up trend to continue, although exact figures on sales for January won't be available until around March 10.

Sales of many other things are slowing as the economy cools, but toy spokesmen said that even during recessions toy sales usually continue good in relation to sales of other things.

Time, of course, will tell whether the parents will put the brakes on at the toy counter.

Richard M. Shure, executive vice president of the Strombecker Corp., a toy-making firm, had this to say:

"THE 'PROMISE' of the '70s is truly frightening, when one thinks of the problems that are resulting from our patterns of indiscriminate consumption and expansion.

"For my children's sake, I hope that sanity returns At the risk of selling fewer toys, I would like to see population controlled. I would also prefer to sell fewer toys to generations who may lose their values because of over-indulgence."

Suburban Living

ESPECIALLY FOR THE FAMILY

A Walk Down Memory Lane

THIS CALICO PATCHWORK quilt brings back memories to Mrs. Vauda Morris, left, as she tells Mrs. Roy Duda the origins of some of the cotton pieces. Mrs. Morris made the quilt 75 years ago.

It could have been a scene from 1870 as the women in their prim Victorian gowns sat on cane-backed chairs admiring a patchwork quilt.

But it was 1970 and the women, members of Mount Prospect Woman's Club, were getting in the mood for their sixth annual antiques show and sale to be held next Wednesday, Thursday and Friday in the Mount Prospect Community Center.

Oldest of the gowns was the 99-year-old egg shell wool challis worn by Mrs. Henry Peters. The gown, originally worn by Mrs. Peters' great-grandmother's sister-in-law, Lib Atherton, was handmade by Lib's bridegroom, Robert Newell, and Major Truax, the officer in charge at Ft. Lewiston, Idaho, in 1871.

THE MAJOR WAS known as a very fine tailor who also sewed uniforms for his officers. Robert, a descendant of the Newells who arrived on the Mayflower, was one of the first settlers in the Northwest. As government commissioner to the Indians, Robert traveled to Washington, D. C., in 1871, bringing back with him his bride. Lib became a teacher among the Indians and was active in the work with them.

Lib's gown, which was entirely handmade by the two men, is still in good condition and is completely lined with unbleached muslin.

Mrs. Donald R. Long, president of the club, wore the 60-year-old wedding gown originally worn by Mrs. Leo P. Newhouse's mother-in-law. Some of the elaborate details of the gown were a tucked panel edged in lace, flared tiers falling from below the hips to the floor and a high lace neckline with inset lace medallion.

Mrs. Newhouse plans to offer the gown to the new Mount Prospect Historical Society.

THE CLUB'S secretary, Mrs. Lee Becker, donned an afternoon tea dress from 1900. The dress, made of voile with sprigs of pale pink flowers and green leaves, was sewn by Mrs. Craig Olson's maternal grandmother, an active member of the Lake Grange Woman's Club. Like Mrs. Newhouse's gown, this gown also was made with a tucked front panel and inserts of val lace. The sleeves also were tucked and the lower portion of the skirt was done in larger horizontal tucks, falling to the floor.

The patchwork quilt admired by the women was the work of Mrs. Vauda Morris, who made the quilt when she was 14 years old. The quilt is now 75 years old, and Mrs. Morris recalls that it took her one year to complete.

THE CLUB'S antique show and sale will feature all manner of antiques and collectibles from 26 dealers as well as a curator service for visitors who wish to have family treasures authenticated as to origin, age or value.

A special feature will be demonstrations on canning, refinishing antiques and restoring old oil paintings.

Show hours will begin at 11 a.m. each day and close at 9:30 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday; 5 p.m. on Friday.

Snacks and lunches will be available all three days, and dinners will be served Wednesday and Thursday evenings.

Mrs. Charles Smith is chairman of the show, assisted by Mrs. George Hietanen, co-chairman. Ticket chairman is Mrs. Harold Beck, CL 5-6066. Tickets may also be obtained at the door or from any member of the club, and are good all three days of the show.

Proceeds of the show will go toward club philanthropies.

ALSO SPONSORING an antique show is the Junior Woman's Club of Palatine. The Juniors' show is being held today and Saturday at the Plum Grove Club, located off the 53 West Frontage Road. Annolyn Antiques is also managing the Juniors' show, which also features a curator service, catered dinner and luncheons.

Hours of the two-day Palatine show are 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Friday and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday. Tickets are available at the door.

GOWNS OF ANOTHER ERA were donned by Mount Prospect Woman's Club members as they made plans for their sixth annual antiques show and sale next week. Mrs. Henry Peters and Mrs. Donald R. Long strike an old-fashioned pose.

Pair Wed in Ecumenical Rite

An ecumenical ceremony, with both priest and Presbyterian clergyman officiating, united Kathy Adis of Bensenville and James E Dietz of Waukegan on Feb 7. The double ring nuptials took place in St. Raymond Church, Mount Prospect, and at the altar were Father Allen of St. Bede's Academy, Peru, Ill., and the Rev. Conway Ramseyer of Morton Grove Community Church

The bride is the daughter of Mr and Mrs George W Adis, 842 S Center St., Bensenville. She is a graduate of Fenton High School and Colorado State College at Greeley and now works in Chicago for Roland Employment Service

HER HUSBAND, son of Mr. and Mrs Victor Dietz of Waukegan, attended St Bede's Academy and was graduated from Western Illinois University. He is associated with the Trib in Hinsdale.

The couple had a two-week honeymoon in London and Paris after their wedding ceremony and reception The 5:30 p.m. nuptials were followed by a dinner reception at Nordic Hills Country Club for 150 guests.

As the bride was given in marriage by her father, she wore her mother's wedding gown of ivory satin with a chapel-length train. Over the dress she wore a mantilla of illusion with a scalloped alencon lace border and with medallions of the lace scattered on the length of the veil.

Her bouquet was composed of cymbidium orchids with stephanotis.

MRS. ROBERT CARLSON of Loveland, Colo., was matron of honor. She is the bride's sister. Her two-toned gown featured an ivory bodice and rouge velvet floor-length skirt, and she carried a bouquet of white and pink carnations and roses.

Best man was the groom's brother, Timothy Dietz.

Also in the wedding party were three bridesmaids Mrs. David Dehlinger of State College, Pa.; the groom's sister, Rita Dietz of Washington, D.C., and Mrs. Lee Williams of Chicago. All were gowned identically to the matron of honor.

SEATING THE WEDDING guests were Bill Twardy, Schiller Park, a cousin of the groom; John Caldwell, Minneapolis, and Tom Rafferty, Carol Stream.

As they greeted guests at the country club reception, Mrs. Adis wore a pale pink dress and coat ensemble with cymbidiums pinned to her handbag and Mrs. Dietz wore a deep pink gown with cymbidiums on her handbag.

Mr. and Mrs. James Dietz

The newlyweds have returned from their European honeymoon and are living at Fairway Trace Apartments in Des Plaines.

A Country Affair Is in the Air

A town and country dance featuring a country store and antique auction will highlight this year's annual affair of the Church of the Holy Ghost in Wood Dale, next Saturday, March 14, at the Elmhurst Country Club, beginning at 9 p.m.

Homemade bread, crackers and cheese, james, sausages and pickles will be on tap at the country store for snacks or taking home. The antique auction will feature such items as a 100-year-old chair, and the auctioneer will be Colonel Skeen of Roselle. Couples will be able to have a souvenir photo taken in the "picture-takin' parlour." Dress is optional, either city or country, but a contest will be held for the best western-type costume at the dance.

Regular dance music will be provided by the Fen-Tones and during intermission, Chuck Jaworski will do square dance calling.

Cochairmen of the dance are Mr. and Mrs. Thollander; donations and gifts, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Stejskal and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ifkovits; Mr. and Mrs. Steve Lupie are decorations chairmen; Mr. and Mrs. Paul Deering are in charge of tickets and handling the entertainment are the Jack Knaffs.

Golf Registration

Registration for the Buffalo Grove Women's Golf League is scheduled for Sunday, March 15, at 2 p.m. at Buffalo Grove Golf Club, 400 Lake Cook Road, Buffalo Grove.

Those unable to register in person may call Mrs. Walter Adams at the club, 537-5819.

Wailing Wall

Crying for wall art. Turn a tearful room into a cheerful room—with a wall grouping from the Gault Galleries. A carefully selected grouping brings out the individualism in a room and accents the beauty of your home. Bare space can titilate. But on a wall it isn't worth a tickle. Get curious call or come in now!

"Go Up" the down-staircase. It's funny. To find quality art in the suburbs of Chicago, you have to lower yourself—to the Arcade level of the Old Orchard Shopping Center. The come-down ends at the bottom step. The up lift begins as soon as you walk into the new Gault Galleries on the Arcade level.

Romance in Their Hearts

Christine Lakowski

Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Lakowski, 1202 W. Noyes St., Arlington Heights, are announcing the engagement of their daughter Christine Carol to Dennis John Iocco of River Grove. The Lakowski family formerly lived in Franklin Park.

Both Miss Lakowski and her fiance are graduates of East Leyden High School. She is attending Harper Junior College in the two-year nursing program, and Mr. Iocco is a junior at Ball State University, Muncie, Ind.

The wedding is planned for June 12, 1971.

Patricia Anne Jelinek

The engagement of Patricia Anne Jelinek to Thurston J. Meade, son of the Edward Meades of Rolling Meadows, is announced by Miss Jelinek's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy J. Jelinek, 703 S. Crestwood Lane, Mount Prospect.

A spring wedding is planned by the couple

Susan Jane Truckenbrod

Miss Susan Jane Truckenbrod's engagement to Kurt B. Swanson, son of the A. William Swansons of Palatine, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Truckenbrod of rueral Compton, Ill.

Miss Truckenbrod is a graduate of Rochelle High School and Luther College, Decorah, Iowa. She was affiliated with Lambda Chi Sorority while in college. The bride-to-be is now teaching second grade in Palatine.

Mr. Swanson, a Prospect High School and Luther College graduate, is employed by Moore Business Forms in Park Ridge. He was a member of Phi Gamma Omega Fraternity at Luther.

No wedding plans have been made yet by the couple.

The Potting Shed

by MARY B. GOOD

Somebody finally has found a good quality in the "stink tree."

Those of us who were raised in the urban asphalt are familiar with the tree of heaven (ailanthus), the ungainly, weedy-looking tree often called the "stink tree" because of the odor given off in spring by its white flowers.

But an assistant professor of forestry at Southern Illinois University says that the ailanthus altissima's pollution-tolerating quality more than offsets the odor.

This is one of the few trees, says Dr. Ali A. Moslemi, that can thrive in cities with a high level of air pollution. While all trees take in carbon dioxide from the air, burn it up in the photosynthesis process and give off oxygen, the tree of heaven grows rapidly under adverse conditions.

Does this mean that all we have to look forward to in the wa. of greenery is an ugly-looking weed tree, if air pollution increases?

A TEACHER ASKS: What are some easy and durable plants to grow in the classroom — and those that will live after a three-day weekend and teacher's institute?

Her problem is universal. Select plants with a low light requirement: dieffenbachia (dumb cane), dracaena, nephthytis, philodendron, sansevieria (mother-in-law tongue) or aspidistra (iron plant). To tolerate dry conditions, plant bromeliads or cacti, or consider water-grown plants such as sweet potatoes, avocados, hyacinths, paper narcissus (for spring).

You can keep house plants alive for about two weeks unattended by covering them with a polyethylene sheet, typing it to the pot or box to prevent moisture loss. Reduce lighting to eight hours a day. If you have time before leaving on a vacation, train the plants to get along with little water by cutting back gradually.

If not, give them a good drink before you leave, using what is called the funnel method: Insert the neck of a funnel into the soil and fill the funnel with water. When it empties, fill it again. When the water no longer drains from the funnel, stick your finger in the neck so the water will not run out; then remove funnel. Only the amount of water the soil can hold will leave the funnel — never too much. Plants watered thusly will not need another drink for several weeks.

TOUCHY TIME for grass: Walking on frozen grass cracks plant crowns, allowing disease to enter.

Forcing branches may be disappointing because of heavy sub-zero weather in January.

Purple martins, the natural enemy of mosquitoes and nature's answer to DDT abatement, can be enticed to take up residence in your backyard if you know what they like. The Illinois Audubon Society is offering free informational notes about the purple martin and free nest box plans for bluebirds too. Send a self-addressed stamped envelope to Bluebirds, Illinois Audubon Society, 1017 Burlington Ave., Downers Grove, Ill., 60515.

Book, Record Fair for St. Ansgar

All women of St. Ansgar's Parish, Hanover Park, are invited to attend the book and record fair at the general meeting of the St. Ansgar Council of Catholic Women Monday at 7:30 p.m. It will be held at the St. Peter Damian Church Hall, Bartlett.

Mass will be celebrated by Rev. Jerome F Riordan, pastor, at 7:30.

The new slate of officers will be presented and voted upon. After the brief business meeting, the women will have an opportunity to meet one another while browsing through and ordering or buying books and records.

There will be something of interest to all ages. A few of the titles are: The Bible Reader, Lovers in Marriage, The Future of Man, Achieving Sex Maturity, Vietnam — Crisis of Conscience, How To Read a Dirty Book and the Handbook for Catholic Parents.

Beta Sigma Phi Plans Tea for Prospects

Mrs. Mickey Redmond of Mount Prospect will be hostess to Xi Eta Rho Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi next Thursday. Plans will be made for a tea for prospective members on April 19.

Mrs. Marlene Hunt, a transferee from Rockford, was a guest at the group's Feb. 25 meeting. The program for the evening was on "Education in the High Schools," presented by Mrs. Frank Rhoback, a teacher at Cary High School.

She discussed classroom conduct, dress codes and requirements for graduation.

White Shirt Sales — Still In There

Despite great male fashion interest in colored shirts, you can't count out the staple white shirt. It still totals as much as 20-40 per cent of shirt sales in many stores, reports the Men's Fashion Association.

Sport suits, for town as well as country wear are gaining acceptance. So-called "non-suits" — vest suits, tunic suits, shirt suits — are a new fashion development for spring.

Especially for the Family

Sandra Ann Pegorsch

Green Bay, Wis., residents, the Marvin D. Pegorsches, are announcing the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Sandra Ann, to James M. Furst, son of the George A. Fursts, 2311 Goebbert Road, Arlington Heights. The wedding is set for May 16.

Miss Pegorsch, a Wheeling resident, is employed at United Air Lines, Mount Prospect. Mr. Furst, a graduate of Forest View High School, studied at Northern Illinois University and is employed by Shure Electric in Evanston.

Prospect Club Offers Scholarship Awards

The Prospect Heights Woman's Club is offering two scholarships of $200 apiece, applicable toward the first year of college to an eligible student from Hersey and Wheeling High Schools, and six scholarships from Wheeling or Hersey High School students attending the youth summer program.

Two music, two art and two conservation scholarships constitute the summer scholarship plan, for sophomore or juniors at the two high schools.

To be eligible, a student must be in the top half of his or her class and be a resident of Prospect Heights.

Students interested in any of the scholarship grants may contact their school counselor for further information.

Clipped Wings Host Countryside Party

The O'Hare chapter of Clipped Wings will present a champagne reception at Countryside Center for the Handicapped, Shirley Road, Palatine, Sunday, March 15, from 4 to 6 p.m.

Members of the parents' association, auxiliary, and staff at Countryside Center will join Clipped Wings members and their husbands at this "get-acquainted" affair. The public is invited to attend.

Tickets are available from Mrs Richard Reid at 437-8377 or Mrs. Tom Morgan at 255-0507.

Guild To Get Cooking Tips

St. Patrick's Day was chosen for the South Church Women's Guild luncheon this month, with Mrs. Donald K. Neal, a member of the guild, as featured spaeker. In a discussion on her lifetime hobby, "Adventures in Cooking," she will explain how she learned to cook for large groups and small, how to make advance plans for entertaining that go easy on the cook and how to use gourmet touches.

Emphasis will be placed on a combination of old fashioned and modern techniques in a display of some of her favorite dishes.

The guild luncheon on March 17 begins at 12:30 p.m. in the church fellowship hall. Reservations should be made with Mrs. Edwin Stevens, 253-1313.

MRS. NEAL is a graduate of Eastern Illinois University and a former teacher. She began her culinary hobby with quantity cooking as a child on her parents' Illinois farm. Weekly she and her mother prepared food for all who attended sales in her father's barn. This included preparation of 30 pies in a single morning.

Added experience came from helping in her uncle's tearoom for several summers. In recent years she has served church groups, at weddings and at scout camps.

Mrs. Neal and her husband live in Mount Prospect and have three married children.

PICKING A PRINT that will look best on them are Mrs. Ronald Leech, left; Mrs. Richard Patchin, Mrs. Gene Bobe and Mrs. G. William Castineau of Mount Prospect Junior Woman's Club. They will be modeling spring ensembles made by Ethel's Golden Thimble Fabric Shoppe, Prospect Heights, at a luncheon and show Saturday, March 14, at the Sheraton O'Hare. Tickets for "Fashions at Your Fingertips" are available by calling 437-2847.

Tryouts Next Week For 'Tom Jones'

Des Plaines Theatre Guild will hold auditions for their May production, "Tom Jones," Monday and Tuesday, beginning at 8 p m. in Guild Playhouse, 620 Lee St., Des Plaines.

Ed Sauer of Des Plaines, a long-time member of the community theater group and active in other theaters in the area, will direct the rollicking comedy and conduct the tryouts

The script for "Tom Jones" by playwright David Rogers is based upon Henry Fielding's famous 18th century novel about a "foundling" who finds himself constantly pursued by ladies of high and low estate

The cast of characters calls for 13 men and 11 women Everyone is invited to try out regardless of previous stage experience or participation in Des Plaines Theatre Guild

"With so many choice roles to cast, I am hoping for a large turnout of men and women at both tryout nights," said Sauer.

"THERE WILL ALSO be plenty of jobs behind the scenes to fill — set design and construction, costuming (always a major challenge in a period play), props, technical crew, etc., so we hope anyone who has ever thought he'd like to get involved in a live theater operation will join us Monday and/or Tuesday nights'"

"Tom Jones" will be presented for three weekends in May.

Current production of the Des Plaines Theatre Guild, now in its 24th consecutive season, is "Wait Until Dark," playng Fridays and Saturdays, March 6 through 21, at Guild Playhouse Ticket reservations, 296-1211 between noon and 8 p m.

Seville Barber, Opera Subject

"The Barber of Seville," joint product of an early U.S. creditor and a musical revolutionary, will be the subject of an operalogue to be presented for the Northwest Chapter of the Lyric Opera Guild Wednesday, 1 p.m. Hostess is Mrs. William Willy, 327 N Elmwood Lane, Palatine.

Few people realize that Beaumarchais, "The Barber's" librettist, was a financial benefactor of the United States colonies on a grand scale . . . or that conservative diehards cheered when the first performance of Rossini's musical adaptation was marred by a cat with footlight fever. But the wit and musical charm of the comedy itself are familiar to most opera-goers. Highlights of the story will be told by Mrs. Frank Alexander of Mount Prospect, with Mrs. Steven Bergstrom, dramatic soprano of Palatine, singing Rosina's tender soliloquy, "Una Voce Poco Fa "

Mrs. Alexander, whose profession, prior to the demands of child-rearing, was that of home economist, has long made music her avocation, having studied piano under a Viennese concert artist who fled Europe during the Nazi terrors.

A graduate of the University of Iowa with voice study under Harold Stark, Mrs. Bergstrom traces her professional career back to her high school days in Des Moines. Her solo roles for the Iowa Opera Theater and the Iowa Operalogues made her the youngest full-scale performer in the organizations. She is currently choir director for an Arlington Heights church

Guests are invited. A nominal fee is charged for non-members. Further information is available through the chapter president, Mrs. Robert Taylor, 438-6269

WHEN THIEVES FALL OUT, action abounds in Des Plaines Theatre Guild's production of "Wait Until Dark." Ron Mills and Vince Connolly rehearse for Friday's opening night. Ticket reservations, 296-1211 after noon.

Palatine Band Performs March 15

The Palatine Village Band will perform Sunday, March 15, at 7:30 p m. in the Wheeling High School Auditorium. The 60 piece concert band will be directed by John M Christie.

Special guest conductor will be composer, lecturer and director Vaclav Nelhybel His name is familiar among local high school students who have played his music, as well as area professional musicians.

Nelhybel was born in Czechoslovakia and studied composition and conducting at the Prague Conservatory of Music and musicology at the universities of Prague and Fribourg, Switzerland.

Since 1957 he has lived in New York, become a U.S. citizen, and is now active as composer, conductor and lecturer. Since 1964, he has conducted his music and lectured at the invitation of universities in more than 30 states.

The program will include the following compositions of his: "Prelude and Fugue," "Chorale," "Marcia Dorica" and "Suite Concertante."

Evans Restaurant

Conveniently located in Downtown Mount Prospect at 113 S. Emerson, near the train station, Evans Restaurant, open every day at 6 A.M., is one of the few restaurants in the area serving breakfast and for this reason is a favorite of early commuters.

For lunch, you can stop in for a quick sandwich or salad, or you can choose something more substantial like breaded pork tenderloin, steak or shrimp.

Serving dinner until 10:30 P.M. every day, the menu includes specialties such as Hungarian beef goulash, roast sirloin of beef au jus, and lobster tail.

The prices are attractive and we found the service excellent. Cocktails are also served.

'Viet Rock,' Effect of War

The Northwest Suburban Peace Coalition is sponsoring the presentation of Meghan Terry's "Viet Rock," a new type of progressive theater depicting the effect of the war on Vietnamese and American societies.

Directed by Jan Bina and presented by the "Loud Minority," a group of drama students from Mundelein and Loyola universities, this "happening" is tomorrow at Mill Run Playhouse, 8 p.m.

Curtis MacDougall, candidate for Congress in the 13th District, will also appear.

Tickets are available at the box office. For additional information, call 537-3939 or 392-7072.

Pianist Highlights Concert

Adrienne Bullock, pianist, will perform with the DuPage Symphony Orchestra Sunday, 3:30 p.m. at Downers Grove North High School. She will perform the Third Movement of Grieg's A Minor Concerto.

Adrienne was born in Bell, Calif., and began playing the piano at age 6. Her family moved to Elmhurst four years ago. Loving to sing, she is very active in the choir at York Community High School and has played for various women's groups in this area. She is presently a semi-finalist in the American Society of Musicians competition.

Adrienne Bullock

Bliss Michelson, string bass soloist, will perform the Dittersdorf Concerto for Bass and Orchestra. He is a regular member of the orchestra from West Chicago.

The remainder of the program will be: Schubert's Symphony No. 3 in D Major; Grieg's Norwegian Dance and A Night in Venice by Johann Strauss.

Tickets are available at the door. Children are admitted free if accompanied by an adult.

"David Copperfield," Soon To Reappear on Television

by VERNON SCOTT

UPI Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD UPI — Among television's most shining hours almost assuredly will be "David Copperfield," a video movie scheduled to beam March 15.

The cast includes Michael Redgrave, Ron Moody, Emlyn Williams, Richard Attenborough, Ralph Richardson as Mr. Micawber and Sir Laurence Olivier in a bit part.

Director Delbert Mann, who brought "Marty" to the screen, midwifed the two-hour show for American television and as a theatrical release elsewhere in the world.

Already in theaters in England, Mann has been criticized for tampering with the structures of the Dickens classic.

"I begin with David Copperfield as a grown man, and reveal his youth in retrospect," Mann said. "I felt we had to give it a modern interpretation and point of view to make it valid for today's audiences."

DICKENS IS SECOND only to Shakespeare in English literary sanctity. Any change is a sacrilege.

"The performers balked when I first contacted them," Mann said on his return from London where the film was made. "But after reading the script they were enthusiastic.

"It's been 35 years since 'David Copperfield' was produced as a movie with Freddie Bartholomew in the title role and W. C. Fields as Micawber.

"Today it is a classic museum piece.

"Techniques of film-making today are altogether different. Audiences are looking for different things. And we've tried to take that approach."

Mann, a dedicated student of film techniques, said, "The critics haven't quarreled with re-interpreting Shakespeare. But Dickens in another matter, perhaps because his work is seldom done on film.

"DICKENS' WRITINGS were a total reflection of his times. And the unique thing is that the problems of his day exist today."

"I haven't seen the old movie version since it was first released," Mann said. "Our interpretation remains faithful and true to the book but with the knowledge that a very few people have seen the original film and even fewer have read the book recently.

"We've done our best," he concluded. "We think it's excellent."

Tri-Village Theatre Cancels Meeting

Because the dress rehearsal for "I Remember Mama" falls on the evening of the regular monthly meeting, the Tri-Village Theatre Guild will dispense with the general meeting next Wednesday.

Anyone interested in more information on the group may contact the president, William S. Keller, that evening at Tefft Junior High School in Streamwood.

"I Remember Mama" will open next Friday, March 13. Performances will also be March 14, 20 and 21. Tickets are available at the door.

Jewish Women Discuss

The formation of a section of the National Council of Jewish Woman will be discussed at a meeting in the home of Mrs. Jerome Ross, 660 Greenfield, Hoffman Estates at 8:30 p.m. next Thursday.

The organization includes 100,000 women throughout the United States dedicated to educating for action and providing volunteer services in the community.

The dessert meeting is open to interested area women.

Barnaby's Opens

A new restaurant is soon to open which will be a blend of 17th Century England and 20th Century America, stirred gently with the concept of self-service and family dining.

The name? Barnaby's, an old English village inn, providing food and drink for the entire family.

It is scheduled to open some time this month, 933 W. Rand Road, Arlington Heights.

The unit will be owned and managed by James O'Toole. Barnaby's is a restaurant for the entire family, designed for casual dining pleasure.

'Round The Corner

The Art Rental and Sales Gallery of The Woman's Board of The Art Institute of Chicago opened its spring exhibition of oils, sculpture, watercolors, prints and drawings by Chicago area artists yesterday. The Art Rental and Sales Gallery was begun in 1954 to acquaint a wider public with contemporary Chicago art, to make works of art available to new collectors and to offer local artists an opportunity to be shown in a central location under museum direction. All of the works in the Gallery are selected by a jury. Purchase prices range from $50 to $1,500 and rental prices from $10 to $55.

Beethoven's only opera, "Fidelio," will be presented for the first time in its entirety, in concert form, by the Chicago Symphony Orchestra Thursday, Saturday and Monday, March 12, 14 and 16, in Orchestra Hall. Music Director Georg Solti will conduct the performances, which will include the Chicago Symphony Chorus and seven guest soloists. Performances will be 8:15 p.m. Thursday, 8:30 p.m. Saturday and 2 p.m. Monday.

A grand galaxy of animal acts, clowns, daredevil acrobats and other circus acts will come to Chicago at Medinah Temple, 600 N. Wabash Ave., Tomorrow and continue through March 22. The proceeds of the circus, as usual, will go to the Medinah Welfare and Activities Fund.

Kathy Garver, familiar to television audiences as the older sister, Cissy, on Family Affair, stars in "Under the Yum-Yum Tree" at Pheasant Run Playhouse now through March 22. In the comedy by Lawrence Roman, Kathy plays a young girl who takes over her aunt's apartment and decides to share it — platonically — with the young man she plans to marry in order to test their compatibility. She soon finds out that a nosy, amorous bachelor landlord comes with the apartment.

Midwest Boat Show Opens

The new Midwest Boat Show has taken a tack for consumer concern. The show, which will run today through March 15 at the Arlington Park Exposition Center, will distribute its own Buyer's Guide emphasizing boat safety, quality and value.

Edward T. Poloway, owner of North Shore Marine in Waukegan and president of the Central Marine Chamber of Commerce, has suggested a handy outline for buyers who must consider the new technology of boat building.

"A boat — even the contemplation of acquiring one — is a release of the spirit," says Poloway. "It is also an investment whose safety, performance and enduring value must be carefully considered."

Speaking primarily of power boats — of any size — Poloway urges buyers to ask themselves several important questions: "How safe is it for all contemplated use and for unexpected blows? How seaworthy and responsive is it likely to prove? How many passengers will it carry? What (for outboards) horsepower motor will it take? Can it be used as an all purpose boat . . . for fishing, water skiing, cruising and with sufficient power for rough water?

Poloway suggests a number of steps in selecting a boat:

"First, select a boat to fit your needs for fishing, skiing, cruising, or yachting. Then select price range you feel you can afford. After this, check the best buy and look at the boat's rated passenger capacity and rated horsepower — both these factors relate to how the boat is constructed for sea worthiness.

Since the majority of boats are fiberglass, an important fact is the weight of the hull. Normally, light weight hulls denote cheap construction.

The new techniques of building a quality fiberglass boat require full length fiberglass cloth — not spray on or patches. They require more layers of fiberglass cloth — up to 18 at stress points. Quality is also determined by the thickness of the outer gel coat. Thin gel coats are a short cut and sometimes lead to painted hulls to cover flaws. Quality is greatest where the wood stringers are fully covered with fiberglass, which of course will outlast exposed wood.

The Midwest Boat Show will give buyers and "lookers" a chance to apply standards of construction and cost and to compare values among all of the country's leading manufacturers.

During the boat show, a special presentation will be made to Mrs. Katherine Keitel of Highland Park. She was the winner of a national contest sponsored by Winner boats. She was lucky enough to have been picked to win a Winner boat, Evinrude motor and trailer.

The threesome retails for $2650. The boat is a 15-footer with a 60 horsepower motor and a 1,000 pound capacity trailer. The award will be presented by an official from the Sports Chalet of Rolling Meadows.

Admission at the door will be $2 for adults and $.75 for children.

BETTER MOVE, mark, is what Fremd's Rick Gaare is thinking here as the Viking senior trys to drive past Hersey's Mark Lindstrom (34) in semi-final play Wednesday. Gaare contributed 14 points and some steady all-around play, but the Vikings were ousted from tourney play, 67-53.

National Boating Test Set

The Public Relations Office of the Skokie Valley Power Squadron, a unit of the United States Power Squadrons, urges everyone to join the thousands of other pleasure boaters in America to test his knowledge of safe boating practices at 3:30 p.m. (CST) Sunday, March 15, when the NBC Channel 5 Television Network presents "The National Boating Test."

The program represents the first time a network special will be directed exclusively to boating enthusiasts. Moreover, the nature of the show makes it a giant step forward in boating safety education.

The half-hour color special hosted by TV personality and United States Power Squadrons member, Ed Herlihy, presents 20 piloting and safety practice questions which every boater will face sooner or later if he leaves the security of his mooring or trailer. Viewers will participate in the show by identifying the safe boating practice or rule required to meet each situation. In some cases, viewers are asked to identify the unsafe practice illustrated.

Although only a pencil and paper are necessary to participate in the test, official test answer forms are available from Johnson Motors or its local dealers who are sponsoring the TV special.

Typical situations, illustrated from a "helmsman's seat" viewpoint, are: meeting another boat head-on, boats approaching from the left and right, and overtaking situations. The test also covers knowledge of common buoys, signal flags and pennants and dangerous boating and waterskiing practices.

All questions in the "National Boating Test" are based on Charles Chapman's "Piloting, Seamanship and Small Boat Handling," the standard text used by all member units of the United States Power Squadrons in their boating education classes offered locally in the fall and winter.

Viewers will participate in the show by comparing their scores on the test, to a rating scaled from "excellent" to "poor." If you don't do too well, perhaps it is good that you now know what you don't know!

The "National Boating Test" was written by Norman Schultz, Johnson Motors, and produced by NBC by Richard Matt at Cypress Gardens, Fla.

Information on the United States Power Squadrons safe boating, 12-week "in depth" course, can be obtained from Harmon Deal, Public Relations Officer, 1029 Hunter Road, Glenview, Illinois, evenings.

MIKE KINNEMAN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Kinneman of Arlington Heights, was one of the players under consideration for a spot on the Culver-Stockton College basketball team which competed in the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics District playoff. Kinneman, a 5-foot-9 freshman guard, is a graduate of Forest View High School, where he was all-conference. The Canton, Mo., college took a 17-8 record into the playoff which determines the district representative to the national tournament.

Palatine Trackmen Top Grove

Palatine captured first places in nine of 13 events to defeat Elk Grove, 69-40, in an indoor track meet at Elk Grove last Saturday.

Elk Grove had two double winners, accounting for all four of its firsts, and Palatine had one. The Pirates' Henry Schneipp won the shot put (46-6½) and the high jump (5-6). For the Grenadiers, Mike Michels won the long jump (19-8) and 440-yard dash (:56.3) and Mark Lichter took the 50-yard high hurdles (:8.5) and the 50-yard low hurdles (:7.9).

Other individual winners, all for Palatine, were Guy Zajonc in the pole vault (13-0), Fitzgerald in the 50-yard dash (:5.8), Miller in the half-mile run (2:09.5), Camp in the mile run (4:44.5) and Davenport in the two-mile run (10:17.2).

Palatine also won both relays, taking the four-lap relay with a 1:15.1 time and the eight-lap relay with a 2:40.2 clocking.

Hersey Romps

A pair of wins by Skip Peterson, domination in both relay races and a sweep in the pole vault helped Hersey launch its indoor track campaign with a 78 2/3 to 30 1/3 verdict over visiting Wheeling Tuesday.

Peterson and mate Kurt Kieffer zoomed home one-two in the low hurdles after Skip had clocked in at 5.6S to easily capture the 50-yard dash runoff. Kieffer also managed a partial first of his own, knotting with Huskie Gordon Halcrow and Wildcat Joel Olsen for the blue ribbon in the high hurdles test.

In the pole vault Leon Zasadny cleared 12 feet to win handily with Huskie teammates Gary Swanson and Tom Dean nabbing the second and third slots with 11-6 and 10-0 jumps in that order. Other individual firsts for Art Steele's host thinclads included Terry Castre with a 18-5½ long jump, Tom Gehr with a 56.0 timing in the 440, Jim Heuer with a 5-8 high jump and Greg Gawlik with a 4:49.5 carding in the mile race.

John Johnson and Frank Savage were the only other triumphant Wildcats. Savage hit the tape at 2:08 to win the 880 run and Johnson captured two-mile honors with a 10:43 finish.

Hersey earned the four-lap relay victory with a 60.2 timing and breezed in at 3:45.0 to gain the nod in the 12-lap affair. The hosts also won the frosh-soph phase of the meet, 89-28.

VALUABLE HUSKIE. A steady performer for Hersey in its two regional tourney triumphs this week has been 6-5 senior Don Spry, here delivering a jump shot as Fremd's Larry Hanks closes in on defense. Spry has been in double figures in both games and has also given Hersey some steady rebounding. The Huskies advanced Wednesday by toppling Fremd, 67-53.

St. Joseph Cagers Roll On

It was another clean sweep Sunday for the three basketball teams of St. Joseph (Wheeling) Junior High, all of which topped St. Mary's of Fremont Center.

The eighth-grade team ran its record to 10-2 as Bill Passolt scored 22 points to pace a 46-29 victory. With one game remaining, the eighth graders are in second place, a game out of first, and will play the leading team in an effort to gain a tie.

The seventh graders, who have already clinched the title in their division, also made their record 10-2 with a 63-12 romp over St. Mary's. Mike Brushkiewicz scored 13 points and Ed Kruk 11.

The sixth graders, also champions, kept their record spotless at 12-0 with a 34-4 walloping. John Muno led the way with 13 points.

Each team still has one more conference game left against St. Peters of Antioch. No date has yet been set as these will be makeup games.

The St. Joseph seventh grade team is involved this week in the District 12 Mid Suburban Conference Invitational tournament at Holmes Junior High in Wheeling. The tourney started Monday and will run through Friday, with the championship game that night.

'Countdown to Championship' Planned During Cage Finals

"Countdown to Championship," a sports department documentary special reviewing highlights via tape of the quarter and semi-final tournament games of the Illinois State High School Basketball Tournament, will be colorcast Saturday, March 21, at 6:30 p.m., on Channel 9.

The 63rd Annual IHSA tournament will be telecast live and in color by WGN Television on Channel 9, Friday and Saturday, March 20 and 21, direct from the 16,000 seat Assembly Hall of the University of Illinois at Champaign.

The quarter-finals will be telecast Friday, March 20 at 7 p.m., with the semi-final games telecast Saturday, March 21 at 12 noon and the finals beginning that evening at 7 p.m., on Channel 9.

"Countdown to Championship," which will precede the telecast of the IHSA finals also features a discussion of the state high school basketball picture by four of the great stars from previous state tournaments: Lou Boudreau, Thornton High School, Harvey; George Wilson and Irv Bemoras of Marshall High School, and Max Hooper of Mount Vernon High School.

Jack Jacobson is the executive producer with producers Jack Rosenberg, William Lotzer and Arne Harris. Production manager for the special is Don Knautz.

"Countdown to Championship" is being sponsored on Channel 9 by The International House of Pancakes.

BEATING THE ODDS. Outnumbered two to one, Fenton's Chuck Zempel grabs rebound from Tom Bernton and Tim Dorgan (34). Zempel sparked a fourth quarter comeback that saw the Bisons tie Addison Trail, but the Blazers won the regional battle 72-69 in overtime.

Blazers Best Bisons in Bitter Overtime Battle

by TIM E. YOUNG

Addison Trail and Fenton squared off Tuesday night and battled into a tense, dramatic overtime period in their first round regional clash at Wheaton North.

And when the bitter struggle had ended, the Blazers had moved into the semi-finals with a heart-pounding 72-69 victory

The Bisons had played an aggressive, determined ball game, but when the final buzzer sounded, the season had ended for the boys from Bensenville.

Addison never trailed in the overtime, taking a quick four-point lead with one minute remaining. Fenton climbed back gamely to tie the score with 33 seconds left. Then the Blazers' fine forward, Jerry Herbord got open, scored a three-point play with eight seconds left, and that ended the scoring for the night.

The game began with both teams playing ragged ball. Trail was cold, and Fenton didn't look for their big scorer, Ed Sabia. The result was a low-scoring first quarter, unnecessary fouls, and a lukewarm crowd. Sabia hit only one field goal in this time, and that came with only seven seconds remaining Trailing by one the Blazers began to move in the second quarter. They took the lead with 2:53 left in the quarter on reserve center Bill Singer's rebound shot. Fenton seemed to slip further into a quagmire of futility rivaling that of Addison as they quickly found themselves behind by five at intermission.

Neither team was hitting with any regularity in the first half, as exhibited by the field goal percentages. Fenton hit 32 per cent from the floor, while Addison contributed only 30 per cent. Addison was not much better from the charity line, a problem they have had all season, hitting only 11-16.

In the third quarter, Sabia rallied his team with a fine all around performance, and the action was fairly even. The only major development was the fourth foul called on the Blazers' starting guard, Ken Birner. He was replaced at the 3:18 mark, with his team possessing an eight point lead, 47-39, but when the quarter ended, the lead was back to five, 52-47.

Fenton put on a terrific display of determination in the fourth quarter, and when it seemed that they had the game locked, up jumped the devil, or should I say Tom Bernston, and the Blazers forced an overtime.

The quarter began with Addison stretching their lead to nine points at the 4:52 mark, 60-51. Sabia and center Chuck Zempel started to pick up the pieces for the Bisons. In one stretch of three minutes, Fenton scored 10 straight points before Birner broke the dry spell for the Blazers

Sports

at the 1:16 mark, notching the score 69-62, in Fenton's favor

But with 43 seconds remaining, Sabia fouled out and a three point lead was not enough. Bernston, not renowned for his foul shooting, sank three free throws in 25 seconds to tie the game. The overtime belonged to Addison, and so did the game

Fenton was led by their slick junior, Sabia, who hit 22 points and pulled down numerous rebounds. Guard Bill Bonner hit 20, and along with backcourt mate, Carlos Villarreal, gave the Blazers fits all night. Zempel also got into double figures with 12 points.

Addison received fine balanced scoring, as four players got into double figures, Birner leading the way with 21 points. Herbord ended with 16, and Bernston and Landrum both got 11.

The season ended for Fenton Tuesday night, but they played a tremendous game. They did everything but win, and now they are left to look forward to next year, which shouldn't be too difficult, as they have all but one starter (Zempel) returning.

For Addison, it's on to the semi-finals.

AWAY FROM THE battle. On the fringe of the backboard battleground, Fenton's Ed Sabia (45) follows flight of ball as it bounces free of combatants. Sabia scored 22 points, but Addison Trail triumphed 72-69 in overtime to move into the semi-final of the Wheaton North regional.

Dial 394-1700 For Tourney Facts

Morning is a time for waking up and drinking coffee, moving slowly and contemplating the hours of the day ahead.

IT ISN'T a time for strapping on 15 pounds of equipment and taking to the ice to absorb the kind of physical punishment and emotional strain that are part of the flashing, dashing, crashing world of hockey

Yet several times during the just-concluded season, the College of DuPage hockey squad was forced to play a game at 8 30 in the morning And it isn't really that unusual

"There aren't many rinks around," says DuPage coach Herb Salberg, "and there are so many teams and leagues sprouting up that you just have to take any ice time that is available."

The players themselves have rather mixed reactions to sunrise hockey.

"Actually, I think it's worse in the middle of the day," said one, "because you have classes in between. You can't really concentrate on hockey and get yourself emotionally ready while you're in class"

Said another, grumpily, "8:30 in the morning is just too early to be playing hockey"

Early or not, everyone is always there, says Salberg.

"Kids today want to play hockey so badly that they will go at six in the morning, one in the morning, on ponds, rivers, anywhere."

Evidence of the hockey craze sweeping the land is the growth of the program at College of DuPage in three years.

It started as an intramural program. The turn-out was so great and the talent so obvious that the Chaparrals put together a team the second year that finished 8-6-2. This year the team won its first 13 games before losing the finale.

"We had 43 kids come out for the team," says Salberg who played no organized hockey himself but developed a burning interest in the sport and built a junior college team that is one of the finest college hockey aggregations in the state. "We eventually cut down to 25, and since we only dress 18-19 players for a game, six guys have to sit out every game.

"But all 25 show up for every practice. Like I said, these guys really want to play hockey."

In addition to the team, DuPage has retained its intramural program and still draws 50-60 kids for that. Since those trying out for the team are not allowed to play intramural hockey, it means that some 100 DuPage students are playing college-connected hockey.

The intramural action starts the first week of November and continues through the first two weeks of December. Varsity hockey starts in mid-December and ends the last week of February.

The programs don't run concurrently simply because of the difficulty (or perhaps the impossibility) of getting ice time for both.

And as far as Salberg is concerned, a lack of ice is the only present obstacle to the further expansion and growth of a sport that is already rising to unparalleled heights of popularity.

Two years ago DuPage became the first junior college in the Midwest to form a hockey team, and this season Morton and Triton joind the ranks. In addition, Prairie State, Joliet, and Harper boast hockey now on a club basis.

"There's no doubt about it," says Salberg, "the only thing holding hockey back is the ice. Hopefully, with the interest growing so tremendously every year, more and more hockey rinks will open up.

"But until then you're going to have that problem of playing at odd hours or not playing at all."

Salberg says that there's talk of a junior college hockey league next year in Oak Park (at the Ridgeland Commons Rink, the Chaparrals "home" ice) that would include Triton, Morton, Harper, Prairie State, Joliet, and possibly Kankakee.

"There are no definite plans yet, of course, but we're pushing for the formation of this kind of league. It would entail a lot of travel for some schools, and then you don't know what time you'd be playing, so there are a lot of things to be ironed out.

"Unfortunately, the longer you wait, the less your chances of getting good ice time."

And so you play at 8:30 in the morning.

Nothing like a good, crunching board check as a quick waker-upper.

STORMING THE NET. College of DuPage has two men moving in with a lone defenseman back. The Chaparrals, who won this game 14-1, finished the season with a 13-1 record after winning their first 13 games. Included in the outstanding season was a 4-0 victory over Northwestern.

Forest View Regains Maine South's Respect

by PAUL LOGAN

There was a score to settle as far as Forest View was concerned when it took to the court for the first semifinal game at the Conant Regional Tournament Wednesday night.

The Falcons were out to get some revenge for the lopsided (79-38) loss handed them in the regional championship contest the year before by Maine South.

Coach Ken Arneson's young men regained any respectability they might have lost in 1969 with an astounding second half comeback. Riding the crest of 61 per cent shooting in the last 16 minutes of play, the Falcons came from 14 points behind to five. The co-champions of the Central Suburban League were on the ropes and plenty of time (3:10) remained.

However, three costly Falcon turnovers put the game out of reach as the Hawks gained a title shot with an 81-69 victory. Maine South will now shoot for its third straight regional championship tonight at 7:30.

"The boys did a real good job out there," said Arneson after the disappointing setback. "They just didn't get a break. With a break or two there in the last three minutes, it could have gone the other way."

For the first 13 minutes after intermission, the Falcons made their own breaks in their desperate charge for glory. And the leader of this sweeping surge back from a 42-28 halftime deficit was Wayne Meier. Getting nearly half (10) his team's points in that period, Meier and his mates fired an amazing shooting percentage of 75 per cent in outscoring the Hawks 22-16.

But as the final quarter began, the Falcons still found themselves eight behind (58-50). Keith Phillips, who jumped center, got the opening tip and raced in for a layup. Seconds later, Meier also drove in to narrow the margin to six.

The Maine advantage, however, climbed back up to seven points as Greg Schmelzer, the Hawks' 6-7 all-state candidate, converted a free throw, the foul sending Phillips to the bench for the night. Schmelzer missed his second free throw but the ball slipped out of a Falcon's hand and out of bounds. Then Schmelzer connected from outside and they held a nine-point cushion, 63-54.

Meier hit on a free throw and, after Greg Shevell blocked an attempt by Mike Nevins, Dave Long converted it into two more points and narrow the margin again, 63-57. Forest View failed to cut the lead even more on a missed one-and-one situation and Russ Hylen put South up by eight after that. Meier just missed executing a three-point play but brought Forest View within six again.

Nevins hit from outside and Meier answered it with another driving layup. After Ron Norlander sank a free throw, Meier bombed one in from the free throw line and the Falcons were just five back. That was the closest they were to come, however. A Maine steal, a failure to control the ball and a lost jump ball put the Hawks out of reach, 76-63.

Forest View, which finished with a 12-11 season mark, kept on fighting up until the last, but the Hawks hit on five of six free throws and snuffed out the threat.

Just as Meier accounted for most of scoring in the second half with 19 points, Schmelzer was the dominating factor in the first half. Behind his scoring, the Hawks pulled out to a first quarter lead of 17-11 and then appeared to be in the process of blowing the Falcons off the court in period two.

THE BEST IN Sports

After Forest View cut the lead to 17-14 on a basket by Rich Olson and a free throw by Phillips, Coach Bernie Brady's bunch began to make its move. Hitting from the line on seven of eight the Hawks increased their advantage to 24-17. Then they directed their attention during the final five minutes solely to field goal accuracy.

With Schmelzer doing most of the damage underneath, the Hawks outscored Forest View 18-11 enroute to a 54 per cent first half clip. The final Falcon basket being a 15-footer by Ed Bansfield as the buzzer sounded. This timely shot gave some foreshadowing of what was to come in the wild second half.

"I thought he was outstanding," said Arenson of Meier. "The thing I liked most of all was that the kids were looking for him so that we could get the points. Considering the competition, Meier had his best game of the year."

The 6-2 senior finished with 22 points, a career high. Forest View displayed excellent senior balance — Dave Long (14), Greg Shevell (10), Olson (10) and Phillips (9).

Schmelzer, who was nearly unstopable as he totaled 32 points, was followed by Nevins with 16, Norlander with 13 and Jim Williams with 10.

Both teams were quite even in field goal shooting for the entire game — Forest View with .508 and Maine South with .500.

Mount Prospect to Field Legion Baseball Entry!

THE BEST IN / Sports

by LARRY EVERHART

For the first time in four years, Mount Prospect boys will have a chance this summer to play American Legion baseball.

Mount Prospect State Bank is fully financing a team for the town's legion post 525, thanks to the work of two interested citizens — Dick Grigsby, who will coach the team, and Red Rush.

Grigsby said he and Rush have been working on starting a Mount Prospect legion team for about a year. Rush, whose son Casey is a fine athlete at Prospect High School, is a well-known Chicago sportscaster who broadcasts White Sox baseball, Loyola basketball and college football games on WMAG radio.

The Mount Prospect team will be the eighth member of the Ninth District, the other league members being Arlington Heights, Palatine, Wheeling, Logan Square, Des Plaines, Park Ridge, River Grove and possibly Portage Park. The new team's home field will likely be at Prospect High School, though this is not yet certain.

"Grigsby and Rush approached us with the idea, which Rush has pushed very hard," said Legion Post 525 Commander Joe Grittani.

"There's not too much money in our treasury, but we told these men that if they could dig up finances from another source — which they were conviced they could — that we could have a team.

"The uniforms will have our legion patches and Mount Prospect State Bank will have its name on the backs. They're financing the whole thing — providing $750 for uniforms, bats, balls and other equipment. In addition, each boy will be assessed $5 for insurance, which is required."

Explaining why Mount Prospect has not had a legion team for the past three summers, Grittani said, "In the interim years, there has not been enough enthusiasm for coaching, managing and organization."

Prospect High School has run a summer baseball program in a league which is designed for younger players and instruction-oriented. Special rules are used and competition is not as high in caliber as legion ball since no boy may play who has graduated from high school. In legion ball, boys up to 18 years old may play — thus including those who have graduated and even some who have attended college for a year.

"Kids this age have to have something to do," said Grigsby. "In legion ball they have had good competition and get to play kids they don't know, which I feel is important. It's a good challenge for them and gets them doing something constructive. We have some fine boys very interested and expect to have a real good team."

Grittani summed up the general feeling when he said, "We think the whole program is great."

Dave Hasbach No. 8 On Area Scoring List

Dave Hasbach became the fourth Palatine basketball player in history to reach the Paddock area's all-time top ten scoring list.

Hasbach, the leading scorer in the Mid-Suburban League this season and an All-Conference selection, scored 21 points against St. Viator Tuesday night in the Arlington Regional tournament to vault into eighth place in the all-time rankings.

The 6-2 center's effort on Tuesday moved him ahead of Forest View's Pat Dunnigan, Arlington's Chuck Close and Wheeling's Carl Fricke. Hasbach tallied 871 points in his three-year varsity career at Palatine.

Ron Kozlicki, former Palatine great, leads the all-time scoring list with 1,562 points. The top 10 rounds out with Tom Lundstedt of Prospect, Steve Allen of Arlington, Chuck Grandt of St. Viator, John Seebausen of Palatine, Paul Schrage of Palatine, Frank Hogan of St. Viator, Hasbach, Dunnigan and Close. Eleventh on the all-time list is Fricke followed by Jack Bastable of Wheeling, George Pomey of Prospect and George Bork of Arlington.

Hasbach led the Mid-Suburban League in rebounding as a junior and was third this year behind Fremd's Randy Hague and Hersey's Andy Pancratz.

The 205 pound senior has also been named to All-Conference football and baseball teams in his athletic career at Palatine.

Vienna's Dozen Butter's Bread For Brookport

VIENNA, ILL. UPI — Brookport, which lost on the basketball floor, 71-41, to Vienna Monday night in the Vienna regional, was back against Cave-in-Rock in the first semifinal game of the tourney.

Vienna was disqualified by the Illinois High School Association for dressing 12 players instead of 10. Twelve are permitted during the regular season but only 10 during tournament play.

The school decided not to contest the disqualification.

At Rolling Meadows

In the Winston Park Mixed Be Kelley covered the 3-7 split and Phil Lofgren had an all-spare game . . . In the 500s were George Hubbard with a 568, Phil Lofgren with a 549, Dot Wilkens with a 516, and Joan Lofgren with a 502.

'Y' Boys Turn in Strong Showing in District Event

by JEAN FUNK

The Northwest Suburban YMCA boys Swim Team, coached by John Eliot, made an excellent showing at the preliminaries of the District I Boys Swim Championships, held Saturday at George Williams College.

At the end of the preliminaries NWS led the other 19 Chicago area teams in total points, and will have swimmers entered in 38 of the 41 events at the finals, to be held Sat., March 14 at George Williams College.

NWS swimmers also won State Meet berths in 22 of the 41 events by meeting the qualifying times during the prelims, and hope to qualify more during the finals. The State Meet will be held in Springfield April 4. The Cadet Division (8 and under) bettered state qualifying times for all events, and the Intermediate Division (15-17 yr.) qualified in all except the 200 yd. freestyle.

The NWS Intermediate Division set four District Meet records. Rick Schwarting, of Barrington, broke two individual records: 100 yd. backstroke (1:02.3) and the 200 yd. Individual Medley (2:16.4). Phil Nychay broke the 100 yd. Butterfly record (59.8) and Rick Schwarting, Terry Lemberger, Phil Nychay, and Phil Philbin broke the 200 yd. Medley Relay record (1:53.6).

There were seven team records set during the prelims: Midget 50 yd. Backstroke - Tom Gran (36.4); Junior 200 yd. Medley Relay - Dave Larsen, Ross Peterson, Eric Porter, Jeff Arhart (2:00.3); Junior 200 yd. Individual Medley - Dave Sehnert (2:28.0); Junior 100 yd. Breaststroke - Ross Peterson and Dave Sehnert (tie - 1:12.9); Intermediate 200 yd. Individual Medley - Rick Schwarting (2:16.4); Intermediate 100 yd. backstroke - Rick Schwarting (1:02.3); Intermediate 100 yd. Breaststroke - Terry Lemberger (1:12.3).

CADETS: 100 yd. Medley Relay - Mark Funk, Gary Stark, Russ Mate, Scott Koester, 2nd place (1:15.5); 25 yd. Freestyle - Tom Behnke, 2nd place (15.8); 25 yd. Butterfly - Russ Mate, 3rd Place (18.4) and Mike Lucansky 6th place (19.6); 25 yd. Backstroke - Mark Funk 2nd place (18.8); 25 yd. Breaststroke - Gary Stark, 1st place (20.7); 50 yd. Freestyle - Tom Behnke, 3rd place (36.2); 100 yd. Freestyle Relay - Tom Behnke, Mark Funk, Scott Koester, Russ Mate, 2nd place (1:07.6).

MIDGETS: 200 yd. Medley Relay - Tom Gran, Mike Walsh, Dan Jump, Dave Doehler, 4th place (2:31.9); 100 yd. Individual Medley - Jon Newcomer, 6th place (1:24.8); 50 yd. Butterfly - Dan Jump, 5th place (37.8); 100 yd. Freestyle - Chris Stewart, 5th place (1:14.3); 50 yd. Backstroke - Tom Gran, 2nd place (36.4) and John Eliot, 4th place (38.8); 50 yd. Breaststroke - Marty Geisler, 5th place (42.4); 200 yd. Free Relay - Chris Stewart, Marty Geisler, John Eliot, Dave Doehler, 5th place (2:13.5)

PREPS: 200 yd. Medley Relay - Gary Takata, Brad Busse, Rob Carstens, Gary Gruenwald, 3rd place (2:13.4); 100 yd. Individual Medley - Gary Takata 6th place (1:19.4); 50 yd. Butterfly - Rob Carstens, 6th place (32.1); 6th place (35.1); 50 yd. Breaststroke - Brad Busse, 4th place (36.5); 50 yd. Freestyle - Greg Newcomer, 2nd place (28.4); 200 yd. Free Relay - Brad Busse, Gary Takata, Gruenwald, Greg Newcomer, 3rd place (1:58.1)

JUNIORS: 200 yd. Medley Relay - Dave Larsen, Ross Peterson, Eric Porter, Jeff Arhart, 1st place (2:00.3); 50 yd. Freestyle - Jeff Arhart, 3rd place (26.2); 200 yd. Individual Medley - Dave Sehnert, 1st place (2:25.0) and Ross Peterson, 6th place (2:36.7) 100 yd. Butterfly - Eric Porter, 5th place (1:13.3); 100 yd. Backstroke - Dave Larsen, 5th place (1:12.5); 100 yd. Freestyle - Ken Bergman, 6th place (1:04.9); 100 yd. Breaststroke - Dave Sehnert and Ross Peterson, tie for 1st place (1:12.9); 200 yd. Free Relay - Dan Hannigan, Dave Sehnert, Eric Porter, Jeff Arhart, 1st place (1:46.5)

INTERMEDIATES: 200 yd. Medley Relay - Rick Schwarting, Terry Lemberger, Phil Nychay, Phil Philbin, 1st place (1:53.6) 200 yd. Freestyle - Screven Farmer, 2nd place (2:19.1); 50 yd. Freestyle - Phil Philbin, 1st place (24.7) and Jim Smoker, 3rd place (26.0); 200 yd. Individual Medley - Rick Schwarting, 1st place (2:16.4) and Jim Tull, 4th place (2:36.0); 100 yd. Butterfly - Phil Nychay, 1st place (59.8) and Jim Smoker, 5th place (1:15.2); 100 yd. Freestyle - Phil Nychay, 1st place (55.0); and Screven Farmer, 3rd place (59.9) 100 yd. Backstroke - Rick Schwarting, 1st place (1:02.3) and Jim Tull, 3rd place (1:12.5) 100 yd. Breaststroke - Terry Lemberger, 1st place (1:12.3); 200 yd. Free Relay - Screven Farmer, Jim Smoker, Jim Tull, Phil Philbin, 1st place (1:45.4)

RICK SCHWARTING enjoyed a record-breaking performance in the District I swim championship preliminaries Saturday. He bettered the record in the 200 individual medley, the 100 yard backstroke (district and team marks), and was on the record-breaking 200 yard medley relay team.

Forest View Trackmen Win

Bob Bell and Mike Keen each won two events for Forest View to lead the Falcons to a 67-42 indoor track victory Tuesday in the Elk Grove fieldhouse.

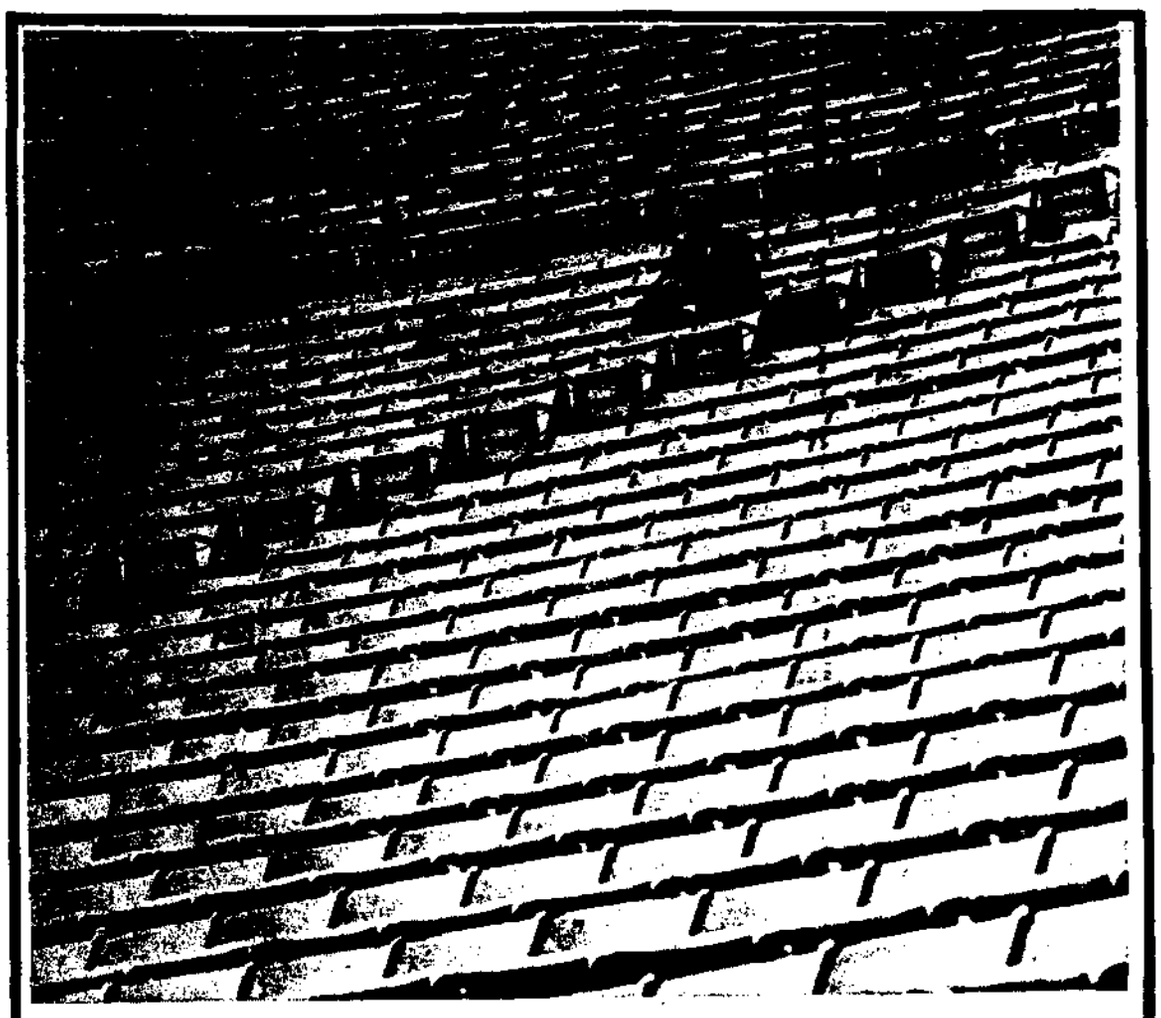
In all, Forest View won nine of 13 events, including both relays, to post its second win in three dual meets. Elk Grove has yet to win in four outings.

In winning the 880-yard run, Bell was timed in a fine 2:03.8 to set a new record for the fieldhouse and for Forest View indoor track. He also won the broad jump with a leap of 19-5¾.

Keen's victories came in the 60-yard low hurdles (:7.5) and the 50-yard dash (:5.6). Other individual winners for the Falcons were Rick Sales in the two-mile run (10:50.2), Jim Dunning in the high jump (5-6) and Howard Mock in the pole vault (10-0).

Forest View won the four-lap relay with a 1:12.6 time and the eight-lap relay in 2:37.7.

Getting firsts for Elk Grove were Frank Taucher in the 60-yard high hurdles (:8.1), Mike Michela in the 440-yard dash (:57.7), Pat Dunning in the mile run (4:53.9) and Bill Tews in the shot put (47-3).



Ever get the feeling you're all alone, you and your car problems?

The problem with having car problems is feeling like nobody cares. Nobody seems to have time for you—the way they did before you bought the car.

Well, cheer up. Because now there's the Chevy Pit Crew. They're a team of sales and service people we're assigning to new car customers. For as long as you own the car, whenever anything comes up, instead of feeling lost, feel free to call on your Chevy Pit Crew.

You'll know who and where to call by the special Pit Crew card you'll get. Carry it with you or in your car. It's your reminder that you've got a Chevy Pit Crew. People you can call on. People you can count on. Meet them here at your Chevy Dealer.

Skiing With Saier

How Do You Store Ski Equipment?

(Last in a series of ski columns by Al Saier, instructor from Aspen, Col.)

Question What is frostbite? I have been told that the proper treatment is to massage the area affected. What's the new first aid treatment?

Answer: Frostbite is the actual freezing of parts of the body such as the nose, ears, cheeks, toes and fingers When frostbite occurs, the skin becomes bright red and in later stages turns gray or white Massaging the inflicted area is one of the worse treatments for frostbite. This may damage the ruptured cells and increase the risk of tissue damage

The safest treatment is to hold the area with your warm hand and come indoors immediately When skiing in extremely cold weather leave as little skin exposed as possible and use the buddy system. Watch each other for signs of frostbite.

I personally want to take this opportunity to thank my readers for the interest and response they have shown in my columns. This will be the last appearance for this season

I have been hoping to hear from my readers about the following question Since I haven't, I'll ask the question, for it is an important one. It may very well help keep your equipment in good working order and top shape for the following ski season Question How do I store my ski equipment? What can I do as far as staying in relatively good shape for the next ski season?

Answer: When storing skis, generally placing them in a cool dry environment will protect all kinds of skis Wood skis will not dry out and become brittle or likely to warp Metal skis are not so susceptible to rust where it is dry and fiberglass skis have less chance of losing camber and twisting.

A coat of paste wax is an easy way to protect the steel edges of skis during storage. If you use oil, be careful not to place it on the running surface for it deteriorates and softens the polyethylene.

Checking your release bindings will prevent them from becoming non-functional while in storage. Cleaning them and spraying with silicone, will keep the binding functional and prevent any corrosion.

To improve the appearance of the tops of the skis, use a cleaning fluid to remove dirt and film, followed by wax.

The poles are easy to store. Place the handles and baskets in a plastic bag This protects the rubber or synthetic material from the air. With expensive poles this is not necessary.

Storing boots depends on whether you have leather or plastic The storage of plastic boots is very simple. Sponge the boots with water, buckle up, and store at room temperature. It is not necessary to place them in boot trees since the sole will remain straight

SAIER ON THE SLOPES

Leather boots require more time. Using a damp cloth, clean off the dirt and apply several coats of polish to seal the pores of the leather. For those boots that do not have the new sealed sole, use sealer to protect the stitching around the soles. Make sure they're placed in a boot press to prevent the soles from twisting.

At the end of the ski season if you're in good shape, it would be a shame to become lax on your physical fitness. If you do, you must have a short memory of those stiff painful aching muscles the first few times you skied the beginning of the year. At the onset of my series of articles, one of the first questions was, "What type of exercise do you recommend for getting into shape and how important is it to be in shape for skiing?

It is unnecessary for me to say how important it is to be in shape for skiing since you may have experienced this first hand. If you want to start a program for exercising any one of the following would be excellent; jogging, ropeskipping or bicycling.

If you're not interested in a program and feel you lack the time (don't kid yourself,) walking stairs instead of using elevators, walking when playing golf, and short walks to the store, just to name a few suggestions. Set up an exercise program you can use in your everyday routine.

Northwest 'Y' Girls Splash Past Oak Park

Scoring 196 points to top Oak Park "Y"'s 180, the Northwest Suburban girls tankers were able to overcome their visitors the past weekend.

Although Oak Park failed to get more than one out of ten relays, they did manage to take half of the individual first places.

Strongest opposition was met by the Midget Division who have been highest point collectors all year.

This weekend, Coach Ida Gabler and Assistant Fran Allen will be entering their "A" team in the District One Championship Prelims at George Williams College.

Viking Tracksters Nipped

The Fremd indoor track team thought it was heading for its fourth triangular meet of the season Monday at New Trier East. Along with the hosting Indians, the Vikings thought they'd be testing New Trier West.

However, Coach Pat Brogan's boys wound up competing in just a dual meet as the West team did not show up, but what a dual it was. The high jump, which was the last event to be completed, was the deciding event and the Vikings were just nosed out of the meet victory, 52-48.

Posting first places for the Vikings were these thinclads:

Wally Spiriolas in the two-mile run (9:53.9), Mike Menick in the 50-yard dash (:5.7), Jon Hodge in the 50-yard low hurdles (:6.6), Dan O'Brien in the long jump (18-6¾) and Jim Jarocki in the half mile run (2:06.7). As has happened so many times this season, Mike Pitchell just was nipped by Jarocki by a 10th of a second!

New Trier East's sophomores topped the Vikings 69-40.

The Vikings will journey to Prospect to test the Knights and Crystal Lake on Friday at 4:30 p.m.

Fremd Sectional Watchers Advised to Get Tickets Early

"Get your tickets early."

That's the word from Fremd High School in regard to obtaining sectional tournament tickets for the three big games to be held next week at the Viking gym.

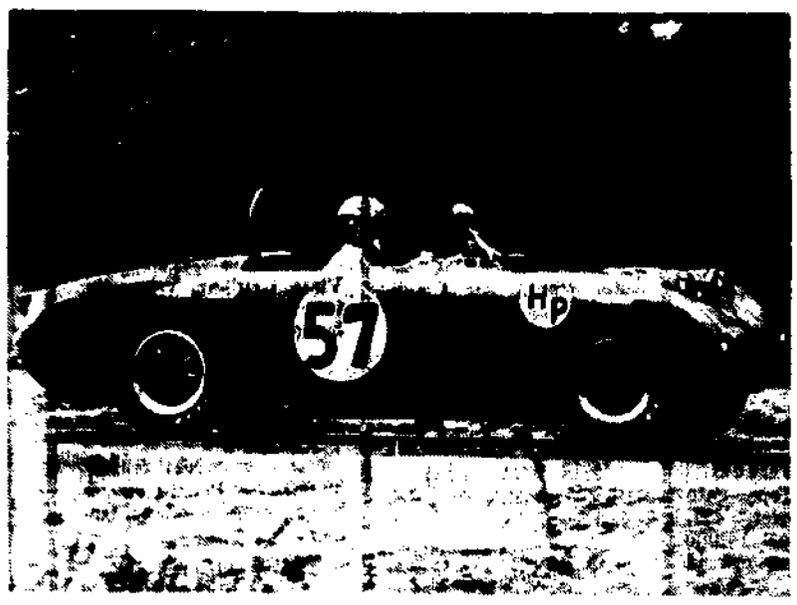
All tickets are a $1.50 each and there will be no limit to the number each person can buy. The public can purchase them anytime between 7:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. at Fremd's main office starting today. Fremd officials in charge of the tourney advise all interested persons to get their tickets before the Monday night opener to be assured of getting one of the 4,008 reserved seats.

If there are any tickets left over for any of the games, the Fremd doors will open at 6 p.m. before each game so they can be purchased. All three games will begin at 7:30 p.m.

The Tuesday night contest will pit the regional tournament winners from Skokie and Waukegan, the Wednesday night card will have the Conant and Arlington champs, and the championship tilt will be on Friday.

For those people who plan to attend the game, the Main Parking Lot will be used first as will the Main Entrance (East). When the lot is filled, cars will be guided to the rear lot and the West Entrance will then be the only way of getting in.

For any other additional information, contact Dick Welty, Fremd's athletic director.



THE LEADING point getter in the Midwestern Council of Sports Cars Clubs for the 1969-70 season was Belden McPheron of Grayslake driving a Sprite. McPheron, driving in the 'H' classification, amassed 830 points during the season, nearly 400 more points than his nearest competitor in his class. McPheron had nearly 150 more points than any other driver in any class.

Praise 1970 Toyota Crown

The current (February) edition of Road & Track magazine carries a road test evaluation of the new 1970 Toyota Crown sedan and compares the new Japanese import with American Motors' Hornet, Volvo and Mercedes Benz.

The Crown is the top model of Toyota's import line that also features the Corona and Corolla model lines.

Arlington Toyota is located at 1020 W. Northwest Hwy.

The authoritative automotive publication sums up its evaluation by saying:

"Altogether, for what it is and its lack of pretense of being anything else, we like the Crown

"In many ways it reminds us of the small Mercedes sedans in that both are solid and rattlefree and both have that completely honest no-nonsense look and feel about them.

"It doesn't have the Mercedes' handling, admittedly, or the Mercedes ride — but, then too, it doesn't have the Mercedes $5,000 price tag, either."

The Toyota Crown retails starting at the manufacturer's suggested POE price of $2,844.

Road & Track reports that the Crown's engineering is "straightforward" and includes such "niceties" as a single overhead cam 6-cylinder engine, front disc brakes, coil springs at the rear, and features a 4-speed manual and an optional 3-speed automatic transmission.

"The Crown," the magazine reports, "is a pleasant, unobtrusive car to look at. It is blessedly free of styling gimmicks and will not be a victim of planned obsolescence at the next model year."

In commenting on the Crown's size, Road & Track says:

"First of all, the Crown is an intelligent size.

"With a wheelbase of 105.9 inches and an overall length of 183.7, it is about the same size as the American compacts before manufacturers decided to sell the sizzle."

The magazine reports that the Crown is shorter than most American smaller cars

TOYOTA CROWN SEDAN

— from four inches compared to the Maverick and Hornet — and about two feet longer than the Toyota Corona and the Volkswagen Beetle.

"With good space utilization," the article reads, "the Crown comfortably accommodates five adults — which is more than you can say about the small imports and those same five people wouldn't be any more comfortable in the bigger, less-efficient full-size American sedans."

Other performance comments in the magazine's road test evaluation include:

"The steering is not power assisted but does have variable ratio which makes it comfortably easy to maneuver at lower speeds.

"The brakes are very good, the pedal pressure reasonable and there was only a moderate amount of fade in our 6-stop-from-60 test."

Included as standard equipment in the new 1970 Toyota Crown, the magazine reports, are "little extras that make a difference in how you feel about a car."

These include a master key that operates every lock on the car, plus a different one that works the ignition and door, but not the glove compartment — which is convenient when you have to leave your car in the hands of a parking attendant.

There's a central console with a map cubby in addition to the glovebox. Also, there's a cigar lighter mounted on the console for the convenience of passengers in the rear seats.

Auto Show Attracts Record Crowds

In every respect the 1970 Chicago Automobile Show, which closed a nine day run Sunday, March 1, in the International Amphitheatre, was an outstanding success.

The 62nd renewal of the classic regarded by industry leaders as the finest event of its kind demonstrated its supremacy on all fronts — in attendance, completeness and variety of exhibits, and unequaled automotive showmanship.

A spectacular total of 662,743 attended the show in the huge halls at 42nd and Halsted streets surpassing the previous crowd mark of 655,716 established at the 1969 show. Individual crowd records also fell as a total of 67,732 were counted on Friday, Feb. 27, the most ever to attend a weekday session, and an amazing 94,506 chalked up a record for a Saturday on Feb. 28.

More gratifying to officials of the show sponsoring Chicago Automobile Trade Association was the enthusiasm displayed by the visitors and the satisfaction expressed by the new car dealers and the industry leaders. Top officials from every domestic line and many from overseas firms had high praise for the decor and display material terming the show a masterpiece in automotive showmanship.

A quick survey indicated that orders for more than 600 cars were written on the show floor. Names of prospects, which may number in the thousands, were obtained by salesmen in the various exhibits who were to contact them in the near future for demonstration rides.

The show again lived up to its billing as the most complete exposition offering for viewing more than 500 individual U. S. passenger cars, imports, dream cars, commercial and recreational vehicles. The cars were displayed over more than a half million square feet of floor space and excellent change of pace exhibits, special displays, games and a wide variety of entertainers kept the visitors in a jubilent mood.

Richard V. Lynch, CATA President, declared the show lived up to every expectation. He said:

"Despite the fall off in attendance at the Detroit and Los Angeles shows, and the general reports of slow car-selling in recent months, our show drew not only record crowds, but generated a new pirit of car-buying. Besides the action at the show, many dealers around the Chicago area reported increased showroom traffic and are confident that business is on the upgrade."

Lynch said the presence of a number of new models helped in luring car fans to the show. The Chevrolet division introduced its 1970 Camaro and Corvette and Pontiac unveiled its 1970 Firebird. Among the foreign car firms to introduce new cars were Datsun, Fiat, Lotus, MG, Mercedes-Benz, Peugeot, Renault, Triumph, Saab and Subura.

Leon Ray, chairman of the Executive Show Committee which operated the show, said the imports, which this year occupied more space and showed more models than ever before in a Chicago show, drew considerable auto fan attention. He said:

"A total of 29 different overseas auto makers displayed new cars and their manner of exhibition again has improved remarkably. Without exception, they all reported satisfaction with the exposure they received. We had steady crowds throughout the afternoon and evening every day and they seemed to infiltrate every portion of the three Amphitheatre halls.

Ray also praised members of the Show Committee all of whom had worked diligently for the past several months. Members of the Committee were William F. Davis, Robert M. Foley, Richard C. Hoskins, John C. Lodi, Clarence W. Marquardt Jr, David Ostrow, Richard E. Schumacher, and President Lynch. Ex-Officio.

Edward L. Cleary, Show Manager and Executive Vice President of the CATA, praised the manufacturers for their cooperation in presenting stimulating car displays, noting that the settings appeared more lavish than ever before. He also pointed out that the record attendance again is evidence that the timing of the event is ideal. He said:

"The Detroit and Los Angeles shows, which are staged in the Fall shortly after the model year introductions, did not draw half as many visitors as our pre-spring show. We have always maintained that the end-of-winter period is the ideal time for an auto show. This catches the motorist when he is beginning to have thoughts of spring and summer weekend and vacation trips and thus is in the new car mood."

Cleary also lauded the Amphitheatre staff and the Andy Frain ushers who handled the huge crowds smoothly. From preview night, which drew 35,500 visitors representing the press, radio, TV, and the auto industry, the crowds moved smoothly through the display areas even on the weekends when the attendance topped the 90,000 mark.

Schedule Speedway Meeting

The owners, drivers and officials of Lake County Racing, Inc., which runs the Waukegan Speedway, will meet Sunday, March 8 at 2 p.m. in the Lake Villa V.F.W. Hall to discuss the upcoming stock car racing season.

On the agenda for the meeting will be discussion of the new rules and specifications covering the 1970 season at the Waukegan Speedway as well as registration and number assignment.

Promoter Gordon Sill will also be announcing at this meeting a new idea the Speedway will follow in this season to better reward those drivers who support most of the weekend super stock car races. Although the speedway has had no problems with car shortages . . . Waukegan Speedway averaged well over 30 late model super stocks per night in 1969 . . . this new plan will encourage even longer entry lists!

The Waukegan Speedway will be presenting its first weekend of late model super stock and hobby stock excitement on Saturday and Sunday night April 11 and 12. A star studded field is expected on these nights as the Waukegan asphalt will again be the first area track to open.

Among those already prepared for the first weekend of Waukegan action are defending champion Ray Young of Dolton and rapid Ray Freeman of Crete. Both of these familiar Waukegan drivers recently competed in the "World Series of Stock Car Racing" held for four nights at the New Smyrna Beach Speedway near Daytona, Florida.

The Waukegan Speedway fans will see increased speeds this year from the late model super stocks. The big reason for more speed will be the much larger tire limits set for this season. Although no tire size is specified, the rim width of 12 inches will allow tires of the "steam-roller" design.

The Waukegan Speedway will race every Saturday and Sunday night from the April opener to well into September. These Saturday and Sunday programs will feature the late model super stocks. Special events involving midget and modified cars are also being scheduled this year. Hobby stock cars will supplement all of the racing programs.

World Series of Snowmobiling Set

The first world series of snowmobile racing, matching season's high point winners in ten different classes, will be held on the famed Hodag sprint track at Rhinelander, Wis., March 21-22.

The meet is sponsored by the United States Snowmobile Association, and is being conducted with the cooperation of the Rhinelander Chamber of Commerce and the Hodag Marathon Corporation.

Ten drivers from each class and division of the USSA, central eastern, western, and Alaskan, who are the top ten in the season's accumulative high point standings in their class, form the basic starting field for the world series. Classes that will run include A, B, C, and D in the stock division; I, II, III, IV, and V in the modified division; plus open class II.

Only trophies will be awarded in the world series, down to five places in each class.

William Hyland, chairman of Rhinelander's recently successful Hodag Marathon, will act as chairman for the world series. Housing arrangements may be made by writing Dennis Hostreiter, Chamber of Commerce, Rhinelander, Wis. Complete information on the world series is available by writing World Series, P. O. Box Snowmobile, Rhinelander, Wis.

Fermo First in Judo

Peter Fermo of 241 N. Yates Lane, Mount Prospect, representing the Northwest Suburban YMCA, won the championship in the 11 and 12-year-old division in the Judo Tournament of Metropolitan Chicago last Sunday.

Fermo took first in a very competitive meet which included representatives from YMCA's all over the Chicago area.

At Beverly Lanes

Winkelman's took two games from Arlington Furniture and vaulted into first place ahead of Beauty Bar in the Arlington Heights Women Keglers Bowling league at Beverly Lanes . . . Betty Parkhurst contributed a 507 series and Doll Beebe a 465 for Wink's. Emily Dragoon's 517 was enough to help Landwehr's take a pair from Doretti despite a 508 by Marty Engleking and a 548 by Doris Engle for Doretti . . . Each team had an 800 game . . . Barbara Obst led her Persin and Robbin team with a 519 series to a two-game victory over Sele Floor . . . Sullivan Pontiac took two from Beauty Bar . . . Games of 200 or better were recorded by Joan Hunsberger (209-545), Doris Engle (209-548) and Ginny Kamps (204-562).

At Beverly Lanes

The girls were burning up the alleys last week in the Arlington Heights Women Keglers league . . . Seven 800 games were bowled and five teams had series over 2300 . . . Arlington Furniture topped the lot with 849-808-783 for a 2440 . . . Evie Japp had a 608 series . . . Six 200 games were rolled: Joan Hunsberger 247 and 574 series, Betty Parkhurst 225 and 571, Emily Dragoon 223 and 559, Evie Japp 232, Doris Nowack 217, and Ginny Kamps 205 . . . Winkelman's kept a one-game lead and Landwehr's took three from Sullivan Pontiac . . . Just about everyone bowled over average, including Betty Mueller 487, Harriet Rahn 473, Grace Cameron 467, Ruth Rohr 466, Ginny Lemke 515, Ruth Zerger 478, Ann Sele 494, Vi Bruns 465, Det Geisler 198-493, Helen Moore 501, Det Williams 274, Doris Nowack 511, and Marty Engelking 490.

Bill Thompson of Carl's Furniture team in the Tuesday Nite Ten Pins hit a 179 triplicate.

At Elk Grove Bowl

In the Wednesday Nite Ladies Bill Cook Buick holds first place by one game . . . In second are Rosati's Pizza, Bob's '66 Service and Mt. Prospect State Bank . . . Sally Johnson of Alidede's Pancake House, with a 180 average, bowled 140-142 for a 390 series . . . Charlotte Manning bowled a 198-126 and also has a 180 average.

MR. JOB SEEKER:

We "Have Failed to Place a Client" and will probably fail many times in the future. If despite our fallibility you'll accept a service that has built a reputation for avoiding "Wild Goose Chases," honesty vs. salesmanship, open appraisal of your realistic value within your field, and a reasonable degree of success in placing an individual in "the right slot," then a discussion regarding your future is definitely to our mutual advantage. We offer but two promises: an honest effort and an avoidance of your time been needlessly wasted. If you find our approach an acceptable one, we would welcome an opportunity to show what can be done when an employment agency works for you instead of "on" you.

MAN IS THE POLLUTER. Garbage thrown at the bank of Salt Creek in Addison only shows that each man and woman must also do his part to fight pollution and not leave the burden upon state and federal agencies. Open burning ordinances, and proper treatment of village sewage rests with the village and city. If man is to survive, he must be the cure since he is also the cancer.

Is Your Wife Desirable?

(By the staff of
The Family Service Association of DuPage County)

About your wife. You remember her, don't you? One day you asked her if she would marry you. And if she had said "no," you would have been a sunken ship.

Now, it may be different. At least that's the way Family Service caseworkers see it in so many cases.

Somehow, some men seem to see their wives, after a while, as just a part of the living situation. The wife no longer has that desirability that was there when you were dating. This is not a happy situation. Sometimes it leads to difficulties.

This is a familiar story to Family Service case workers. It needs understanding. The man who now doesn't feel that his wife is as attractive and interesting as she once was may need the help of a Family Service counselor. Actually his wife may be a better woman than the one he married. She may have much more sense, be much more compassionate, have much more maturity than she had when they married.

ALL THIS MAY not be realized if the man is interested in greener and younger pastures.

That is because he hasn't stopped to really think about it. Some say, "the grass is always greener on the other side of the fence."

The trouble comes when you jump the fence. It may be most difficult to jump back. Your wife is involved in the decision too — in fact has a vote equal to yours. If you jump the fence, she will be on the other side.

Family Service case workers counsel with clients who have this kind of problem every day. Sometimes the problem can be worked out happily, sometimes not. The possible solutions are as varied as the people who have the problems.

If a man, after 5, 10 or 20 years of marriage, has become a little bored with life in general, if he thinks now that maybe he will not get the big job he hoped for, he might be inclined to take it out on his wife. Who else can he shout at?

THE MAN WHO does this needs to take a look at himself. That's not easy. That's when a Family Service counselor can help.

The thing that is needed is an impersonal, professional approach to the problem. Almost no man can see himself objectively. When the seeing of himself is complicated by an emotional problem, such as a poor relationship with his wife, it becomes almost impossible without outside help.

Think about yourself. Could you handle it if it came up next Tuesday? The people at Family Service think that in most instances you could and would handle it effectively and with satisfactory results. We hope so. We do not want you to get into a situation that calls for help.

But if you do need help, pick up the telephone and call us.

Someone said all of us are a part of mankind. It just happens all of us want to be a part of mankind. If we stray off on a tangent, we hope we can be pulled back into the stream where we belong. Your wife may be there.

Simple, isn't it?

Family Service is supported by Community Chest and United Fund.

Summer School Program To Be Offered

The Community High School Dist 88 summer school program will again be offered at all three high schools this year, with the addition of free bus service for eligible students provided by the district.

The board of education recently approved retaining the summer school at all three schools and providing bus runs at 8 a m and at noon. The board's action was an acceptance of a recommendation by the summer school directors.

The directors — John Sohne at York, Richard Kamm at Willowbrook, and William Rook at Addison Trail — had suggested the addition of bus service as a way of increasing enrollment.

ENROLLMENT HAS been decreasing in recent years, with the 1969 total attendance dropping to 1,383, as compared with the high of 1,857 in 1966. Lack of transportation for students was not the only factor in the decrease, the directors pointed out, but it was a significant one.

District 88 officials said that many of the students who would have attended summer school found summer jobs instead.

The fifth subject, since deleted because of Dist. 88's financial and space problems, also had given the students subjects they ordinarily would have taken in summer school.

Before voting on the matter, the Dist. 88 board discussed the possibility of discontinuing summer school at Addison Trail and concentrating the program at York and Willowbrook, with Addison and north Elmhurst students bused to York.

THE BUS RUNS will cost the district about $9,000 during the six weeks of summer school. The transportation fund of the district's budget will be adequate to include the cost of the summer bus runs, Jack Monts, director of the Dist. 88 business office, said

The district will continue to be committed to the concept that summer school should be run on as nearly as possible a self-supporting (tuition) basis, although there was a deficit of nearly $7,800 in the 1969 summer program. The only outside financial support summer school receives is a federal grant earmarked for the remedial reading program offered at Addison Trail, which will be available for the third consecutive summer.

Driver education also is offered during the summer at the three schools. Last year, 176 public and private school students took the classroom phase and 696 participated in the training.

THE BOARD DEFERRED action on other recommendations by the summer school directors, including:

—Allowing the business education departments to give academic credit for typing taken by incoming freshmen;

—making the central film library available one day a week, probably on Monday;

—allowing each school to handle its own tardiness problems;

—allowing the school to withdraw from a class any student who is absent more than two days in one semester courses or four days in two semester courses, regardless of the reason. Letters warning the parents would be mailed and the homes of the absentees would be called daily.

The directors reported that they are attempting to revise courses to fit the needs of the students, through suggestions from the department chairmen and teachers and a questionnaire given the students in each school.

The summer schools plan to send out brochures to prospective summer school students, including incoming freshmen.

'Irish' Band To Perform

The University of Notre Dame Concert Band, under the combined leadership of director Robert O'Brien and assistant director James Phillips, will present a concert in Lombard at Glenbard East High School Biester Auditorium March 28

The concert will be among a series of programs the band will present during its 11-day, 4,000-mile spring tour. The Notre Dame Concert Band is believed to be the most widely traveled, non-subsidized university band in the United States.

The band has been touring annually since the end of World War II. Thousands of listeners throughout the United States, and parts of Canada and Mexico have heard it perform in the concert hall.

This organization is especially noted for its spirited, quality music and the wide variety of its concerts.

Tickets are on sale now at $2 each. Mail orders to Montini Band Benefit, 21W466 Acorn, Glen Ellyn 60137.

Proceeds from the concert will be used for scholarships to Montini High School, a Catholic school in Lombard, for equipment.

St. Paul Team Places Second

St Paul Lutheran School of Addison earned second place honors recently in the Walther Lutheran Invitational Basketball Tournament in Melrose Park.

It was the third year in a row that the school had a finalist in the tournament. Also, two players, Paul Craig, 13, of 4N161 Walter Drive, and Bruce Frey, 14, of 2 N. Adams Street, both of Addison, were selected on the all-tournament team as a result of their outstanding play.

St. Paul's finished the season with a 12-2 overall record and lost to Zion Lutheran School of Hinsdale in the final game of the tournament.

As a sidelight, St. Paul's cheerleaders were judged the second best at the tournament

Woman Accepts Scouting Post

Mrs Robert V Rachlow of Itasca has accepted the role of sustaining membership chairman for the Girl Scouts of DuPage County Council.

During the 1970 drive she will work directly with all troop finance chairmen in Wood Dale and Itasca and also contact those persons who are interested in becoming "sustainers" of Girl Scouting

Mrs Rachlow studied as a lab technician and medical secretary at Mt. Ida Junior College in Massachusetts and also attended American and Northeast Airlines Stewardess Training Schools. She has one son and two daughters, one of whom is a Junior Scout. Assistant Leader of Itasca Junior Troop 863, she feels the Scout program is one of America's true training grounds of democracy.

Membership is offered citizens of DuPage County who believe Girl Scouting is more than a recreational program, that it's an informal educational one and an integral part of their community

According to Mrs. Rachlow, "The time to think about young adults is while they are youngsters, and we can all do this by supporting the Girl Scout program."

Members will be enrolled in the Sustainers beginning with Girl Scout Week, March 8 - 14th This year's goal is $55,000

Review Board Elects Bagni as Chairman

The Addison Board of Review has elected Stuart R Bagni, of 521 Forest Drive, Addison, as chairman of the organization for the coming year.

Also chosen were J D. Hopkins, 65 S. Grant Drive vice chairman; Richard E. Jarka, 913 N Grant Drive, recording secretary, Bob Twohill, 633 Willow Glen, corresponding secretary, Rose Gulbrandson, 9 N Highview publicity; Richard Craddock, 124 S Iowa, treasurer; August Klingbiel 550 Byron, by-laws; and Michael Lopez, 420 Cherry Hill, credentials.

Dist. 12 Registrations

Parents of children in Roselle Elementary School Dist 12 who will reach the age of 5 on or before Dec. 1, 1970 should be enrolled in kindergarten during the registration period scheduled for next week.

Registrations will be held at the Parkside School Monday at Spring Hills Tuesday, and at Lincoln School Wednesday

In order to complete enrollment of a child for school it is necessary that a birth certificate be presented as evidence of the age of a child

Parents who do not have birth certificates on file may secure these by applying to the County Clerk in the County in which their child was born Registration hours are from 9 30-11 30 a m For further information persons have been told to contact the Dist 12 administrative offices.

Girl Scout Activities In Pictorial Display

A pictorial display of various Girl Scout activities is being featured at the Wood Dale Public Library.

The scout pictorial display was made by Mrs E Yello and Mrs. M Sciortino, leaders of Wood Dale junior Girl Scout troop No 598 The display is being featured at the library in commemoration with Scout Week, March 8 through 14

Lutheran Scholarship

Julaine Wendler, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. H C Wendler, 141 Army Trail, Addison, has been awarded a scholarship for the 1969-70 school year from Aid Association for Lutherans, a fraternal life insurance society with home office in Appleton, Wis.

She is a student at Concordia Teachers College, River Forest, having graduated from Walther Lutheran High School, Melrose Park.

Parkside Students Have 'Arts' Night

Feb. 26 at 7:30 was the night for Parkside's third annual poetry, art and music evening

Students from the junior high English and literature classes read poems from memory, an instrumental and a choral group from the Music department played and sang, and a dance group from the Physical Education department presented two numbers.

Art classes exhibited their work on the gymnasium walls and in the corridor. There was a special violin solo by Mrs. Harriett Wilkins.

Spring Showers Bring Brown, Smudgy World

If the rain in the last few days is any indication of what spring showers will do to DuPage County, the highway department will have to issue mud warnings.

Development and progress might be necessary and needed but the side effects of subdivision construction — end up splattered all over automobiles when it rains.

The chief problem with the flying mud from trucks and bulldozers is it obstructs vision as it lands on windshields. Unless motorists like to look at a brown smudgy world they better not run out of spray cleaner for their windows.

14 Students on Honor Roll

Fourteen Keeneyville School children were announced on the honor roll for the second quarter.

Fourth Grade: John Lenz, Mary Moran, Dinah DuRietz, Jody Wolfgram and Elaine Wyman.

Fifth Grade: Kim Palmer and Nancy Tabb.

Sixth Grade: Sue Ann Brandemuenl, Fred Gordon and Sharon Wacker.

Seventh Grade: Lorre Chiapetta, Norman Gordon, David Moran and Eddie Tabb.

The Keeneyville P.T.O. recently sponsored an "Americanism" poster and essay contest.

The winners of the poster contest were Mark Peterson, kindergarten; Michael Wyman, first grade; Merilee Switzer, second grade; Juliann Buser, third grade and Dinah DuRietz, fourth grade.

Essay contest winners included Kyle Olson, fifth grade; Rose Marie Frelich, sixth grade; Louis Veinot, seventh grade and Denra Bakke, eighth grade.

The grand prize poster winner was Michael Wyman and the grand prize essay contest winner was Rose Mary Frelich.

Parker pens with the student's initials engraved on them were awarded to each room winner. A $25 Savings Bond was awarded each grand prize winner.

The awards were given to the winners at the PTO meeting Feb. 17.

Young To Head Scout Drive

Lex Young, of Elmhurst has accepted the role of General Chairman of Sustaining Membership for the Girl Scouts of DuPage County Council for the second year.

In this post, Young will spearhead the work of volunteers heading each city and village throughout DuPage County, as well as finance chairmen of each troop engaged in enrolling members in the Sustainers.

Community Chests and United Funds cannot supply more than one-third of the funds necessary to operate the council. Sustaining membership is intended to provide materials, instruction, program and personnel to develop well trained volunteers and staff who will conduct a full year-round program for every girl in DuPage from 7 -17 years old who desires it. It also provides essential funds for maintenance and to supplement operating costs of the council-owned Greene Wood troop camp in Lisle Township, Chippewa Bay resident camp in Whisconsin and the council-operated day camps throughout the county.

Sustaining membership is a program designed to enable interested parents as well as members of the community to become sustainers of girl scouting, thus enabling them to continue and expand their programs and service projects for community benefit.

Serving the Area Chairmen are: Joseph Neurohr, Addison; John O'Leary, Bensenville; Mrs. John Ryan of Roselle for Bloomingdale, Medinah and Roselle; and Mrs. Robert Rachlow of Itasca for Wood Dale and Itasca.

Members will be enrolled during Girl Scout Week, March 8-14.

Choir Will Present Cantata

The Chancel Choir of the Roselle United Methodist Church, 206 S. Rush, Roselle, will present the cantata, "An Easter Message" by Scholin, March 15. The cantata will be sung at both the 9:30 and 11 a.m. worship services. There will be no sermon on that day.

Soloists include Mrs. Wayne Morgan, Mrs. Andrew Kassay, Mrs. Charles Laws, Mrs. Wilber Doner, Mrs. Herbert Weber, Mrs. Allen Hallett, Joseph Jacobia and Harry Johnston.

Mrs. Leonard Boone is the choir director and Elaine Smetters is the organist.

On March 8 a 47-member confirmation class will be welcomed into the church at the 11 a.m. worship service.

The class has been studying under the direction of the Rev. Fred H. Conger and has met for lessons each week since the beginning of September.

A reception honoring the new members will be held in the church parlor immediately after the service.

4-Car Crash Is Triggered Here

A Chicago man, who allegedly failed to observe a red traffic signal, triggered a four-car accident in Bensenville last week according to Bensenville police.

Guerino Bruno, 40, of Chicago was charged by police with failure to obey a traffic signal at York Road and Green Street.

Bruno's car hit another behicle driven by Valarie Marshe, 17W346 Belmont in Bensenville, according to police Miss Marshe's car then slammed into an auto driven by Gary Grabowski, 17, of 810 Green St., Bensenville. Grabowski's auto was pushed into a car parked on Green Street. The parked auto belonged to Edward Conwell of Chicago, police said

The court date has been set for March 10. All those involved escaped serious injury.

Dist. 4 Board To Meet

Addison's elementary school Dist. 4 board of education will discuss next Monday the Citizens Advisory Council's 40-page study which discusses the future of education for the village's children.

The meeting, scheduled originally for this Monday, had to be postponed when both the chairman and vice-chairman of the council were unable to attend.

However a continuation of the Feb. 23 meeting was scheduled but the board was unable to get enough members at the meeting and it had to be cancelled.

Parks To Survey Residents' Ideas

Addison has been divided up into 73 separate areas by the Addison Park District in an attempt to get a cross-section opinion on the organization's plans for the future.

The survey begins today with representatives of the local PTA groups, three homeowners' organizations and the Addison Recreation Club reaching about 12 homes in each area with questionnaires for residents to fill out

It's all a part of the park district's idea of gathering enough information about present park facilities and future programs to take action on what residents want

The survey is expected to be completed by Monday

MRS. CHRIS KNOLL, Wood Dale's police matron, has her hands full while trying to assist village police in moving to their new offices at the new village hall. The move came last Friday morning when police moved into more spacious quarters.

The Accepted Influence in the Northwest Suburbs

TUDOR-STYLE ELEVATIONS are the most popular at Kaufman and Broad's Heatherlea community of single family homes near Palatine. Among special features in this model, the Briarhill, are a finished family room and an attached two car garage. The master bedroom suite includes a wall of closets and its own private bathroom. Another full bathroom and two bedrooms complete the sleeping area of the home, priced at $36,990.

Tudor Takes First in Sales

Royal Faubion, marketing and sales director of Kaufman and Broad's Chicago division, stated that Tudor-style elevations have proved to be the most popular of those available at Heartherlea, a community of single-family homes near Palatine.

Sales figures over the past six months have shown that the majority of the homebuyers selected the Tudor-style elevations. Second choice was the Colonial design and third choice was the "contemporary Colonial" with narrow-lap siding. All three exterior designs are available on each of the four model single-family homes.

Faubion bileves that the exterior style preferences indicate a trend away from the more traditional favorites towards a European-flavor in housing styles.

The models at Heatherlea are priced between $33,990 and $37,990.

The Briarhill, a three-bedroom, two-bath bi-level, priced at $36,990, with the Tudor, wood-beam exterior facing, is the sales winner at Heatherlea, according to Faubion.

Included in the price are a finished family room and attached two-car garage, a deluxe California-patio kitchen, and a 27' foot 6 inch living-room with adjoining dining area. The decorator-coordinated kitchen appliances include a dishwasher; a double-oven with self-cleaning range and exhaust system; double stainless-steel sink with disposer; built-in maple chopping block and custom-designed cabinets. Oak parquet flooring with baked-on walnut stain, and walnut-stained colonial interior woodwork are provided throughout.

Storage space includes closets in all bedrooms, custom-designed cabinets and a multi-shelf pantry in the kitchen, and a separate 12 foot 2 inches x 5 foot 6 inches storage room adjacent to the garage.

A wood-paneled, double-doorway at the entrance to the home leads into a foyer with steps leading to both upper and lower levels of the home. The floor plans separate the living and sleeping areas of the home, with all three bedrooms located on the upper level.

The master bedroom suite, which features a wall of double closets, includes its own private bathroom. An additional full bathroom and two bedrooms complete the sleeping area. The bathrooms are equipped with color-coordinated fixtures, marbleized vanity tops, formica cabinets and ceramic wall tiles.

The patio kitchen has access to the dining room, living room and balcony patio. A built-in patio counter and outside dining balcony make it easy to serve barbecues from the kitchen.

The lower level of the home includes a finished family room with optional fireplace, an optional fourth bedroom and powder room and a large utility room.

Heatherlea is located on Hicks Road, just south of Dundee Road.

Models are open daily and Sundays from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. and on Saturdays until 6 p.m. Immediate occupancy is available for all the homes.

Kaufman and Broad is listed on the New York Stock Exchange and is the nation's largest publicly-held company whose primary business is housing.

'E' Award Goes To DuKane Corp.

The U S Department of Commerce announced recently that DuKane Corp of St. Charles has been designated by Secretary of Commerce Maurice H. Stans to receive the President's "E" Award, recognition of its success in boosting the sale of American products overseas.

DuKane's audio-visual and electronic communications products are exported to over 80 countries on all continents through a world-wide network of 120 local, independently-owned distributor organizations. Slightly over 10 per cent of the company's sales are made in foreign markets.

Until a decade ago, more than 90 per cent of DuKane's production was devoted to government contract business. In the period since, the company has developed its commercial business to the extent that it represents nearly 100 per cent of sales.

As part of its export program, the company maintains resident regional managers abroad, participates in foreign trade shows, and utilizes advertisements and sales promotion literature prepared in the language of the country in which they are to be used.

Anthony J. Buchar, director of the Chicago Field Office of the U.S. Department of Commerce, announced arrangements for the presentation of the award to the company. The award consists of a citation signed by Secretary Stans on behalf of President Nixon and an "E" flag.

Chester A. Mitchell, Palatine, is DuKane's director of marketing.

Peltier Hits Million Mark

Rodney A. Peltier

Rodney A. Peltier, 3600 E. Frontage Road, Rolling Meadows, who is an agent in the Prudential Insurance Co.'s Palatine district office, sold more than $1 million of company business in 1969.

According to Frederic J. Thiel, CLU, manager of the office, located at 235 North Northwest Highway, Peltier began his Prudential career in August, 1962, in the company's Jefferson Park office in Chicago. He has been associated with the Palatine district headquarters since March 1968.

Peltier is a 1953 graduate of Arlington High School, Arlington Heights. He served with the U. S. Naval Air Reserve from 1953 to 1961.

He is active in local civic affairs of the Boy Scouts, YMCA, and St. Colette's Roman Catholic Church.

Watch for new federal regulations reducing the amount of radiation microwave ovens can emit. Standards will be issued in a few weeks by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) under the Radiator Control for Health and Safety Act, requiring that ovens not emit more than 5 milliwatts of radiation per square centimeter. This is half the present voluntary standard, adopted in 1968. Strict requirements on the amount of radiation at point of manufacture will also be issued, since ovens sometimes leak more after continued use. Makers of the ovens, stating that there has been no evidence of a health hazard under present standards, will soon conduct a survey of ovens now in use. HEW may require that they repair those ovens not meeting federal standards.

May Promoted At Western Electric

Vincent R. May

Vincent R. May of 410 N. Dwyer, Arlington Heights, was promoted to a supervisory position in the power, panel and common systems shops at Western Electric's Hawthorne Works.

May, who began his Bell System career in 1945, was an engineering associate in Industrial Engineering prior to his promotion to section chief.

Western Electric, the manufacturing and supply arm of the Bell System, is the country's largest producer of telephone and related communications equipment. The Hawthorne Works, located at Cicero Avenue and Cermak Road, is the oldest and largest of its 18 manufacturing locations.

Roberts Is Promoted By Insurance Co.

Tom Roberts, 1519 S. Wolf Road, Wheeling, has been promoted by the Allstate Insurance Cos. to the position of policy services division manager in the firm's Midwest Zone offices, Skokie.

Roberts joined Allstate in March 1967, as a management trainee in the firm's Kansas City, Mo., Regional office. He became a division manager in July 1967, in the Michigan Regional office, and prior to this recent promotion, served as policy services division manager in the Illinois Regional office.

Topping Big John

The new Standard Oil Company (Indiana) building in downtown Chicago will add an 80-story, 1,136-foot tower to the lakefront skyline, Standard Oil chairman John E. Swearingen announced recently in Mayor Richard J. Daley's office.

Construction is scheduled to begin at the 200 E. Randolph St. site this month, with initial occupancy late in 1972. It will be the tallest office building in Chicago, 31 feet higher than the rooftop of the Hancock office-apartment building. Two buildings in New York City will be taller than the Standard Oil building.

The building will become the international headquarters of Standard Oil (Indiana) and its Chicago-based subsidiaries, including American Oil Co., Amoco International Oil Co. and Amoco Chemicals Corp. Part of the space will be leased to others. Swearingen said the cost of the building project is estimated to exceed $100 million.

The structure will consist of a slender tower on a block-square base structure below street level. The 184-foot-square tower, with inset corners and predominantly vertical lines, will extend 80 stories above a street level plaza at Randolph Street, overlooking Grant Park to the south.

The tower design is based on recent developments, utilizing the tube principle of structural design.

The building design incorporates an outside wall of five-foot windows separated by five-foot triangular sections which are part of the building frame. This permits the bulk of mechanical services, such as utilities and air conditioning, to be supplied through the triangular sections. The design also permits flush window walls inside the structure. There will be some 4,700 windows in the tower, but the outside surface will be approximately 50 per cent windows and 50 per cent masonry wall surface.

The tower will be essentially a vertical, square tube that permits substituting a steel shell wall for the usual steel frame. The shell will be produced in large floor-to-floor segments, using automatic cutting and welding techniques.

Associated architects for the building project are Edward Durell Stone and Associates, and the Perkins & Will Corp. Turner Construction Co. is general contractor for construction. Frank M. Whiston & Co. has been retained by Standard as exclusive rental agent and consultant for the building.

Indiana Standard's first office was established in Chicago in 1889, and the company has been headquartered at 910 S. Michigan since 1918. This office will continue to be occupied by Standard Oil, for various functions. The 5,400 employees of the company and its subsidiaries in downtown Chicago are currently located in offices at 12 locations.

New Sales Head

John F. Clark has been named director of condominium sales for the Branigar Organization's management services division.

A native of Lewiston, Me., Clark has been director of sales for a $25 million condominium project in the Bahamas.

Clark attended Boston University.

According to H. O. French, head of the division, Clark will supervise sales and commercial development at Evergreen Valley, a resort/condominium development adjacent to the towns of Lovell and Stoneham, Me. With its ski areas and its Robert Trent Jones golf course, Evergreen Valley will be a recreational complex whose worth will approach $40 million. Clark also will supervise other properties now under consideration by Branigar.

Branigar, a Chicago-based firm, is an international property management and land development company.

Postwar Demand A Unique Dichotomy

Restrictive monetary and fiscal policies, working in close concert, halted the business expansion in late 1969, the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago noted in its monthly review, Business Conditions.

Employment has leveled off, factory workweeks have been shortened, and unemployment has increased, marking the first significant easing in labor markets since 1967.

The slower rise in business inventories in 1969, as compared to the large buildup in 1968, is cited by the bank as a favorable sign. Cutbacks in output starting last summer have kept inventories in line with current sales in most industries.

The business slowdown has been especially evident in the Midwest, the bank finds. Manufacturers of passenger cars, television sets, appliances, and furniture have cut output substantially. Orders for most types of machinery and equipment, however, have been well maintained.

The sharp dichotomy of weak demand for consumer durables and strong demand for producers' durables is unique in the postwar period. Caution on the part of consumers contrasts with the confidence of most business managers in prospects for an early resumption of growth. Expectations of continued rapid price inflation and the desire to reduce labor costs are major reasons for maintaining business capital expenditure programs in industries where needs to expand basic capacity are not immediate.

The more normal relationship among developments in the consumer and producer durables industries is likely to be re-established in the months ahead. Lower profits and sales may cause some companies to scale down capital outlays. But a resurgence in consumer purchases from recently depressed levels is also possible if individuals decide to use available income and credit more vigorously, the bank stated.

Hestrom Has Top Position

The Branigar Organization, Inc., announced the election of Maynard O. Hestrom as president and chief operating officer. He succeeds Harvey W. Branigar Jr., who has been named chairman of the board and chief executive officer.

Hestrom joined the Branigar Organization in 1946 as a salesman and became vice-president of the company in 1955. He was instrumental in the company's move into the recreation homesite development field, particularly in man-made lake developments. The company's initial lake project was Lake Redstone near Reedsburg, Wis., and was sold out in 1968 after three years of marketing.

Branigar then began developing Apple Canyon Lake, a private recreational homesite development covering 2,800 acres near Galena. Hestrom initiated the "Greenway" concept which provides a large percentage of land area for recreation purposes rather than subdividing the entire area into lots in this project. This plan was also carried out under his direction at the Windings of Ferson Creek, a residential homesite development near St. Charles.

Hestrom lives in rural St. Charles on Empire Road with his wife, Grace, and their two daughters.

Hill-Gray Appoints Powell as Engineer

Gene A. Powell

Hill-Gray Associates, manufacturers' representative to the electronic, electrical and automation markets, announces the appointment of Gene A. Powell of Palatine, as outside sales engineer.

Powell has more than 17 years of experience in electronics engineering, production, and sales. His responsibilities will include O.E.M. sales in Central and Western Illinois.

Naval Corpsman

Navy Hospitalman Appren. Randall B. Keffer Jr., husband of the former Miss Patricia A. Long of 2528 N. Walnut St., Arlington Heights, has graduated from the 14-week basic Hospital Corps School at Great Lakes.

Taught by Navy nurses and senior hospital corpsmen, the curriculum covered instruction in patient care, the study of anatomy and physiology, minor surgery and the nature and prevention of communicable diseases and the administering of medicines.

Kaye Appointed Publications Boss

Steven J. Kaye

Stephen J. Kaye of Arlington Heights, was appointed employee publications manager in Montgomery Ward's public relations department, according to Robert V. Guelich, divisional vice president and public relations director.

Kaye had been manager of publications and community relations with Morton International, Inc. He attended Logansport High School in Logansport, Ind., and was graduated from Northwestern University with a B.S. degree in social sciences and an M.S. in journalism.

He is a member of the Public Relations Society of America, Publicity Club of Chicago, International Council of Industrial Editors, Sigma Delta Chi professional journalism fraternity and Phi Gamma Delta social fraternity.

Bring Investment Seminar to Area

An all-day investor's seminar will be held at Arlington Park Towers Hotel, Arlington Park, on Saturday, March 21, beginning at 10 a.m.

This program was planned to bring investment education to investment club members and friends to the northwest suburban area.

One of the featured speakers will be Witold Sikorski of 906 Plate, Palatine. He is vice president of the National Association of Investment Clubs and chairman of the Chicago Council.

Other featured speakers on the program are Richard Boyland, senior vice president of operations of McDonald's Corp., and Miss Helen McLane co-author of "The Investment Club Way to Stock Market Success."

The public is invited. Reservations should be made through the Chicago Council, NAIC P.O. Box 66115, O'Hare International Airport, Chicago, Ill. 60666. The cost is $7.50 for advanced registrations and $8.50 at the door.

An Investment in Faith

Three general types of municipal bonds are available, according to Barry Demovsky, of Kenower, MacArthur & Co., Chicago, investment bankers: general obligation bonds, revenue bonds, and public housing authority bonds.

General obligation bonds are secured for the payment of principal and interest by the issuer's pledge of its full-faith, credit and taxing power. Most state, county, and city issues are secured by the full-faith and credit of the instrumentality to raise sufficient funds to pay the interest and principal at specified dates.

School bonds are issued by the local school districts and have as its security unlimited ad valorem taxes of the district. An ad valorem tax is a tax based upon the value or assessed value of property. This means that the local school district convenants to the bondholders that the district will raise sufficient taxes to maintain interest and principal payments either through the use of an expanding tax base or through the increase in the tax rate itself.

Revenue bonds are payable solely from the revenue derived from the project so financed. This can be tolls charged on a road, bridge or tunnel, rents paid by those using the facilities constructed such as O'Hare Airport Revenue bonds, or a variety and combination thereof. Usually this type of bond, when compared with the same maturity and type of quality as general obligation bonds, will show a better yield due to the slight risk involved.

Public housing authority bonds are issued by local public housing authorities and are secured by an annual pledge of the net rental revenues of the local housing authorities and by a contributions contract with the Public Housing Administration of the United States. The Public Housing Authority is unconditionally obligated to pay annual amounts which, together with the funds of the local public housing authority available for such purposes, will be sufficient to pay the principal and interest on the bonds when due.

The obligation of the Public Housing Administration to make payment of the annual contribution provided for in the contract is unconditional, and therefore, the full-faith and credit of the United States is pledged for payment. Therefore, because these bonds have the full-faith and credit of the United States government behind them, they will yield less than general obligation bonds and revenue bonds of similar quality and maturity, concluded Demovsky.

Suggestion Nets Man $1,950 From Airline

Kenneth D. Wilson, a cargo sales representative for United Air Lines recently accepted a plaque and a check for $1,950 from James R. Rohm, Chicago district sales manager for the airline, for a suggestion he made.

Wilson, a resident of Arlington Heights, suggested the airline audit an interline cargo billing system because he suspected United was not receiving the correct amount due for its portion of the carriage. An audit and subsequent proration of revenue on the account resulted in a saving to the company of $19,496.33.

C. H. Foos, manager of the airline's suggestion program said the award is among the largest the company has made in a non-technical area. Wilson has been employed by United since 1946.

United Names Three To New Positions

Three Chicago area men have been named to new positions in United Air Lines Contract Services Department following a reorganization and expansion of the department.

R. A. Young, director of contract services, said the changes were made to increase the airline's effectiveness in selling services and products. Young announced the appointments of:

George A. McCahey of Schaumburg as manager of the contract services marketing division. McCahey, previously United's Chicago purchasing manager, will be responsible for determining the availability and quantity of products and services and directing promotional activities. He has been employed by the airline since 1966.

Dennis B. O'Connell of Mount Prospect, as contract sales manager with responsibility for services and products other than aircraft maintenance and flight training including aircraft leasing and passenger and ground handling services for other carriers. O'Connell joined the airline in 1940 and previously had been associated with the purchasing department.

Robert B. McArthur of Hoffman Estates, as contract administration manager to coordinate the preparation and negotiaton of all contracts for the sale of company products and services. Previously a buyer in the company's purchasing department, he has been with the airline since 1966.

Responsibilites Extended to You

H. G. Melhouse

Responsibility for protecting the nation's environment extends to government and every individual, as well as to industry, Harvey G. Mehlhouse, president of the Western Electric Co. said last week.

The head of the Bell System's manufacturing and supply unit declared that the growing population makes people a potential source of environmental contamination overshadowing everything else.

Mehlhouse spoke at a National Engineers Week dinner at the Arlington Park Towers Hotel in Arlington Heights. Over 700 engineers from Western Electric's Regional Center in Rolling Meadows attended

The Regional Center engineers plan and coordinate equipment and building expansion and modernization of telephone exchanges for Bell Telephone Companies in Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin

"In the long run, an environment can only be as clean and tidy as the people living in it," he said He pledged that Western Electric will continue to keep its processes harmless to the natural environment.

"Responsibility for protecting our essential natural resources is not limited to industry or to the engineering fraternity," Mehlhouse said. "That responsibility extends in some measure to every individual citizen and to every group"

He predicted that the environmental changes of the seventies will result in a more flexiable telephone network, with newer, more advanced service capabilities

The number of Western Electric employes may increase by 20,000 this year, Mehlhouse noted, as the company grows to meet "significantly higher long range demands" in telephone needs. Western Electric now has about 200,000 employes.

OPEN TO THE SKY, the atrium is the central feature of the Atrium House, one of three plans available at the Commons in Northbrook, a development of the C. D. Johnson Co. the Condominium townhouses are designed in ranch-townhouse plans. Entrance to this home is via an enclosed courtyard.

Sun and Fun Area For Casual Living

Interior designs of the Commons in Northbrook — new condominium townhouses now building at 1900 Shermer Road, in Northbrook include a choice of three different ranch-townhouse plans in this unique concept developed by the C. D. Johnson Co.

One of the plans is the Atrium House. In this design, the entire home is developed around a centrally-located atrium, open to the sky. This "sun and fun" area can be used most of the year.

The entrance to the Atrium House is via a private, enclosed courtyard measuring nearly 10 feet by over 9 feet. From this protected courtyard the attached two-car garage may also be entered, while the entry to the home, proper — on the opposite, inner side — opens into a foyer. This has a quarry-tiled floor, connecting the family-living area and the bedroom area.

Directly across the entryway from the front door is the entrance to the study or den.

From this point — the centrally-located entry foyer — traffic is dispersed to all parts of the house.

To one side is the living room, 18½ feet long and almost 15 feet wide. Here, a window extends nearly the entire length of the front wall. The room is open to the formal dining room, which then leads into the adjacent family room, measuring approximately 19 feet by 14 feet.

A feature of the family room, is the woodburning fireplace. Just outside this room — reached via insulated sliding glass doors — is the patio with gas patio lights.

The patio may also be reached by sliding glass doors from the kitchen-dinette area. The dinette area measures nearly 9 feet by 7 feet — and the kitchen is over 11 feet by 8 feet. Appliances, cabinets and work-service counters are in a U arrangement. An added convenience is a built-in desk for the lady of the house.

In the bedroom wing of the Atrium House are two bedroom suites. Each has a bedroom, private bath, closet and built-in vanity and towel cabinet. The baths are tiled and compartmented. There is also a powder room just off the corridor serving the bedroom wing of the house.

The condominium homes at the Commons in Northbrook, occupying approximately twelve acres, are priced from the lower $40,000 level.

Angled Balconies In Local Complex

Manuel S. Kramer, executive vice president of Hollywood Builders, the builders and developers of Stonebridge Hill Apartments in Arlington Heights, has announced the grand opening, scheduled for April 1.

Rental of the $13 million, 536-unit apartment complex will be coordinated by Helene C. Milenbach. She has been a vice president of Realmark, Ltd. (a firm that developed the concept of converting apartment buildings into condominiums in the Chicago area) and most recently she was vice president of Curtis Sadd Management Co. where she managed Lakeside Square Apartments, North Eastwood Shores and Turner Park Apartments.

Stonebridge Hill has "Y" shaped buildings. Each apartment has an angled balcony.

The central recreation building is the focal point for a health club with men's and women's saunas, a billiard room, tennis and shuffleboard courts, and swimming pool. Contiguous to the Stonebridge Hill property is a 45 acre park that will have picnic areas, barbeque facilities and room for a baseball field and a football grid.

Interior decorating of the model apartments, a penthouse designed for corporate use and the central lobby is being coordinated by Bert H. Rubin of Werth Industries. Rubin is a graduate of the Chicago Institute of Design and is the only two-time recipient of the Glidden Paint Award for excellence in interior planning.

Rent for the one-bedroom units is $210; for the two-bedroom units, $265 and the penthouses will rent for $850.

Open Western Gateways

On March 3, for the first time in 60 years of operation across the northern tier of states, the Milwaukee Road offered shippers a choice of gateways in the routing of traffic west of Minneapolis-St. Paul, according to a statement by Curtiss E. Crippen, president of the Milwaukee Road.

His comments were made in a discussion of conditions prescribed by the Interstate Commerce Commission for the protection of the Milwaukee Road in connection with the merger of the Burlington, Great Northern and Northern Pacific railroads to form Burlington Northern Inc.

One of the conditions of the proposal provides for the opening of 11 western gateways for the interchange of traffic between the Milwaukee and the former Great Northern and Northern Pacific lines. The gateways are located at Fargo and Linton, N.D., Miles City, Judith Gap, Great Falls, Bozeman, Butte and Missoula, Mont.; and Spokane, Seattle and Tacoma, Wash.

These gateways were previously closed for the interchange of certain traffic between the railroads, except upon the payment of penalty rates.

Heretofore, shipments routed westbound via the Milwaukee Road from points east of Minneapolis-St. Paul and destined to local points on the Great Northern or Northern Pacific have had to be turned over to those railroads at St. Paul.

On eastbound traffic from local points on the Northern Lines in the Pacific Northwest or elsewhere in the northern tier of states to points on the Milwaukee Road in Wisconsin and Illinois, for instance, the Milwaukee could not solicit the long haul competitively but was, in most such instances, limited to that part of the movement east of the Twin Cities.

Other conditions of importance to shippers and to the Milwaukee Road relate to the granting of trackage rights into Portland, Ore. and Billings, Mont. Trackage rights will also be provided over segments of the Burlington Northern north of Seattle to provide a competitive north-south service route for the Milwaukee between Canada and Pacific Coast states. All of these conditions will be put into effect by the Milwaukee as soon as certain agreements and routine procedural steps have been concluded.

Smith Is Promoted

Robert P. Smith, 1156 W. Illinois, Palatine, has been promoted by the Allstate Insurance Cos. to the position of accounting manager in the firm's Illinois Regional office, Skokie.

A graduate of Garden City High School, Garden City, Mo., Smith received his bachelor of science degree in accounting from Central Missouri State University.

He joined Allstate in 1960 in the firm's Kansas City Regional office and has progressed through their services' division to his present position.

Fennie Selling Funds

J. Edgar Fennie of Prospect Heights, has qualified as a registered representative of John Hancock Distributors Inc., broker-dealer for John Hancock mutual funds.

John Hancock Distributors, a member of the National Association of Securities Dealers, is a subsidiary of John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Co.

Fennie is associated with the insurance company's John W. Jones Agency in Chicago. To meet federal and state requirements for securities salesmen, he has passed the NASD qualifying examination and complied with all State of Illinois regulations.

Permits Plummeted

The number of housing permits issued for the six-county Chicago metropolitan area in January plummeted from figures reported for the same period last year, according to the Bell Federal Savings Survey of New Building.

Homes dropped to the lowest January level since 1945, while apartments were at the lowest level since 1958.

The 399 single family home permits represented a 48 per cent decrease from the number reported last January, according to the report. Homes declined 46 per cent in Chicago, 50 per cent in the suburbs and 44 per cent in the unincorporated areas.

The largest decrease appeared in the construction of apartment units, for which 422 permits were issued in January compared to 2,745 in January, 1969. This represents an 85 per cent decline. Only 8 units were reported in Chicago, compared to 1,870 a year ago. Last year's total included 399 units of public housing, while no public housing was reported in January, 1970. Apartments declined from 825 to 378 units in the suburbs; unincorporated areas reported 36 units compared to 50 last year.

The January seasonally adjusted housing rate plunged 56 per cent from December to the lowest rate since Bell began publishing this rate in 1957.

The total building permit values for all types of construction decreased 6 per cent, from $88,762,317 to $83,578,896. Permit values decreased 23 per cent in Chicago, but rose 13 per cent in the suburbs and 1 per cent in the unincorporated areas.

Karcher Named Budget Analyst

Richard E. Karcher

Symons Mfg. Co. of Des Plaines, has announced the promotion of Richard E. Karcher, 407 W. Lonnquist Blvd., Mount Prospect, to the newly created position of corporate budget analyst.

For the past five years at Symons, he has served as staff industrial engineer concentrating largely with methods, standards and internal facilities planning.

In his new position, Karcher will aid all Symons divisions and subsidiaries in analyzing their operating budgets in the area of standard direct cost and overhead cost structure. He will assist the divisions in establishing flexible operating budgets to fit their requirements and help them prepare and maintain capital expenditure programs.

Karcher is a 1949 graduate of Beloit College and attained his M.B.A. in 1963 from Michigan State University. He is a member of the American Management Association, the National Council of Physical Distribution Management and Beta Gamma Sigma. His civic affiliations include a trusteeship of Southminster Presbyterian Church, Arlington Heights.

Prior to joining Symons, Karcher was employed for five years as senior industrial engineer with Reynolds Metals Co. in Grand Rapids, Mich.

THE NEW OXFORD is one of the homes at Meritex's New Village community of single-family homes in Hanover Park. The price is $37,695 for the five-bedroom 2½ bath bi-level, including a finished family room, wood-burning fireplace and 2½ car garage with enclosed rear entrance.

Design Theme With Appeal

Maintaining one decorating theme for both the exterior and interior designs of a home greatly increases the sales appeal of the structure, according to Leonard W. Besinger, Jr., president of Meritex Corporation.

At New Village, a community of single-family homes being developed in Hanover Park, Besinger has designed the four model homes so exterior features are repeated within the building.

A finished family room and wood-burning fireplace is included in the basic cost of every home at New Village. The materials used for these are, in effect, the identical materials — in both color and texture — as those used for the exterior of the homes.

An example of this design-appeal technique is the use of rough-sawn cedar siding. Besides using it extensively for exterior facing on the homes, it is also used to panel the interior walls of the family rooms. Even the specific color selected by the purchasers for the siding is repeated in the interior.

Another way Besinger continues the design theme throughout the home is by using face brick both inside and outside of the building. The brick used for the exterior facing matches both the color and texture of that used for the fireplace in the family room. In all the homes, the face-brick fireplace is mounted on a Bedford-stone raised hearth and has a timber mantel above it.

The New Oxford, largest of the models on display is a five bedroom 2½ bath bi-level home. The cost of $37,695 includes (in addition to the finished family room and brick fireplace) a 2½ car garage with enclosed rear entrance; laundry room; kitchen with built-in cabinets, oven and range, balcony living room, formal dining room and foyer.

Another popular home is the New Bristol, a tri-level design with three bedrooms, 1½ baths, cathedral-ceiling living room; two car garage, family room and direct lower level entrace, kitchen with built-in cabinets, oven and range with the finished family room and brick fireplace, the price is $32,295.

A three-bedroom ranch, known as the New London, features three bedrooms, full basement, two tiled baths, living room, kitchen with built-in cabinets, oven and range, paneled family room with fireplace, foyer, mud room and one-car garage. It is priced at $33,295.

The second bi-level model at New Village is the New Asbury, priced at $31,695. This home has 3 bedrooms, tiled bath and powder room, balcony living room, kitchen with built-in cabinets, oven and range, paneled family room with fireplace, foyer and two-car garage.

New Village is located on Lake Street, a mile west of Barrington Road in Hanover Park.

Models may be seen seven days a week from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Chicago Board Has Investment Seminar

"Opportunities in Investment Properties for Residential Brokers & Salesmen" will be the topic discussed at the March 11 monthly members meeting of the Chicago Real Estate Board, Richard Ruzich, CREB program chairman, announced.

The meeting will feature Jay W. Levine, of Hollywood, Calif. as guest speaker. It will be held in the Walnut Room of the Bismarck Hotel, 171 West Randolph, Chicago.

Levine's presentation will include a demonstration of computer technology now available which promises to open up this specialized field to many not now involved.

The meeting will get started with a cocktail party hosted by the Northern Trust Co. at 5:30 p.m. Tickets for the meeting are $7 each and include dinner. Reservations can be made through Tom Hughes at board headquarters, 105 West Madison Street, CE 6-4858.

An all-day seminar on "How to Attract Risk Capital into Real Estate in the 70's" will also be presented by the Chicago Real Estate Board on March 11, CREB President J. H. McIntosh announced.

Featuring Realtor Levine, the program will be held in the Grand Ballroom of the LaSalle Hotel from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Levine's presentation will include instruction on: overcoming the illusions of the new tax laws; increasing listing power; instant broker-to-broker communications; real estate variables available; estate building; and increasing the ability to motivate buyers.

Tickets for the all-day session are $10.00 each and include luncheon and coffee breaks. Reservations can be made through Hughes at board headquarters.

Harry W. Gahagan, Harry W. Gahagan Realty Co., a Chicago Real Estate Board past president, was elected Chairman of the 1970 CREB Nominating Committee last week.

CREB's immediate past president Paul E. Leason, Applegate, Leason & Co., was elected committee vice chairman and Sandy Carroll, Carroll & Neiman, Inc., was elected secretary.

In addition to the election of its leaders, the 18-member Committee set dates and places for seven regional meetings of CREB members for the purpose of recommending nominees. In accordance with CREB By-Laws, the Committee, following these regional meetings, will submit a slate of officers for the 1970 administration to be voted on in April. The slate will be announced at the CREB March 11 Monthly Members Meeting.

No Need to Grope

New faucets not only lend sparkle to the bathroom and kitchen, they offer convenience and safety as well, the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau stated.

Temperature-limit controls on showers prevent the water from getting hotter than a pre-determined setting.

Color-coded devices on many faucets are another safety device. Red indicates hot and blue cold.

An accessory center for the bathtub means the bather no longer has to grope around for what he needs. The center contains a grab bar, single-dial shower control, soap and shampoo tray, diverter and tub filler.

Among the many conveniences of the new faucets are:

Aerators for the kitchen faucet. With a range from a stream to a full spray, a full-circle swivel faucet can reach every corner of the sink.

Push-pull and dial faucets and push-button diverters for tub and shower

Automatic-flow controls on showerheads Water flow is limited to three gallons a minute The bather still gets a satisfying shower

Spray attachments for rinsing dishes and vegetables.

Softer Economy Affecting Sales

At the recent board of directors' meeting of Culligan Inc., company president Harold F Werhane announced that sales for the nine month period ended Jan. 31, were $33,236,425, as compared to $29,597,384 for the corresponding period last year, an increase of 12 per cent.

Earnings for the nine month period were $1,280,668, compared to $1,925,446 for the corresponding period last year, a decrease of 33 per cent These earnings are equivalent to 41 cents a share on the 3,138,222 shares outstanding on Jan. 31, as compared to earnings of 62 cents a share on the 3,103,429 shares outstanding on Jan. 31, 1969.

Sales for the third quarter, ended Jan. 31, were $10,512,209, compared to $10,186,944 for the same period last year, an increase of 3 per cent Earnings for the third quarter were $228,448, compared to $608,509 for the same period last year, a decrease of 62 per cent. These earnings are equivalent to 7 cents a share on the 3,138,222 shares outstanding on January 31, 1970, as compared to earnings of 20 cents a share on the 3,103,429 shares outstanding Jan. 31, 1969.

The 1969 figures have been restated to reflect the pooling of interests of Culligan Water Conditioning, Inc. (Waukesha, Wisconsin) acquired in August, 1969, and Culligan Soft Water Service of Pittsburgh, Inc. (Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania), acquired in September, 1969.

The directors of Culligan declared its regular quarterly dividend of 7 cents a share on its 3,138,222 shares of presently outstanding common stock, payable on March 25, to stockholders of record as of March 9.

Although the total sales volume of Culligan for the third quarter is greater than that of the same period last year, it is lower than was anticipated. This fact, coupled with higher operating costs, is responsible for lower earnings in the third quarter.

The decline in the rate of sales growth was attributed to several factors, including the general softening of the economy, particularly in consumer durables and the reduction in new construction in the United States and Canada.

The present recognition of the dangers of water pollution, both natural and manmade, and the active Culligan programs designed to fulfill these needs, point to a potentially substantial acceleration in the sale of water and waste treatment equipment for the future, according to the firm.

Area Realtor Sets a Record

Bill Annen of Annen and Busse, Realtors, recently announced the names of award winning salesmen, chosen for sales achievement in 1969, as well as total sales volume for 1969.

Recognized for 1969 sales are: Pearl Dombrowski, Pat Sunagel, Muriel Hogarty, Pete Rodgers, Jane Jackson, Manette Christiansen, Mae Kryabill, Bob Magnus, Glen Rosenstrater, Dan Rutiliano, and Whitely Swenson. The firm has 32 sales associates.

Annen reported that the company's sales volume in 1969 was in excess of $21.5 million, marking the 20th successive year of record breaking sales. He also commented that sales were achieved in cooperation with other MAP Multiple Listing Service brokers.

Annen and Busse, Realtors, has offices in Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Elk Grove Village and Palatine.

An Engaging Industry

The joint effort of the food business partners — producers, processors, and retailers — has resulted in a bonanza for consumer families all over the land, said Harry G. Beckner, president of Jewel Food Stores, featured speaker at the recent annual Chicago Food Promotion.

The promotion, sponsored by the state marketing committee of the Illinois Agricultural Association (state-wide Farm Bureau), attracted about 125 farmers from almost every county in the state.

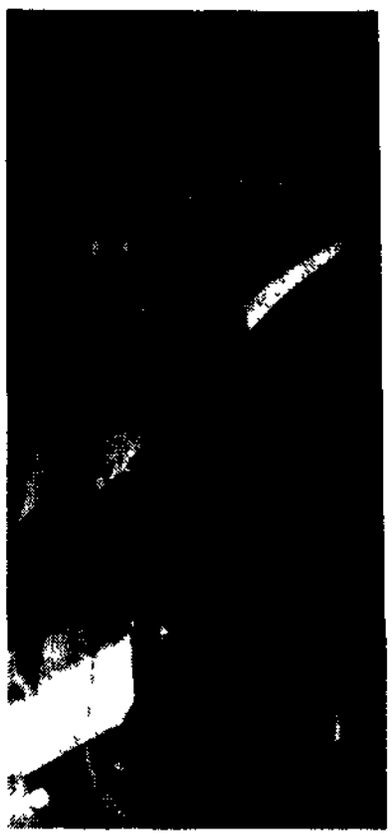
The Chicago food chain president said consumers are benefiting from a lower percentage of income spent for food. Food expenditures today account for 16.9 per cent of the average family income — compared to 26 per cent in 1950, he said.

"When you contemplate that over one-fourth of our total population is engaged one way or another in the production, processing, or distribution of food in some phase of the food industry, we have a formidable force of good will ambassadors. We should earn their commitment to the challenge of telling our story more creatively," he said.

Following a breakfast program, farmers and food industry representatives visited a number of food processing and distributing facilities in the Chicago area.

Purpose of the annual food promotion is to give farmers an opportunity to obtain a better understanding of how agricultural products are marketed after they leave the farm.

Among the participants in the program were: Alfred H. Frank, Arlington Heights, Cook County; and Kenneth Book, Naperville, DuPage County.



NAVY ENSIGN James F. Huggett, husband of the former Miss Marilynn Nelson of 819 E. Park St., Arlington Heights, was commissioned an ensign in the Naval Reserve upon completion of the aviation officer course at the Naval Aviation Schools Command in Pensacola, Fla.

A couple of years ago, a Peace Corps volunteer could do a lot of good in a lot of places with a little Yankee ingenuity and great enthusiasm.

But the world's getting harder to fix. The emerging nations are much more sophisticated. And so are their problems.

That's why we're giving the bulk of our volunteers, the young college graduates, more and better training before they go overseas. With emphasis on specific skills for specific assignments.

We figure they should know how to solve problems before they're overwhelmed by them.

We're also asking for volunteers with more experience and more skills. Plumbers. Engineers. Electricians. Farmers. Almost anybody who's had experience working with his head and his hands.

To get this kind of person, we have to make some changes.

For the first time, the Peace Corps will take volunteers with wives and children.

We will provide adequate living allowances and medical protection for families. Schooling for children.

We will provide adequate housing. (Or find it.)

We're willing to talk to employers about holding jobs and seniority.

Whether we train you, or if you have the skills we need, we'll do what we must to put you where you're needed.

Write us for more information. The world needs all the help it can get.

Toot, Toot ... But It Ain't on Track

by VIRGINIA KUCMIERZ

Milwaukee Road's plan for the creation of a mass transit district along its suburban line from Chicago to Elgin almost got off on the wrong track Tuesday night as mayors and representatives of the communities along the rail line met n Bensenville to learn about the proposed project transit-plan.

Approximately 19 communities located directly on the railroad's west suburban line or adjacent to it were represented at the meeting held by Milwaukee Road officials and representatives of the line's commuter association.

REACTION TO THE mass transit plan, which would entitle the district to two-thirds federal funding for coaches and locomotives, was mixed, but the opposing voices led by Wilbert H. Nottke, Village Pres. Itasca and Mayor Richard Baker, Hanover Park, were strong.

Milwaukee Road officials will be meeting with the individual village boards to discuss the project in greater detail and "answer many of the problems and questions you posed tonight," according to Thomas H. Ploss, company attorney and chairman of the special task force created to expedite the program.

"Milwaukee Road just doesn't have the funds available for capital improvements to keep up with the growing communities along the Chicago-Elgin line," Curtiss E. Crippen, railroad president told the group

HE EXPLAINED rapidly increasing patronage on the Milwaukee west suburban line had taxed the capacity of the existing fleet, particularly during rush hours and pointed to the urgency of a solution such as the creation of a mass transit district

"The stark fact is the Milwaukee Road cannot exist as a private enterprise and invest in new equipment. The amount of capital needed immediately cannot be afforded," Ploss said.

Yet the need for expanded service is there, according to Ploss.

"We estimate by 1974 the line will require 36 additional bi-level cars and 13 locomotives," he said.

BAKER AND NOTTKE both opposed to what they termed "federalism" wanted to know where the remaining one-third financing would come from and if the villages would pay it individually or as a group.

Although the mass transit district, if formed would levy taxes with a referendum, Ploss told the group, Milwaukee Road had no intentions of using tax revenue.

"This is a step in the right direction to federalism," Nottke said. "Most transportation facilities are operated inefficiently. The railroads must reevaluate their operation. If they don't we'll be subsidizing inefficiencies."

PLOSS DEFENDED the Milwaukee operation, stating the company was using every piece of equipment to its maximum, but added "the days are gone when the railroads have a monopoly on transportation."

R. R. Rickson, chairman of the transportation committee on the DuPage County Board of Supervisors said, "I don't like this federal funding any more than anyone else but if we don't help the railroads they will go out of business and unfortunately we'll be spending $6 million for a four lane highway with no parking facilities at the end.

Step Taken Toward Treatment Plant

The Hoffman-Rosner Corp. has crossed another hurdle in its long-standing battle to win permission to build an 800,000-gallon sewage treatment plant, it was learned at a general committee meeting of village trustees Wednesday.

Trustee Werner Troesken, chairman of the zoning and building commission, said the village plan commission, in a special meeting Monday, approved the preliminary and final plats of the various units of the 483-acre Westlake development.

This action, if followed by approval of the village board, would open the way for Hoffman-Rosner to grant easement rights to the sewage plant. The easements are necessary to prevent the plant from beng isolated once the village is ready to build trunk lines to it.

APPROVAL BY the plan commission left it up to the board of trustees to make final approval. Village Pres. Robert Meyers praised the commission for all its hard work, and stated that he saw no reason why the plats would not be approved by the board at its next meeting.

At a prior board meeting, Meyers had said he would not sign the application for the permit allowing Hoffman-Rosner to build the sewage treatment plant until Hoffman-Rosner granted the village the necessary easements. With the approval of the plan commission and the board of trustees, the plats can be recorded and the easements can be granted by Hoffman-Rosner

Later in the meeting, Lowell Siff, Hoffman-Rosner vice-president, asked Meyers to sign the application for a permit for the construction of the new treatment plant. Meyers had vetoed a resolution passed by the board instructing him to sign the application Feb. 25.

SIFF SAID the plant's building design met the requirements of the Illinois Sanitary Water Board and the Division of Waterways, and that if the village president failed to take action on the submitted documents his company would force court action.

Siff also submitted copies of amendment number two of the annexation agreement and amendment number two of the utilities agreement for the signature of the village board president and the village clerk.

In other action, the committee agreed to the necessity of appointing a director of zoning to inspect for building code violations and write out citations in accordance with Article 12 of the Zoning Code. Meyers recommended a director of zoning be appointed at the next meeting of the zoning board.

Village Backs County Sewer Vote

Roselle's Village Board gave its unanimous support to the March 17 $105 million referendum for the county sewer system Monday night.

The resolution of support, read by Trustee Tony Bonavolonta, said "DuPage County cannot wait any longer to adopt a sewer system and may not be able to afford the system, as proposed now, if we wait. . ."

"The board agrees that many of the issues raised by other communities are valid and should definitely be answered. The county should issue more information with sufficient detail to allow taxpayers the necessary evaluation of the construction features, the taxpayers' investment and return of existing plants and the villages' authority in the sanitary board," the support resolution noted.

TRUSTEE RAMON Berg expressed "doubts as to the administration of the countywide sewer system, although I agree with the concept of a countywide plan for sewage treatment."

Despite these apparent reservations, board members generally felt they should back the system proposal to prevent an increase in pollution problems.

In another area of pollution, the board discussed the scope and implications of its proposed burning ordinance with interested residents.

Trustee Ray Casperson said the ordinance, which will be presented to the board March 23, would prohibit all open fires.

"REALIZING THIS would cause undue hardships to residents with large lots and many trees who would have about 45,000 bags of leaves to pack, there would be some provisionf o r a permit to allow burning by these people" he said.

In other action, the board announced its intent to create an electrical commission which would review any petitions for changes in or deviations from that portion of the building code.

Required by state law for villages with populations of more than 5,000, the commission must consist of a contractor, an electrical tradesman and a representative from a public utility company. Any qualified interested persons are asked to apply at the village hall.

A POLICE AND fire commission is also being appointed by the board. About eight persons are being considered for the three-member commission and appointments will be made soon.

The main intent of the commission which will be involved only with the police since the Roselle Fire Depr rtment consists of volunteers, is to "take politics out of the organization of the department," according to Trustee Joseph Devlin.

The commission would formulate standards and examinations for promotions within the department and would actively administer these. It also would hire and fire personnel according to these standards.

Setting a salary schedule and appointing the chief of police would still be functions of the village president and board.

During the meeting, former police chief Lester Sola was awarded a certificate for meritorious service from the Northwest DuPage Chapter of the American Legion.

by KEN HARDWICKE

Stan Rossol burned grass in ashtrays and passed around the marijuana leaf to a room of adults. Shortly after, a box full of "maryjanes" (marijuana-rolled cigarettes) circulated among the group.

If this sounds like the Itasca police department is going to 'pot,' it is partly right

Rossol, Itasca police chief, was holding an informal "pot party" in the village hall Tuesday night but the sole purpose was to inform adults on the facts about the country's most-abused drug.

It was an establishment "cop-out" as Rossol explained to village citizens that DuPage County police are out to stop illegal marijuana use, and to purchase a mobile narcotics unit and extensive cooperation among the municipalities.

THE DRUG TALK before concerned citizens and the Itasca Village Board was enhanced by a movie that documented the facts on marijuana without taking a pro or con opinion.

The movie, narrated by Sonny Bono of Sonny and Cher who have publicly condemned the use of drugs as the social panacea to problems, revealed some misconceptions — favorable and unfavorable — on marijuana.

Most of the audience were members of the establishment who dealt with bathtub gin during their days instead of today's classroom chemistry.

While Rossol and county police are out to put the legal fix on drug pushers, they believe that it is the adult's fault for the recent misuse of drugs by the young.

"We're copping out with our own kids," Rossol told parents. "We don't discuss marijuana with them."

THE CHIEF's contention is that parents are afraid to speak to their children about drugs, and consequently the youth are never properly informed of drug consequences.

Blasting the so-called educators who "opinionate" on the use of marijuana without substantial proof, Rossol asserted that law enforcement only deals with the facts.

"We in law enofrcement haven't been opinionating," Rossol stated. "We try to document the subject with proof."

Rossol added that Margaret Mead, noted anthropologist and other pseudo-intellectuals have a position of authority to influence the youth with their statements. He also lambasted the press for taking out of context what she said.

"I have yet to see these so-called educated people do something for our society," said Rossol.

Where there is fire there is smoke and not all the best kind, according to the police chief.

"NOBODY CAN SAY for sure how marijuana will r e a c t on individuals," Rossol said. "There are only two ways an LSD user can wind up — suicide or the graveyard."

A doctor in the audience agreed with Rossol that LSD is almost untraceable in the human body and has been found to cause fetus deformities.

To combat public ignorance on marijuana and other illegal drugs, Rossol favors a strong program on drug education starting as low as the junior high school level.

A massive education program along with school rehabilitation programs is needed to effectively counteract the rising drug problem in the county.

"I don't believe throwing them in jail is the remedy," Rossol said. "And although Itasca has never had a registered case of drug abuse, we know that there are purchases being made around the area."

THE POLICE CHIEF will be speaking to the Itasca PTA on drug abuse April 28 in the Washington School. The public is invited to attend the informative drug meeting.

"If we could deter just one drug user, we'd feel better," said Rossol.

His future drug speaking engagements are aimed at that end.

Jim Fuller Joins Staff

The Register welcomes a new member to its staff. Jim Fuller will be our Bloomingdale, Keeneyville and Lake Park High School reporter.

Fuller comes to the Register from the University of Illinois, where he recently received a masters degree in journalism. He served in the Army Intelligence Corps for two years and was discharged as a first lieutenant.

He received a bachelor's degree from DePaul University, Chicago, where he majored in English.

MARRIED, Fuller and his wife Laura Lynn are temporarily living in Chicago and plan to move to DuPage County.

Fuller will replace Virginia Kucmierz, who now will cover Roselle and Medinah while maintaining coverage of DuPage County government.

Miss Kucmierz, originally from Detroit and a graduate of the University of Colorado, Boulder, has been with the Register since June, 1969.

VFW Party To Honor Wounded Viet Vets

Eigty wounded veterans of the Vietnam war will be honored Thursday night at a party sponsored by the Addison VFW.

The men, from the Great Lakes Naval Hospital, will be feted with hamburgers, hot dogs, french fries and liquid refreshments at the local VFW hall, Lake Street near Mill Road in Addison.

Eighty women from the Addison area, many of them daughters of VFW members, will serve as hostesses for the 7:30 p.m. party, which will feature a live dance band.

Series Begins On Candidates

For candidates seeking DuPage county offices, the March 17 St. Patrick's Day primary election will be basically calm because most of the candidates are unopposed within their own party.

Only one of the four offices to be filled is an intra-party contest, with two Republicans seeking the nomination for county treasurer for the November election.

In order to keep our readers informed, the Register is presenting a series of profiles on the candidates. Starting today, with superintendent of schools and continuing next week, each issue will present interviews with the men seeking each office. Turn to page 5.

Science Fair Slated At St. Peter's School

St. Peter's Catholic School, Itasca, will hold its annual Science Fair Sunday from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. at the school hall.

Fourth through eighth graders will display their science projects under the direction of teachers Patrick O'Donnell and Thomas Logan.

Judges will be present to award outstanding science exhibits.

Vandals Killing Teen Night?

The Teen Night program for seventh and eighth graders at the Roselle United Methodist Church, 208 S. Rush, Roselle may go broke as a result of vandalism.

Police have been alerted by Paul Lewis, sponsor of the program, about jars of paint that have been broken against brick walls and four-letter obscenities have been sprayed on church doors.

The expense of the repair may be instrumental in either closing the program or raising the admission fees.

Other church activities have not been affected. The Tamilem Club for married couples at the church has planned a pot luck dinner and guest speaker for their March activity. The couples will meet tomorrow at 6:30 in Langdon Hall for a meal. Reservations are being accepted by hostesses Mrs. Donald Levans (773-0673) or Mrs. Earl Olson (529-4964).

HIGHLIGHT OF the evening will be a p r o g r a m presented by Mrs. Robert Vaughn of the Kedzie Memorial Church. She will show slides and talk of the storefront church centers called "The Root" and "The Branch," which her church supports. Vaughn serves as coordinator of the centers and is pastor of the Kedzie Memorial Church in Chicago. Mrs. Vaughn is the daughter of the Reverend and Mrs. Earl Olson.

A theatre party is scheduled for the April 4th activity.

Doors Open At Hospital

A display on reproduction, some exotic pets, and a police dog training and attack demonstration are a few of the things in store for those who attend the Bensenville Animal Hospital open house to be held Sunday from 1:30 to 4 p.m.

The hospital, located at Irving Park Road and Route 83, in Bensenville scheduled the open house in response to Gov. Richard Ogilvie's designation of the first week in March as the second annual Illinois Veterinary Medical Education Week.

The open house, attended by over 500 people last year, will also include a 15-minute film on expanding demensions in veterinary medicine, a demonstration of basic fundamentals in dog grooming, and displays on X-ray equipment, surgical technique, and preserved specimens of tumors, embryos, and pathological conditions.

ELMHURST FEDERAL SAVINGS

'Viet-Rock' Comes Off Convincingly

by MURRAY DUBIN

They looked as if they were ready to picket something.

The hair, the headbands, the peace and love symbols made you think they beonged in Champaign-Urbana rather than on the stage of the Mill Run Playhouse rehearsing tomorrow's performance of "Viet-Rock."

But as casual as they appeared and as unconcerned as they acted, when the lights went on and the music began, the 17 people in the "Viet-Rock" cast fused into a cohesive performing unit.

The funny musical, called "a contemporary study of our war," combines macabre humor with uproarious overstatement and a sobering look at the blood and guts of war.

STICKING LIKE glue to the Vietnam war, the cast sings, dances, curses, praises and laughs about the conflict. Revolving before the audience's eye on the circular stage, the Loyola and Mundelein drama students play cowboys and Indians in the first act and American and South Vietnamese troops later on.

Particularly convincing in his performance as an Army sergeant was Bill Jaeger, a long-haired, thin actor who reminded you of every "you should a seen my sergeant" story you've ever heard.

The only lapse from the Vietnam theme was the rousing number "The Onion That Ate Chicago," but even that, with blind justice falling off her pedestal, had strains of Vietnam running through it.

The second act began more quietly than the first, with the opening number "Please God" chilling the attentive audience. But the razor-edged lines are only a minute away as the sergeant says, "Spill your blood, boobies! That's the highest form of love."

KRIS KUNZ, a leggy redhead who had "The Loner" stenciled to the back of her dungaree jacket, was great in the second act and through the entire show. Involved in the last three musical numbers of the show, she exemplified the enthusiasm and fervor that the entire cast brought to the theater with them.

The show's music will never rival that of "Hair," but it is adequate and Bubbles Lasowski and the Boys in the Band provide an effective background sound.

The performance, sponsored by the Northwest Suburban Peace Coalition, will begin at 8 p.m. and will feature Curtis MacDougall, a Democratic candidate for the 13th Congressional District race, speaking before the performance.

The Library's 'Booked Solid'

by KEN HARDWICKE

All booked-up and no place to go. That seems to be the unfortunate plight of the Wood Dale Public Library these days.

Librarians have already filled the library's third addition with ample reading material. The new addition was completed in October. Now, library officials are seeking village permission to occupy the vacated police department adjacent to the building.

The old police offices offer cramped library facilities some 480 feet to expand. But library officials must have village council approval to move into the vacant space.

"The old police department was built with the stipulation that it would become part of the library when vacated," asserted George F. Welter, library designer and engineer.

TO DATE there has been no formal council action allowing the library to occupy the urgently-needed space.

Besides seeking additional space, the Wood Dale Library wants a village guarantee to use present parking lot space for future building construction.

"We are now looking for the village to give us a deed to this lot or a long lease," said Welter.

Welter added the lease would give the library the necessary land to build a two-story addition onto the present structure. The new library extension is tentative and can only be built through a future bond issue.

"We have to have the land before we decide to build on it," said Welter.

Wood Dale's library currently has 15,200 books on its shelves and offers a wide variety of services to the public.

AMONG THE library's more prominent services are seven drawers of historic art reproductions and an extensive pamphlet file. Also available are more than 100 records (popular and semi-classical) and a well-organized periodical department.

Presently the library is crowded with studying children and the additional building and land space being sought figures in the library board's future planning.

"About 4,300 books were checked out of this library in February," stated Ruth Welter, head librarian. That number is a clear indication of library demands and needs.

While books and people continue to pile up within the limited space of the library, officials are keeping a sharp ear attuned to council approval for future library progress.

Bomb Threat False Alarm

"There is a bomb in the Highland School and some children are going to be hurt."

Those words were spoken over the telephone to Wood Dale Police Matron Phyllis LaFarge Monday night, launching an extensive search and investigation by village police and fire department authorities.

Fortunately, no bomb was found after a three-hour search of the school by local officials.

The anonymous caller phoned village police at approximately 7:53 p.m. Monday. After making the bomb threat, the caller promptly hung up the telephone.

POLICE CHIEF Arthur D. Christy said the caller was not a juvenile but appeared to be a male adult.

"This was a false alarm, but further incidents will mean prosecution for the person involved," said Christy.

The police chief was especially high in his praise for Wood Dale's Volunteer Fire Department and William Overlin, acting-chief.

"I commend the volunteers for devotion to duty and a thorough intensive search made of the building," Christy said. "They did a marvelous job."

Club Planning Its 'Mardi Gras'

Shall we dance?

The Bensenville Park District is inviting area residents to join in on the festivities of the First Annual White Pines Mardi Gras to be held April 4 at the White Pines Country Club.

Costumes for the affair are optional, but preferred. Costume prizes will be awarded for King Rex, Queen Venus, King Zulu and the Queen's Handmaiden.

A donation of $7.50 per couple is being asked. The price includes dinner, a bottle of champaigne per couple and dance music by the "Green Street Revelars."

The dinner menu includes lasagne, chicken, beef, salads, relishes, desserts and Louisiana coffee.

The Park District said reservations may be made by phoning its offices, 766-7015 or 766-4334.

Proceeds from the affair will go to the Bensenville Boys Athletic Association (BBAA).

Chorale To Sing

The Moody Chorale, the a cappella choir of Moody Bible Institute, Chicago, will sing at the Itasca Evangelical Free Church, on Sunday at 7 p.m.

The church is located on Bonnie Brae and George streets in Itasca. This concert will be held at the onset of the annual Missionary Conference. Everyone is invited to attend the concert.

Moody chorale is heralded on two continents as outstanding in its field. In 1954, 1958, and 1967, the group presented concerts in six European countries. Newspapers dubbed them "missionaries in song," a title that has remained with them through the years.

The chorale tours parts of the United States and Canada twice yearly presenting masterworks of sacred choral music, gospel songs and hymn arrangements. Five record albums featuring their work have been released.

No admission will be charged for the concert; a free-will donation will be accepted.

Toot, Toot ... But It Ain't on Track

by VIRGINIA KUCMIERZ

Milwaukee Road's plan for the creation of a mass transit district along its suburban line from Chicago to Elgin almost got off on the wrong track Tuesday night as mayors and representatives of the communities along the rail line met n Bensenville to learn about the proposed project transit-plan.

Approximately 19 communities located directly on the railroad's west suburban line or adjacent to it were represented at the meeting held by Milwaukee Road officials and representatives of the line's commuter association.

REACTION TO THE mass transit plan, which would entitle the district to two-thirds federal funding for coaches and locomotives, was mixed, but the opposing voices led by Wilbert H. Nottke, Village Pres. Itasca and Mayor Richard Baker, Hanover Park, were strong.

Milwaukee Road officials will be meeting with the individual village boards to discuss the project in greater detail and "answer many of the problems and questions you posed tonight," according to Thomas H. Ploss, company attorney and chairman of the special task force created to expedite the program

"Milwaukee Road just doesn't have the funds available for capital improvements to keep up with the growing communities along the Chicago-Elgin line." Curtiss E Crippen, railroad president told the group.

HE EXPLAINED rapidly increasing patronage on the Milwaukee west suburban line had taxed the capacity of the existing fleet, particularly during rush hours and pointed to the urgency of a solution such as the creation of a mass transit district

"The stark fact is the Milwaukee Road cannot exist as a private enterprise and invest in new equipment. The amount of capital needed immediately cannot be afforded," Ploss said.

Yet the need for expanded service is there, according to Ploss.

"We estimate by 1974 the line will require 36 additional bi-level cars and 13 locomotives," he said.

BAKER AND NOTTKE both opposed to what they termed "federalism" wanted to know where the remaining one-third financing would come from and if the villages would pay it individually or as a group.

Although the mass transit district, if formed would levy taxes with a referendum, Ploss told the group, Milwaukee Road had no intentions of using tax revenue.

"This is a step in the right direction to federalism," Nottke said. "Most transportation facilities are operated inefficiently. The railroads must reevaluate their operation. If they don't we'll be subsidizing inefficiencies."

PLOSS DEFENDED the Milwaukee operation, stating the company was using every piece of equipment to its maximum, but added "the days are gone when the railroads have a monopoly on transportation."

R. R. Rickson, chairman of the transportation committee on the DuPage County Board of Supervisors said, "I don't like this federal funding any more than anyone else but if we don't help the railroads they will go out of business and unfortunately we'll be spending $6 million for a four lane highway with no parking facilities at the end.

Step Taken Toward Treatment Plant

The Hoffman-Rosner Corp. has crossed another hurdle in its long-standing battle to win permission to build an 800,000-gallon sewage treatment plant, it was learned at a general committee meeting of village trustees Wednesday.

Trustee Werner Troesken, chairman of the zoning and building commission, said the village plan commission, in a special meeting Monday, approved the preliminary and final plats of the various units of the 483-acre Westlake development.

This action, if followed by approval of the village board, would open the way for Hoffman-Rosner to grant easement rights to the sewage plant. The easements are necessary to prevent the plant from beng isolated once the village is ready to build trunk lines to it.

APPROVAL BY the plan commission left it up to the board of trustees to make final approval, Village Pres. Robert Meyers praised the commission for all its hard work, and stated that he saw no reason why the plats would not be approved by the board at its next meeting.

At a prior board meeting, Meyers had said he would not sign the application for the permit allowing Hoffman-Rosner to build the sewage treatment plant until Hoffman-Rosner granted the village the necessary easements. With the approval of the plan commission and the board of trustees, the plats can be recorded and the easements can be granted by Hoffman-Rosner

Later in the meeting, Lowell Siff, Hoffman-Rosner vice-president, asked Meyers to sign the application for a permit for the construction of the new treatment plant. Meyers had vetoed a resolution passed by the board instructing him to sign the application Feb. 25.

SIFF SAID the plant's building design met the requirements of the Illinois Sanitary Water Board and the Division of Waterways, and that if the village president failed to take action on the submitted documents his company would force court action.

Siff also submitted copies of amendment number two of the annexation agreement and amendment number two of the utilities agreement for the signature of the village board president and the village clerk.

In other action, the committee agreed to the necessity of appointing a director of zoning to inspect for building code violations and write out citations in accordance with Article 12 of the Zoning Code. Meyers recommended a director of zoning be appointed at the next meeting of the zoning board.

Village Backs County Sewer Vote

Roselle's Village Board gave its unanimous support to the March 17 $106 million referendum for the county sewer system Monday night.

The resolution of support, read by Trustee Tony Bonavolonta, said "DuPage County cannot wait any longer to adopt a sewer system and may not be able to afford the system, as proposed now, if we wait. . ."

"The board agrees that many of the issues raised by other communities are valid and should definitely be answered. The county should issue more information with sufficient detail to allow taxpayers the necessary evaluation of the construction features, the taxpayers' investment and return of existing plants and the villages' authority in the sanitary board," the support resolution noted.

TRUSTEE RAMON Berg expressed "doubts as to the administration of the countywide sewer system, although I agree with the concept of a countywide plan for sewage treatment."

Despite these apparent reservations, board members generally felt they should back the system proposal to prevent an increase in pollution problems.

In another area of pollution, the board discussed the scope and implications of its proposed burning ordinance with interested residents.

Trustee Ray Casperson said the ordinance, which will be presented to the board March 23, would prohibit all open fires.

"REALIZING THIS would cause undue hardships to residents with large lots and many trees who would have about 45,000 bags of leaves to pack, there would be some provisionf o r a permit to allow burning by these people" he said.

In other action, the board announced its intent to create an electrical commission which would review any petitions for changes in or deviations from that portion of the building code.

Required by state law for villages with populations of more than 5,000, the commission must consist of a contractor, an electrical tradesman and a representative from a public utility company. Any qualified interested persons are asked to apply at the village hall.

A POLICE AND fire commission is also being appointed by the board. About eight persons are being considered for the three-member commission and appointments will be made soon.

The main intent of the commission which will be involved only with the police since the Roselle Fire Department consists of volunteers, is to "take politics out of the organization of the department," according to Trustee Joseph Devlin.

The commission would formulate standards and examinations for promotions within the department and would actively administer these. It also would hire and fire personnel according to these standards.

Setting a salary schedule and appointing the chief of police would still be functions of the village president and board.

During the meeting, former police chief Lester Sola was awarded a certificate for meritorious service from the Northwest DuPage Chapter of the American Legion.

Police Have a 'Pot Party'

by KEN HARDWICKE

Stan Rossol burned grass in ashtrays and passed around the marijuana leaf to a room of adults. Shortly after, a box full of "maryjanes" (marijuana-rolled cigarettes) circulated among the group.

If this sounds like the Itasca police department is going to 'pot,' it is partly right

Rossol, Itasca police chief, was holding an informal "pot party" in the village hall Tuesday night but the sole purpose was to inform adults on the facts about the country's most-abused drug.

It was an establishment "cop-out" as Rossol explained to village citizens that DuPage County police are out to stop illegal marijuana use, and to purchase a mobile narcotics unit and extensive cooperation among the municipalities.

THE DRUG TALK before concerned citizens and the Itasca Village Board was enhanced by a movie that documented the facts on marijuana without taking a pro or con opinion.

The movie, narrated by Sonny Bono of Sonny and Cher who have publicly condemned the use of drugs as the social panacea to problems, revealed some misconceptions — favorable and unfavorable — on marijuana.

Most of the audience were members of the establishment who dealt with bathtub gin during their days instead of today's classroom chemistry.

While Rossol and county police are out to put the legal fix on drug pushers, they believe that it is the adult's fault for the recent misuse of drugs by the young.

"We're copping out with our own kids," Rossol told parents. "We don't discuss marijuana with them."

THE CHIEF's contention is that parents are afraid to speak to their children about drugs, and consequently the youth are never properly informed of drug consequences.

Blasting the so-called educators who "opinionate" on the use of marijuana without substantial proof, Rossol asserted that law enforcement only deals with the facts.

"We in law enofrcement haven't been opinionating," Rossol stated. "We try to document the subject with proof."

Rossol added that Margaret Mead, noted anthropologist and other pseudo-intellectuals have a position of authority to influence the youth with their statements. He also lambasted the press for taking out of context what she said.

"I have yet to see these so-called educated people do something for our society," said Rossol.

Where there is fire there is smoke and not all the best kind, according to the police chief.

"NOBODY CAN SAY for sure how marijuana will r e a c t on individuals," Rossol said. "There are only two ways an LSD user can wind up — suicide or the graveyard."

A doctor in the audience agreed with Rossol that LSD is almost untraceable in the human body and has been found to cause fetus deformities.

To combat public ignorance on marijuana and other illegal drugs, Rossol favors a strong program on drug education starting as low as the junior high school level.

A massive education program along with school rehabilitation programs is needed to effectively counteract the rising drug problem in the county.

"I don't believe throwing them in jail is the remedy," Rossol said. "And although Itasca has never had a registered case of drug abuse, we know that there are purchases being made around the area."

THE POLICE CHIEF will be speaking to the Itasca PTA on drug abuse April 28 in the Washington School. The public is invited to attend the informative drug meeting.

"If we could deter just one drug user, we'd feel better," said Rossol.

His future drug speaking engagements are aimed at that end.

Series Begins On Candidates

For candidates seeking DuPage county offices, the March 17 St. Patrick's Day primary election will be basically calm because most of the candidates are unopposed within their own party.

Only one of the four offices to be filled is an intra-party contest, with two Republicans seeking the nomination for county treasurer for the November election.

In order to keep our readers informed, the Register is presenting a series of profiles on the candidates. Starting today, with superintendent of schools and continuing next week, each issue will present interviews with the men seeking each office. Turn to page 5.

VFW Party To Honor Wounded Viet Vets

Eigty wounded veterans of the Vietnam war will be honored Thursday night at a party spoosored by the Addison VFW.

The men, from the Great Lakes Naval Hospital, will be feted with hamburgers, hot dogs, french fries and liquid refreshments at the local VFW hall, Lake Street near Mill Road in Addison.

Eighty women from the Addison area, many of them daughters of VFW members, will serve as hostesses for the 7:30 p.m. party, which will feature a live dance band.

Jim Fuller Joins Staff

The Register welcomes a new member to its staff. Jim Fuller will be our Bloomingdale, Keeneyville and Lake Park High School reporter.

Fuller comes to the Register from the University of Illinois, where he recently received a masters degree in journalism. He served in the Army Intelligence Corps for two years and was discharged as a first lieutenant.

He received a bachelor's degree from DePaul University, Chicago, where he majored in English.

MARRIED, Fuller and his wife Laura Lynn are temporarily living in Chicago and plan to move to DuPage County.

Fuller will replace Virginia Kucmierz, who now will cover Roselle and Medinah while maintaining coverage of DuPage County government.

Miss Kucmierz, originally from Detroit and a graduate of the University of Colorado, Boulder, has been with the Register since June, 1969.

Vandals Killing Teen Night?

The Teen Night program for seventh and eighth graders at the Roselle United Methodist Church, 206 S. Rush, Roselle may go broke as a result of vandalism.

Police have been alerted by Paul Lewis, sponsor of the program, about jars of paint that have been broken against brick walls and four-letter obscenities have been sprayed on church doors.

The expense of the repair may be instrumental in either closing the program or raising the admission fees.

Other church activities have not been affected. The Tandem Club for married couples at the church has planned a pot luck dinner and guest speaker for their March activity. The couples will meet tomorrow at 6:30 in Langdon Hall for a meal. Reservations are being accepted by hostesses Mrs. Donald Levans (773-0673) or Mrs. Earl Olson (529-4964).

HIGHLIGHT OF the evening will be a p r o g r a m presented by Mrs. Robert Vaughn of the Kedzie Memorial Church. She will show slides and talk of the storefront church centers called "The Root" and "The Branch," which her church supports. Vaughn serves as coordinator of the centers and is pastor of the Kedzie Memorial Church in Chicago. Mrs. Vaughn is the daughter of the Reverend and Mrs. Earl Olson.

A theatre party is scheduled for the April 4th activity.

Doors Open At Hospital

A display on reproduction, some exotic pets, and a police dog training and attack demonstration are a few of the things in store for those who attend the Bensenville Animal Hospital open house to be held Sunday from 1:30 to 4 p.m.

The hospital, located at Irving Park Road and Route 83, in Bensenville scheduled the open house in response to Gov. Richard Ogilvie's designation of the first week in March as the second annual Illinois Veterinary Medical Education Week.

The open house, attended by over 500 people last year, will also include a 15-minute film on expanding demensions in veterinary medicine, a demonstration of basic fundamentals in dog grooming, and displays on X-ray equipment, surgical technique, and preserved specimens of tumors, embryos, and pathological conditions.

'Viet-Rock' Comes Off Convincingly

by MURRAY DUBIN

They looked as if they were ready to picket something.

The hair, the headbands, the peace and love symbols made you think they belonged in Champaign-Urbana rather than on the stage of the Mill Run Playhouse rehearsing tomorrow's performance of "Viet-Rock."

But as casual as they appeared and as unconcerned as they acted, when the lights went on and the music began, the 17 people in the "Viet-Rock" cast fused into a cohesive performing unit.

The funny musical, called "a contemporary study of our war," combines macabre humor with uproarious overstatement and a sobering look at the blood and guts of war.

STICKING LIKE glue to the Vietnam war, the cast sings, dances, curses, praises and laughs about the conflict. Revolving before the audience's eye on the circular stage, the Loyola and Mundelein drama students play cowboys and Indians in the first act and American and South Vietnamese troops later on.

Particularly convincing in his performance as an Army sergeant was Bill Jaeger, a long-haired, thin actor who reminded you of every "you should a seen my sergeant" story you've ever heard.

The only lapse from the Vietnam theme was the rousing number "The Onion That Ate Chicago," but even that, with blind justice falling off her pedestal, had strains of Vietnam running through it.

The second act began more quietly than the first, with the opening number "Please God" chilling the attentive audience. But the razor-edged lines are only a minute away as the sergeant says, "Spill your blood, boobies! That's the highest form of love."

KRIS KUNZ, a leggy redhead who had "The Loner" stenciled to the back of her dungaree jacket, was great in the second act and through the entire show. Involved in the last three musical numbers of the show, she exemplified the enthusiasm and fervor that the entire cast brought to the theater with them.

The show's music will never rival that of "Hair," but it is adequate and Bubbles Lasowski and the Boys in the Band provide an effective background sound.

The performance, sponsored by the Northwest Suburban Peace Coalition, will begin at 8 p.m. and will feature Curtis MacDougall, a Democratic candidate for the 13th Congressional District race, speaking before the performance.

The Library's 'Booked Solid'

by KEN HARDWICKE

All booked-up and no place to go. That seems to be the unfortunate plight of the Wood Dale Public Library these days.

Librarians have already filled the library's third addition with ample reading material. The new addition was completed in October. Now, library officials are seeking village permission to occupy the vacated police department adjacent to the building.

The old police offices offer cramped library facilities some 480 feet to expand. But library officials must have village council approval to move into the vacant space.

"The old police department was built with the stipulation that it would become part of the library when vacated," asserted George F. Welter, library designer and engineer.

TO DATE there has been no formal council action allowing the library to occupy the urgently-needed space.

Besides seeking additional space, the Wood Dale Library wants a village guarantee to use present parking lot space for future building construction.

"We are now looking for the village to give us a deed to this lot or a long lease," said Welter.

Welter added the lease would give the library the necessary land to build a two-story addition onto the present structure. The new library extension is tentative and can only be built through a future bond issue.

"We have to have the land before we decide to build on it," said Welter.

Wood Dale's library currently has 15,200 books on its shelves and offers a wide variety of services to the public.

AMONG THE library's more prominent services are seven drawers of historic art reproductions and an extensive pamphlet file. Also available are more than 100 records (popular and semi-classical) and a well-organized periodical department.

Presently the library is crowded with studying children and the additional building and land space being sought figures in the library board's future planning.

"About 4,300 books were checked out of this library in February," stated Ruth Welter, head librarian. That number is a clear indication of library demands and needs.

While books and people continue to pile up within the limited space of the library, officials are keeping a sharp ear attuned to council approval for future library progress.

Club Planning Its 'Mardi Gras'

Shall we dance?

The Bensenville Park District is inviting area residents to join in on the festivities of the First Annual White Pines Mardi Gras to be held April 4 at the White Pines Country Club.

Costumes for the affair are optional, but preferred. Costume prizes will be awarded for King Rex, Queen Venus, King Zulu and the Queen's Handmaiden.

A donation of $7.50 per couple is being asked. The price includes dinner, a bottle of champaigne per couple and dance music by the "Green Street Revelars."

The dinner menu includes lasagne, chicken, beef, salads, relishes, desserts and Louisiana coffee.

The Park District said reservations may be made by phoning its offices, 766-7015 or 766-4334.

Proceeds from the affair will go to the Bensenville Boys Athletic Association (BBAA).

Chorale To Sing

The Moody Chorale, the a cappella choir of Moody Bible Institute, Chicago, will sing at the Itasca Evangelical Free Church, on Sunday at 7 p.m.

The church is located on Bonnie Brae and George streets in Itasca. This concert will be held at the onset of the annual Missionary Conference. Everyone is invited to attend the concert.

Moody chorale is heralded on two continents as outstanding in its field. In 1954, 1958, and 1967, the group presented concerts in six European countries. Newspapers dubbed them "missionaries in song," a title that has remained with them through the years.

The cherale tours parts of the United States and Canada twice yearly presenting masterworks of sacred choral music, gospel songs and hymn arrangements. Five record albums featuring their work have been released.

No admission will be charged for the concert; a free-will donation will be accepted.

CARING FOR CHILDREN is the purpose of the Well Child Clinic located in Addison. Babies receive shots and examinations from a physician with the aid of three registered nurses. In this case, Dr. T. E. Palus provides the expert attention for Annette Kostlevy, 4, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Kostlevy, of 53 S. Mill Road, Addison. The clinic is open once a month.

Well Child Clinic Provides Safeguard

by BARRY SIGALE

Let's try a simple riddle.

When is a well child not a well child? Right. When he's ill.

Now, let's try another one. When is an ill child not ill? Right again. When he's well.

The object of the Well Child Clinic, based in the Addison Municipal Building, is to solve the second riddle — to provide the necessary medication to prevent babies from getting sick.

The program is designed for infants of families that may not be able to afford the inoculations and other medication or who possibly don't have a regular family doctor.

Dr. T. A. Palus explains the service.

"We are here to see that the child is taken care of properly, that he gets the right medication and that he is developing properly," Dr. Palus said, as he examined one of the nearly 25 babies brought in each month.

"The infant is given an inoculation from the time he is one month old until about 18 months and we don't see him again until he needs the shots for elementary school. Our examinations are designed to determine if any deficiencies are found. We have to see that we have a healthy nation."

Dr. Palus said most babies are in pretty good health and that modern methods are providing children with better care and healthier foods. He said children today are better off nutritionally than ever before.

The Well Child Clinic is open the first Wednesday of every month. Parents must make an appointment, through their family doctors, at the DuPage County Department of Health. A registration form is filled out and the medical history of the baby is recorded.

When the mothers bring their children to the clinic, they must sign in. The babies are weighed, measured and their temperatures taken. They then are prepared to see the doctor. While they are waiting, they can play with toys that have been provided. The toys are donated to the clinic.

The children are not taken for examination if they are ill, said Mrs. John Welk, a member of the Addison Women's Club, an organization which provides eight volunteers to help the three nurses and one doctor in the process of examining the babies.

"We don't take the children if they are sick," she said. "They still would need to see their own physician or if they were seriously ill they might have to go to a hospital for treatment."

The clinic specializes in caring for young children. They are aided by the Addison Community Chest and the Addison Kiwanis Club, which supplements money provided by the County Health Department, which donates the medicine.

The only charge is the 25 cents parents must pay for each shot given. It pays for the cost of the disposable syringe.

Police Have a 'Pot Party'

by KEN HARDWICKE

Stan Rossol burned grass in ashtrays and passed around the marijuana leaf to a room of adults. Shortly after, a box full of "maryjanes" (marijuana-rolled cigarettes) circulated among the group.

If this sounds like the Itasca police department is going to 'pot,' it is partly right.

Rossol, Itasca police chief, was holding an informal "pot party" in the village hall Tuesday night but the sole purpose was to inform adults on the facts about the country's most-abused drug.

It was an establishment "cop-out" as Rossol explained to village citizens that DuPage County police are out to stop illegal marijuana use, and to purchase a mobile narcotics unit and extensive cooperation among the municipalities.

THE DRUG TALK before concerned citizens and the Itasca Village Board was enhanced by a movie that documented the facts on marijuana without taking a pro or con opinion.

The movie, narrated by Sonny Bono of Sonny and Cher who have publicly condemned the use of drugs as the social panacea to problems, revealed some misconceptions — favorable and unfavorable — on marijuana.

Most of the audience were members of the establishment, who dealt with bathtub gin during their days instead of today's classroom chemistry.

While Rossol and county police are out to put the legal fix on drug pushers, they believe that it is the adult's fault for the recent misuse of drugs by the young.

"We're copping out with our own kids," Rossol told parents. "We don't discuss marijuana with them."

THE CHIEF's contention is that parents are afraid to speak to their children about drugs, and consequently the youth are never properly informed of drug consequences.

Blasting the so-called educators who "opinionate" on the use of marijuana without substantial proof, Rossol asserted that law enforcement only deals with the facts.

"We in law enofrcement haven't been opinionating," Rossol stated. "We try to document the subject with proof."

Rossol added that Margaret Mead, noted anthropologist and other pseudo-intellectuals have a position of authority to influence the youth with their statements. He also lambasted the press for taking out of context what she said.

"I have yet to see these so-called educated people do something for our society," said Rossol.

Where there is fire there is smoke and not all the best kind, according to the police chief.

"NOBODY CAN SAY for sure how marijuana will react on individuals," Rossol said. "There are only two ways an LSD user can wind up — suicide or the graveyard."

A doctor in the audience agreed with Rossol that LSD is almost untraceable in the human body and has been found to cause fetus deformities.

To combat public ignorance on marijuana and other illegal drugs, Rossol favors a strong program on drug education starting as low as the junior high school level.

A massive education program along with school rehabilitation programs is needed to effectively counteract the rising drug problem in the county.

"I don't believe throwing them in jail is the remedy," Rossol said. "And although Itasca has never had a registered case of drug abuse, we know that there are purchases being made around the area."

THE POLICE CHIEF will be speaking to the Itasca PTA on drug abuse April 28 in the Washington School. The public is invited to attend the informative drug meeting.

"If we could deter just one drug user, we'd feel better," said Rossol.

His future drug speaking engagements are aimed at that end.

'Profile' A Look At The People...

Brad Schreder watched his buddies die in Vietnam.

That makes him a bonafide expert on what the war is like, how it affects the soldier in the rice paddies and, now that he has returned to the United States, how you and I are affected by the long conflict in Southeast Asia.

Schreder, an advertising representative working in Addison, has been ingrained with the heart and soul of a war that has killed many thousands of men. Having been there, he speaks on the subject with authority.

He was interviewed last week by the Register about that war and his personal feelings revolving around the subject. His story appears Monday as part of an exclusive feature called "Profile," a look at Addison people and how they tick.

Sprinkler Saved Plant

"If the building didn't have a sprinkler system it could have been a total loss," said Mike Puntillo, Addison fire chief, about Wednesday's fire at the Boise Cascade Envelope Co., 313 S. Rohlwing Road, Addison.

As it turned out, smoke and fire damage at the plant was estimated at least $5,000 with the final figure possibly reaching more than $50,000 sources said.

One employe was overcome by smoke inhalation and rushed to Elmhurst Hospital, while a fireman, Charles Schillicher, sustained head injuries when a heavy carton fell on him while he was helping to put out the fire.

BOTH FIRE STATIONS were emptied of equipment and men as the fire department responded to the two-alarm blaze, which broke out at 12:12 p.m. Meanwhile, Villa Park firemen assisted local firemen at the scene and also protected the village in case other alarms were sounded.

The fire in the 120,000-square-foot building broke out in a storage area in the rear of the plant, sending about 120 employes scurrying from the building, Puntillo said.

Puntillo said the fire was brought under control in about 25 minutes but that the cleanup operation, clearing the smoke from the building, sweeping up debris and cleaning the area took several hours.

"We haven't determined what exactly caused the fire," Puntillo said. "It could possibly have been a cigarette, but we still have the fire under investigation. No decision has been made."

"THE BUILDING is fully sprinkled," the chief said, adding that plant is "loaded with nothing but paper. It could have been destroyed completely. Four sprinkler heads went off to control the fire."

The company moved to Addison about five years ago from Melrose Park, said Jim Robinson, personnel director at the plant. Robinson said it was the first mishap of any kind at the company.

Production was delayed about 1½ hours Wednesday until everything was cleared up, Robinson said. He added that the building was completely covered by insurance and that most of the damage was caused by the large supply of water required to fight the flames.

Yesterday, Roland D. Schmitt, general manager, sent a memo to employes of the company praising them for their quick action in regard to the fire and said he was happy they evacuated the plant in an orderly manner.

Schmitt praised what he called the "cool heads" who prevented the fire from turning into a catastrophe. He said employes did a fine job in helping firemen fight the fire, evacuate the building and clean up afterwards.

THE SCENE COULD have been much worse at the Boise Cascade Envelope Co., Addison, if it wasn't for the plants sprinkler system, according to Mike Puntillo, Addison fire chief. A blaze Wednesday was prevented from spreading by the system.

Doors Open At Hospital

A display on reproduction, some exotic pets, and a police dog training and attack demonstration are a few of the things in store for those who attend the Bensenville Animal Hospital open house to be held Sunday from 1:30 to 4 p.m.

The hospital, located at Irving Park Road and Route 83, in Bensenville scheduled the open house in response to Gov. Richard Ogilvie's designation of the first week in March as the second annual Illinois Veterinary Medical Education Week.

The open house, attended by over 500 people last year, will also include a 15-minute film on expanding dimensions in veterinary medicine, a demonstration of basic fundamentals in dog grooming, and displays on X-ray equipment, surgical technique, and preserved specimens of tumors, embryos, and pathological conditions.

'Viet-Rock' Comes Off Convincingly

by MURRAY DUBIN

They looked as if they were ready to picket something.

The hair, the headbands, the peace and love symbols made you think they belonged in Champaign-Urbana rather than on the stage of the Mill Run Playhouse rehearsing tomorrow's performance of "Viet-Rock."

But as casual as they appeared and as unconcerned as they acted, when the lights went on and the music began, the 17 people in the "Viet-Rock" cast fused into a cohesive performing unit.

The funny musical, called "a contemporary study of our war," combines macabre humor with uproarious overstatement and a sobering look at the blood and guts of war.

STICKING LIKE glue to the Vietnam war, the cast sings, dances, curses, praises and laughs about the conflict. Revolving before the audience's eye on the circular stage, the Loyola and Mundelein drama students play cowboys and Indians in the first act and American and South Vietnamese troops later on.

Particularly convincing in his performance as an Army sergeant was Bill Jaeger, a long-haired, thin actor who reminded you of every "you should a seen my sergeant" story you've ever heard.

The only lapse from the Vietnam theme was the rousing number "The Onion That Ate Chicago," but even that, with blind justice falling off her pedestal, had strains of Vietnam running through it.

The second act began more quietly than the first, with the opening number "Please God" chilling the attentive audience. But the razor-edged lines are only a minute away as the sergeant says, "Spill your blood, boobies! That's the highest form of love."

KRIS KUNZ, a leggy redhead who had "The Loner" stenciled to the back of her dungaree jacket, was great in the second act and through the entire show. Involved in the last three musical numbers of the show, she exemplified the enthusiasm and fervor that the entire cast brought to the theater with them.

The show's music will never rival that of "Hair," but it is adequate and Bubbles Lascwski and the Boys in the Band provide an effective background sound.

The performance, sponsored by the Northwest Suburban Peace Coalition, will begin at 8 p.m. and will feature Curtis MacDougall, a Democratic candidate for the 13th Congressional District race, speaking before the performance.

The Library's 'Booked Solid'

by KEN HARDWICKE

All booked-up and no place to go. That seems to be the unfortunate plight of the Wood Dale Public Library these days.

Librarians have already filled the library's third addition with ample reading material. The new addition was completed in October. Now, library officials are seeking village permission to occupy the vacated police department adjacent to the building.

The old police offices offer cramped library facilities some 480 feet to expand. But library officials must have village council approval to move into the vacant space.

"The old police department was built with the stipulation that it would become part of the library when vacated," asserted George F. Welter, library designer and engineer.

TO DATE there has been no formal council action allowing the library to occupy the urgently-needed space.

Besides seeking additional space, the Wood Dale Library wants a village guarantee to use present parking lot space for future building construction.

"We are now looking for the village to give us a deed to this lot or a long lease," said Welter.

Welter added the lease would give the library the necessary land to build a two-story addition onto the present structure. The new library extension is tentative and can only be built through a future bond issue.

"We have to have the land before we decide to build on it," said Welter.

Wood Dale's library currently has 15,200 books on its shelves and offers a wide variety of services to the public.

AMONG THE library's more prominent services are seven drawers of historic art reproductions and an extensive pamphlet file. Also available are more than 100 records (popular and semi-classical) and a well-organized periodical department.

Presently the library is crowded with studying children and the additional building and land space being sought figures in the library board's future planning.

"About 4,300 books were checked out of this library in February," stated Ruth Welter, head librarian. That number is a clear indication of library demands and needs.

While books and people continue to pile up within the limited space of the library, officials are keeping a sharp ear attuned to council approval for future library progress.

Bomb Threat False Alarm

"There is a bomb in the Highland School and some children are going to be hurt."

Those words were spoken over the telephone to Wood Dale Police Matron Phyllis LaFarge Monday night, launching an extensive search and investigation by village police and fire department authorities.

Fortunately, no bomb was found after a three-hour search of the school by local officials.

The anonymous caller phoned village police at approximately 7:53 p.m. Monday. After making the bomb threat, the caller promptly hung up the telephone.

POLICE CHIEF Arthur D. Christy said the caller was not a juvenile but appeared to be a male adult.

"This was a false alarm, but further incidents will mean prosecution for the person involved," said Christy.

The police chief was especially high in his praise for Wood Dale's Volunteer Fire Department and William Overlin, acting-chief.

"I commend the volunteers for devotion to duty and a thorough intensive search made of the building," Christy said. "They did a marvelous job."

School Names Scheck Scholarship Finalist

Roy S. Scheck, 429 North Walnut St., Itasca, has been officially announced as a National Merit Scholarship finalist by Rev. Gregory F. Lucey, principal of Campion Jesuit High School in Prairie du Chien, Wisc.

Scheck will be a candidate for a diploma in the Latin-Scientific course during the 90th commencement exercises at Campion in May.

The scholarship finalist will enroll at Northwestern University in September.

Club Planning Its 'Mardi Gras'

Shall we dance?

The Bensenville Park District is inviting area residents to join in on the festivities of the First Annual White Pines Mardi Gras to be held April 4 at the White Pines Country Club.

Costumes for the affair are optional, but preferred. Costume prizes will be awarded for King Rex, Queen Venus, King Zulu and the Queen's Handmaiden.

A donation of $7.50 per couple is being asked. The price includes dinner, a bottle of champaigne per couple and dance music by the "Green Street Revelers."

The dinner menu includes lasagne, chicken, beef, salads, relishes, desserts and Louisiana coffee.

The Park District said reservations may be made by phoning its offices, 766-7015 or 766-4334.

Proceeds from the affair will go to the Bensenville Boys Athletic Association (BBAA).

Chorale To Sing

The Moody Chorale, the a cappella choir of Moody Bible Institute, Chicago, will sing at the Itasca Evangelical Free Church, on Sunday at 7 p.m.

The church is located on Bonnie Brae and George streets in Itasca. This concert will be held at the onset of the annual Missionary Conference. Everyone is invited to attend the concert.

Moody chorale is heralded on two continents as outstanding in its field. In 1954, 1958, and 1967, the group presented concerts in six European countries. Newspapers dubbed them "missionaries in song," a title that has remained with them through the years.

The chorale tours parts of the United States and Canada twice yearly presenting masterworks of sacred choral music, gospel songs and hymn arrangements. Five record albums featuring their work have been released.

No admission will be charged for the concert; a free-will donation will be accepted.

FIRE DESTROYED A 12-unit apartment complex under construction at 631 S. York in Bensenville early Wednesday morning. Witnesses reported hearing an explosion before the arrival of firemen to the scene. Bensenville Fire Chief Martin Heinrich reported the walls of the building caved in soon after firemen arrived.

$60,000 Apartment Fire Under Probe

An investigation was conducted late yesterday into the cause of a fire that destroyed an apartment building under construction at 631 S. York Road in Bensenville. Results were not available at press time

The Bensenville police and fire departments and the Illinois state fire marshal conducted the investigation of the fire that caused an estimated $60,000 damage.

Bensenville Fire Chief Martin Heinrich said the blaze orginated at the back entrance of the building, but could give no definite indication as to the cause.

THE OWNERS of the building, John Kamenko of Elmhurst and Alex King of Addison, had no idea how the blaze could have started King reported, however, the contractors had been using heating units in the building, but he didn't know if there were any burning that night.

Heinrich reported there were heating units in the center of the basement and the gas was turned on. He determined this by the way the fire was burning. The fire chief reported that to the best of his knowledge there were no heaters near the rear door.

Gary Nischke of Des Plaines reported the fire to Bensenville police at 12:10 a.m. Wednesday.

"It was going pretty good when we got there," Heinrich said. "In a matter of minutes the building was caving in." Heinrich said the fire department arrived at the scene about 12:30 a.m.

MRS. HANNA Erickson, of 4N411 York Road, Bensenville, the first house north of the fire scene, reported she did not notice the fire next door until she smelled smoke in their own house. Mrs Erickson's house and garage were scorched by the intense heat of the fire.

Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Piepinbrink, of 4N373 York Road, Bensenville, the first house south of the fire scene, reported they heard nothing or saw nothing until the fire phone rang in their house. Piepinbrink is a Bensenville fireman.

Two witnesses near the scene, Mrs. Elenor Franz, of 454 S. Center St. and Mrs. Marga Margrette Eriksen, of 445 S. Center St , both in Bensenville, reported hearing an explosion just prior to hearing the fire trucks drive by on York Road.

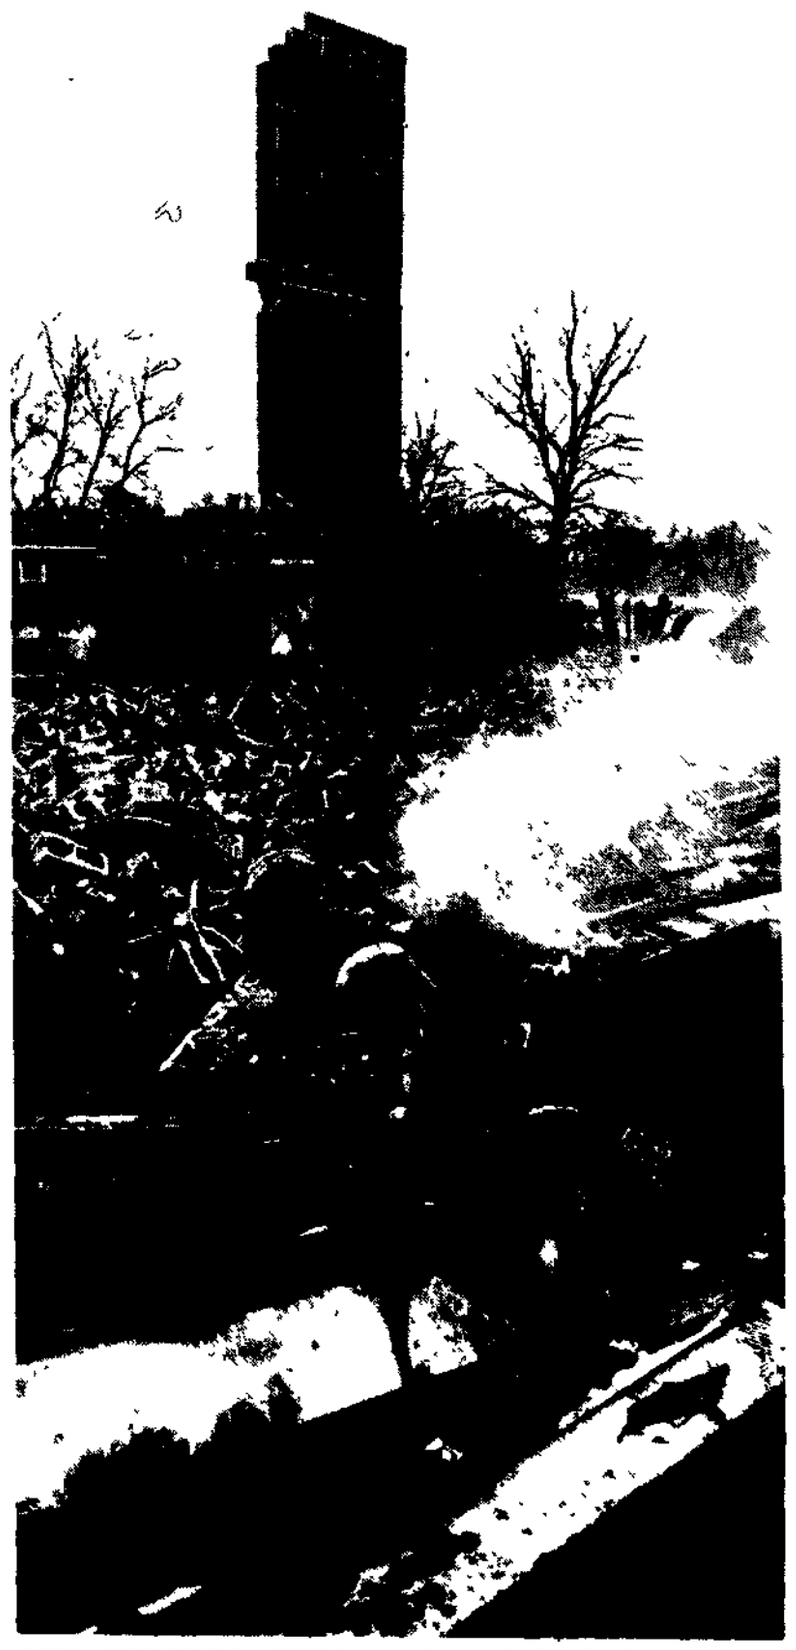
HEINRICH SAID the building was probably nearing completion before the fire broke out.

"They were up to about where they would start closing in the partitions," Heinrich said

Brick was being delivered Wednesday morning to the fire scene, but Kamenko could not say what would be done.

The Bensenville Fire Department was aided on the scene by fire equipment from the Addison department while Wood Dale firemen stood by at the Bensenville station Civil defense units from Bensenville and Addison also helped out at the scene.

Further investigation into the cause of the fire was continuing yesterday afternoon.



ONLY SMOLDERING RUBBLE remained late Wednesday morning after fire swept through an apartment building under construction in Bensenville. Bensenville Fire Chief Martin Heinrich estimated the damage to be about $60,000.

Series Begins On Candidates

For candidates seeking DuPage county offices, the March 17 St. Patrick's Day primary election will be basically calm because most of the candidates are unopposed within their own party.

Only one of the four offices to be filled is an intra-party contest, with two Republicans seeking the nomination for county treasurer for the November election.

In order to keep our readers informed, the Register is presenting a series of profiles on the candidates. Starting today, with superintendent of schools and continuing next week, each issue will present interviews with the men seeking each office. Turn to page 5.

St. Peter's Catholic School, Itasca, will hold its annual Science Fair Sunday from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. at the school hall.

Fourth through eighth graders will display their science projects under the direction of teachers Patrick O'Donnell and Thomas Logan.

Judges will be present to award outstanding science exhibits.

Need Paperboys For Bensenville

Ambitious boys who want to become young businessmen are urged to contact the Register office in Addison immediately.

Paddock Publications is looking for boys to deliver the Register in the Bensenville area.

"We offer an opportunity for boys to get in on the ground floor of a new circulation system, earning excellent wages for delivering the modern Register and getting a crack at valuable prizes and special bonuses for their efforts to make this quality local newspaper available to additional subscribers," said Hank Swierenga, director of the new circulation program.

"Compact routes designed for ease of service and good financial return to the newsboy are now being formed throughout the village of Bensenville. Hard-hitting, aggressive promotion, to already solid carrier routes, will help carrier boys add subscribers "

ADDITIONAL carrier boys are being sought to bring to 600 the number of boys delivering Paddock Publications newspapers throughout the western and northwestern suburbs, according to Swierenga.

Those interested in additional information call 543-2400 at once, he said, and become a newsboy right away.

Boys applying will be given details of the planned improvement in the Register's delivery system, and how they can benefit from participation.

Prizes, trips like to New Orleans and Disneyland and cash earnings are part of becoming a Register carrier, Swierenga said.

Warthen To Return To Vietnam

Army Spec 4 Layne Warthen, 146 Irving Park Road, Wood Dale, will be returning to Cam Ranh Bay, South Vietnam, March 10 after spending his 30-day leave at home.

The 19 year old soldier will return to Vietnam for six months. He already has spent 11 months of his current tour of duty in Vietnam, where he served the 1st Infantry Division as a cook and truck driver.

Warthen has been honored for his service in Vietnam with a bronze star. The soldier also has received two purple hearts.

Toot, Toot... But It Ain't On The Track!

by VIRGINIA KUCMIERZ

Milwaukee Road's plan for the creation of a mass transit district along its suburban line from Chicago to Elgin almost got off on the wrong track Tuesday night as mayors and representatives of the communities along the rail line met n Bensenville to learn about the proposed project transit-plan.

Approximately 19 communities located directly on the railroad's west suburban line or adjacent to it were represented at the meeting held by Milwaukee Road officials and representatives of the line's commuter association.

REACTION TO THE mass transit plan, which would entitle the district to two-thirds federal funding for coaches and locomotives, was mixed, but the opposing voices led by Wilbert H. Nottke, Village Pres. Itasca and Mayor Richard Baker, Hanover Park, were strong.

Milwaukee Road officials will be meeting with the individual village boards to discuss the project in greater detail and "answer many of the problems and questions you posed tonight," according to Thomas H. Ploss, company attorney and chairman of the special task force created to expedite the program.

"Milwaukee Road just doesn't have the funds available for capital improvements to keep up with the growing communities along the Chicago-Elgin line," Curtiss E. Crippen, railroad president told the group.

HE EXPLAINED rapidly increasing patronage on the Milwaukee west suburban line had taxed the capacity of the existing fleet, particularly during rush hours and pointed to the urgency of a solution such as the creation of a mass transit district.

"The stark fact is the Milwaukee Road cannot exist as a private enterprise and invest in new equipment. The amount of capital needed immediately cannot be afforded," Ploss said.

Yet the need for expanded service is there, according to Ploss.

"We estimate by 1974 the line will require 36 additional bi-level cars and 13 locomotives," he said.

BAKER AND NOTTKE both opposed to what they termed "federalism" wanted to know where the remaining one-third financing would come from and if the villages would pay it individually or as a group.

Although the mass transit district, if formed would levy taxes with a referendum, Ploss told the group, Milwaukee Road had no intentions of using tax revenue.

"This is a step in the right direction to federalism," Nottke said. "Most transportation facilities are operated inefficiently. The railroads must reevaluate their operation. If they don't we'll be subsidizing inefficiencies."

PLOSS DEFENDED the Milwaukee operation, stating the company was using every piece of equipment to its maximum, but added "the days are gone when the railroads have a monopoly on transportation."

R. R. Rickson, chairman of the transportation committee on the DuPage County Board of Supervisors said, "I don't like this federal funding any more than anyone else but if we don't help the railroads they will go out of business and unfortunately we'll be spending $6 million for a four lane highway with no parking facilities at the end.

Doors Open At Hospital

A display on reproduction, some exotic pets, and a police dog training and attack demonstration are a few of the things in store for those who attend the Bensenville Animal Hospital open house to be held Sunday from 1:30 to 4 p m.

The hospital, located at Irving Park Road and Route 83, in Bensenville scheduled the open house in response to Gov. Richard Ogilvie's designation of the first week in March as the second annual Illinois Veterinary Medical Education Week.

The open house, attended by over 500 people last year, will also include a 15-minute film on expanding demensions in veterinary medicine, a demonstration of basic fundamentals in dog grooming, and displays on X-ray equipment, surgical technique, and preserved specimens of tumors, embryos, and pathological conditions.

'Viet-Rock' Comes Off Convincingly

by MURRAY DUBIN

They looked as if they were ready to picket something.

The hair, the headbands, the peace and love symbols made you think they beonged in Champaign-Urbana rather than on the stage of the Mill Run Playhouse rehearsing tomorrow's performance of "Viet-Rock."

But as casual as they appeared and as unconcerned as they acted, when the lights went on and the music began, the 17 people in the "Viet-Rock" cast fused into a cohesive performing unit.

The funny musical, called "a contemporary study of our war," combines macabre humor with uproarious overstatement and a sobering look at the blood and guts of war.

STICKING LIKE glue to the Vietnam war, the cast sings, dances, curses, praises and laughs about the conflict. Revolving before the audience's eye on the circular stage, the Loyola and Mundelein drama students play cowboys and Indians in the first act and American and South Vietnamese troops later on.

Particularly convincing in his performance as an Army sergeant was Bill Jaeger, a long-haired, thin actor who reminded you of every "you should a seen my sergeant" story you've ever heard.

The only lapse from the Vietnam theme was the rousing number "The Onion That Ate Chicago," but even that, with blind justice falling off her pedestal, had strains of Vietnam running through it.

The second act began more quietly than the first, with the opening number "Please God" chilling the attentive audience. But the razor-edged lines are only a minute away as the sergeant says, "Spill your blood, boobies! That's the highest form of love."

KRIS KUNZ, a leggy redhead who had "The Loner" stenciled to the back of her dungaree jacket, was great in the second act and through the entire show. Involved in the last three musical numbers of the show, she exemplified the enthusiasm and fervor that the entire cast brought to the theater with them.

The show's music will never rival that of "Hair," but it is adequate and Bubbles Lasowski and the Boys in the Band provide an effective background sound.

The performance, sponsored by the Northwest Suburban Peace Coalition, will begin at 8 p.m. and will feature Curtis MacDougall, a Democratic candidate for the 13th Congressional District race, speaking before the performance.

The Library's 'Booked Solid'

by KEN HARDWICKE

All booked-up and no place to go. That seems to be the unfortunate plight of the Wood Dale Public Library these days.

Librarians have already filled the library's third addition with ample reading material. The new addition was completed in October. Now, library officials are seeking village permission to occupy the vacated police department adjacent to the building.

The old police offices offer cramped library facilities some 480 feet to expand. But library officials must have village council approval to move into the vacant space.

"The old police department was built with the stipulation that it would become part of the library when vacated," asserted George F. Welter, library designer and engineer.

TO DATE there has been no formal council action allowing the library to occupy the urgently-needed space.

Besides seeking additional space, the Wood Dale Library wants a village guarantee to use present parking lot space for future building construction.

"We are now looking for the village to give us a deed to this lot or a long lease," said Welter.

Welter added the lease would give the library the necessary land to build a two-story addition onto the present structure. The new library extension is tentative and can only be built through a future bond issue.

"We have to have the land before we decide to build on it," said Welter.

Wood Dale's library currently has 15,200 books on its shelves and offers a wide variety of services to the public.

AMONG THE library's more prominent services are seven drawers of historic art reproductions and an extensive pamphlet file. Also available are more than 100 records (popular and semi-classical) and a well-organized periodical department.

Presently the library is crowded with studying children and the additional building and land space being sought figures in the library board's future planning.

"About 4,300 books were checked out of this library in February," stated Ruth Welter, head librarian. That number is a clear indication of library demands and needs.

While books and people continue to pile up within the limited space of the library, officials are keeping a sharp ear attuned to council approval for future library progress.

Bomb Threat False Alarm

"There is a bomb in the Highland School and some children are going to be hurt"

Those words were spoken over the telephone to Wood Dale Police Matron Phyllis LaFarge Monday night, launching an extensive search and investigation by village police and fire department authorities.

Fortunately, no bomb was found after a three-hour search of the school by local officials.

The anonymous caller phoned village police at approximately 7:53 p.m. Monday. After making the bomb threat, the caller promptly hung up the telephone.

POLICE CHIEF Arthur D. Christy said the caller was not a juvenile but appeared to be a male adult.

"This was a false alarm, but further incidents will mean prosecution for the person involved," said Christy.

The police chief was especially high in his praise for Wood Dale's Volunteer Fire Department and William Overlin, acting-chief.

"I commend the volunteers for devotion to duty and a thorough intensive search made of the building," Christy said. "They did a marvelous job"

Club Planning Its 'Mardi Gras'

Shall we dance?

The Bensenville Park District is inviting area residents to join in on the festivities of the First Annual White Pines Mardi Gras to be held April 4 at the White Pines Country Club.

Costumes for the affair are optional, but preferred. Costume prizes will be awarded for King Rex, Queen Venus, King Zulu and the Queen's Handmaiden.

A donation of $7.50 per couple is being asked. The price includes dinner, a bottle of champaigne per couple and dance music by the "Green Street Revelars."

The dinner menu includes lasagne, chicken, beef, salads, relishes, desserts and Louisiana coffee.

The Park District said reservations may be made by phoning its offices, 766-7015 or 766-4334.

Proceeds from the affair will go to the Bensenville Boys Athletic Association (BBAA).

Chorale To Sing

The Moody Chorale, the a cappella choir of Moody Bible Institute, Chicago, will sing at the Itasca Evangelical Free Church, on Sunday at 7 p.m.

The church is located on Bonnie Brae and George streets in Itasca. This concert will be held at the onset of the annual Missionary Conference. Everyone is invited to attend the concert.

Moody chorale is heralded on two continents as outstanding in its field. In 1954, 1958, and 1967, the group presented concerts in six European countries. Newspapers dubbed them "missionaries in song," a title that has remained with them through the years.

The chorale tours parts of the United States and Canada twice yearly presenting masterworks of sacred choral music, gospel songs and hymn arrangements. Five record albums featuring their work have been released.

No admission will be charged for the concert; a free-will donation will be accepted.

Housing Unit Lacks Solution

STANLEY KRAVETZ, vice president of a firm which distributes fishing tackle and archery equipment, examines some equipment in the showroom of US Tackle of Chicago, 1225 Greenleaf Ave., Elk Grove Village. Kravetz, who lives in Northbrook, considers himself an avid sportsman but not a fisherman. "My son's favorite sport is fishing," he equipped.

A task force on housing in Elk Grove Village has not come up with a solution to the housing needs of 17 Mexican-American families residing in the area.

The families are still without permanent housing more than 7 weeks after the task force was organized by Jack Pahl, village president.

This was confirmed recently by both Pahl and William Koretke, task force chairman.

Koretke said progress of the task force has been slower than anticipated. He added rather optimistically that he hoped progress would be made in a month. "We're trying a lot of resources," he said

One of the purposes of the task force, is to assist the families in finding permanent homes.

THOUGH THE task force has not done this, it has to an extent met the immediate housing needs of some of the 17 families.

A few of the families, evicted by authorities from substandard dwellings in December, have been placed in temporary quarters while others remain in substandard housing.

Koretke and the task force of 13 members have held about six meetings, all of them closed to the public, since mid-January. They have not met recently — however, a meeting is planned soon, Koretke said.

Because of the closed meetings and the reluctance of task force members to talk about its activities, information has been difficult to obtain.

KORETKE, OF 81 Walpole St., has issued one news release since the group's formation, and that was a statement of purpose made public in late January.

There has been no public report since.

Meetings have been closed, according to Koretke, because of the personal nature of the discussions regarding the families.

Once the problems of the families are solved, the meetings may be opened to the press

Koretke is president of New Communities Inc., a group dedicated to bring moderate income housing to the Northwest suburbs.

In recent weeks residents have questioned the activities of the task force by bringing their queries to Pahl and the village board.

EACH TIME, Pahl has encouraged them to contact Koretke, adding that a progress report would be forthcoming

At the Feb. 24 meeting, Pahl said he would get a progress report when the 17 families were placed. He said there simply was no housing available.

Pahl has since called upon communities in both Cook and DuPage counties to set up similar task forces to deal with housing needs. He said housing is a nationwide problem that must be solved.

MEMBERS OF the task force include Robert Lindahl, local businessman, Rev. David Crail, pastor of the Wesleyan Church, Robert Frankenberg, past president of Centex Industrial Park Association, Neil Cooney, president of the chamber of commerce, Joseph Wellman, a high school social studies teacher, Alton Broten, chairman of Community Services Board, Mrs. Henry Greenheidt, of the Jayceettes, Edward Kenna, a construction specialist, Mrs. Donald Todd, of Neighbors at Work Inc., Brother Ferdinand Leyva, St. Alexius Hospital administrator, and Rev. Maynard Beal, pastor of Prince of Peace Methodist Church.

Freedom In Class — Is It For Real?

Academic freedom for students and teachers apparently exists to a certain extent at Elk Grove High School, according to a student survey taken recently by the Herald.

A sampling of students at the hig school presented their candid views on teachers' rights and student permissiveness.

Last week a rally was held in Skokie in behalf of three Niles East Township High School teachers who were disciplined by the board of education for being too permissive and allowing students to determine their own curriculum.

Elk Grove High School students' reaction to the incident indicated that they supported a teacher's right to teach what and how he wants as long as it's relative to the topic.

THEY ALSO EXPRESSED concern that some teachers at Elk Grove exert this freedom, but that more should. Most felt that the administration for the most part did not stifle the freedom of the teachers.

Dennis Rambo, of 56 Evergreen, Elk Grove Village, president of the senior class, summarized much of the student reaction.

"There are teachers here that if they were fired or their contracts weren't renewed, nobody would care," he said. "But there are others that we'd definitely fight for."

Gwen Jacobs of Des Plaines said, "If a teacher thinks he's teaching the right thing, I don't see why the administration would have anything to say about it."

Rambo added, "As long as he's teaching what pertains to the class."

OTHER STUDENTS named certain by what they felt was a majority of students. They agreed that most of the time it was the kind of teacher who worked to make the topic seem interesting and relative to themselves.

Most advocated independent study and thought it should be stressed even more than it was. Classes in which they were allowed to pursue their own angles of interest were praised.

"I have a teacher who's conservative, but a good teacher and a cool guy," Rambo said.

"You don't want to cut his class," Miss Jacobs explained. "If you have a good teacher and know he'll let you leave when you need to, you'll want to come to his class."

TONY RABICKI, of 119 Wildwood, Elk Grove Village, said many of the students sign up for teachers rather than classes.

"It's not because you get off easy in their class, it's just that they make it interesting. If a teacher is allowed to teach the way he wants it's better for the student and the teacher."

Rabicki disagreed with some of the students, though, saying that he felt some teachers were restricted in what they could teach. "It's the division heads that do it," he said. "They have things that they say have to be done or books that have to be read."

Steve Lunsmann, of 941 W. Higgins Road, Elk Grove Township, indicated also that when teachers taught the way they wanted students learned more in their classes.

"You listen to what they say because they let you learn, they don't force you," he said.

'World Fair' Is Coming

A bit of foreign flavor will be coming to Elk Grove Village tonight at the Girl Scout's World Friendship Fair for International Night.

The fair is being sponsored by the 18 Brownie, Cadet, Junior and Senior troops of Girl Scout Service Unit 481.

From 7 to 9 p.m. at the Elk Grove High School gym, 350 to 400 girl scouts will have displays of foreign countries.

They will be selling artifacts, flowers, and food items including Italian pizza and Hawaiian punch, said Mrs. Kay Boone, of the International Night committee.

At 8 p.m. each troop is to present their contribution to the Juliette Low Friendship fund. The fund, named after the founder of Girl Scouts, is used for international programs and projects which benefit Girl Scouts, such as film strips and the international chalet.

THE FAIR is a kick-off program to celebrate Girl Scout Week which begins Sunday. It is an annual affair sponsored by the Elk Grove Girl Scouts.

Unit 481, which is sponsoring the fair, serves half the Girl Scouts in the village. The other half, which will be holding it's international night next week, is serviced by Unit 480.

According to Mrs. Boone, the troops will be holding other activities throughout Girl Scout Week.

Several of the troops have announced their theme for the fair. They are Brownie Troop 502, Switzerland; Brownie Troop 495 of Admiral Byrd School, Sweden; and Brownie Troop 587 of Salt Creek School, Hawaii.

BROWNIE TROOP 506 will be celebrating the week with a "cookie thank you" for their teachers. The girls will be baking cookies for their teachers.

The cookies will be presented to William Harner, principal, at a tea Monday.

A style show will be presented by the girls working on their sewing badge. Girls working on the musician badge will give a short musical program. Refreshments are being prepared by the group working on their cooking badge.

Tuesday, Brownie troop 495 will have a bowling party at the Elk Grove Bowl.

His Company Fishes for Sales

by TOM JACHIMIEC

Stanley Kravetz never went fishing in his life, yet he heads a business which deals primarily with the world's fishermen

"That's not saying I won't go fishing," said Kravetz, vice president for U. S. Tackle of Chicago, located on the west end of Centex Industrial Park, 1225 Greenleaf Ave., Elk Grove Village

"It's very relaxing and a great family sport," he said, but, "How much practice do you have to have to fish? Anybody can enjoy it."

On a given day, any fisherman can be an expert, explained Kravetz, a former regional sales manager for a shoe company who said he went as far as he could in the shoe business.

"He can catch as big a fish as the experienced fisherman — all record size. He can be an expert every day," he asserted.

KRAVETZ SAT with crossed legs behind a large desk in his office only a few steps away from a spacious showroom filled with fishing and archery gear.

He heads the Chicago division of a Boston firm which is the largest sporting goods wholesaler in the country.

"The fact that we specialize in distributing fishing tackle and archery equipment has enabled us to grow at two or three times the industry's growth rate," he asserted.

When the firm moved here three years ago business was at the $1½ million mark. Last year it did over $6 million in business.

Because business is booming, the firm, which has locations in Boston, Atlanta, Miami, and Dallas, plans to expand locally in the near future.

KRAVETZ SAID it doesn't bother him that he doesn't fish. My job is not to talk about technique, but to get a larger share of the business, he said.

Knowing your product and how to sell it to the masses are two different things, believes Kravetz.

"If you're an avid participant you acquire some prejudices that may cloud your judgment and cause you to forget your job of selling fishing products to the average fisherman with the average income," he said.

Knowing your product too well can be a disadvantage, confided Kravetz.

Though unlike his salesmen who are experienced fishermen, Kravetz is nevertheless a sports enthusiast.

HE ENJOYS skiing, golf, tennis, swimming, baseball and others as well as jogging every day.

Ironically, his 13-year-old son, Alan, enjoys fishing the best.

"Marcy likes skiing and Debbie likes skiing and eating," joked Kravetz. "Shawn is 2-months-old and doesn't have a favorite sport yet."

As the head of the company, Kravetz does quite a bit of traveling. Last year he flew over 100,000 miles.

"We buy from every nationally advertised manufacturer in the industry all over the country and world," he said. "We sell primarily to the mass merchant — the sporting goods retailer and large discount house."

More fishing tackle is sold in Chicago than in the greatest fishing area in the world," said Kravetz.

"Fishing tackle sells everyplace, including New Mexico, Arizona, and places where there is no water to speak of," he said. "It's a remarkable industry."

THE FISHING tackle business is growing at the rate of 15 per cent a year, said Kravetz. Growing even faster is the archery business. It's growth rate is at 20 per cent.

Archery is becoming a popular sport in schools and it's a relatively easy sport to master," Kravetz said.

Here again, Kravetz said that though the sport is a popular one, he admits to never having shot an arrow.

But,t hen again, he doesn't have to as long as the public is buying his products.

Teen Center Opening To Feature Prizes

Prizes will be given away hourly at the Elk Grove Village teen center open house March 15, according to Lew Smith, open house chairman.

Although the center has been in partial operation since Jan. 31, this is the first opportunity for the public to view the center, built by the Elk Grove Park District. It is to be furnished by village teenagers.

A color television will be given away as a door prize at the open house, and other prizes will be given away hourly from 2 to 7 p.m., Smith said.

The open house is free to children, teenagers or adults who are village residents. Refreshments will be provided and entertainment is scheduled for various times in the afternoon.

Demos Slate Primary Rally

Democratic candidates, who are bidding for state and local offices in the November general election, will convene in Mount Prospect March 10 to attend one of the party's biggest pre-primary rallies scheduled in the Northwest suburban area.

The rally, sponsored by the Elk Grove Township Democratic Organization, will be held in the American Machinists Hall at Dempster Street and Mount Prospect Road beginning at 7 p.m.

And the guest list reads like a list of Who's Who in the Democratic Party in Illinois.

Although all of the Democratic candidates are slated to run unopposed in the March 17 primary, the rally will launch the Democrats' campaign to win the support and votes of residents in the November election.

Adlai Stevenson, candidate for the U. S. Senate, and Edward Warman of Skokie, candidate for Congress in the 13th Dist., are scheduled to attend Tuesday's rally.

OTHER DEMOCRATIC candidates who will participate in the political pow-wow include Paul Shanyfelt of Elk Grove Village, who is seeking the office of stat senator from the 3rd Dist.; Michael Bakalis, candidate for Illinois superintendent of Public Instruction; George Dunn of Chicago, the incumbent casdidate for presidesago, the incumbent candidate for presidenciers.

Ray Krier of Skokie, candidate for state central committeeman from the 13th Congressional District, and Chester Chesney, who will run unopposed for reelection as Elk Grove Township Democratic committeeman.

Michael Bakalis

Chesney of Mount Prospect, a former Illinois congressman, will introduce the candidates at Tuesday's rally. "We think our March 10 rally will be the greatest political event of the pre-primary season in the Northwest suburbs for either party," he said.

"The Democratic party expects to gather more votes in the Northwest suburban area this November than ever before. These could be the votes that will mean victory in some offices," Chesney said.

Connery Seeks Dist. 214 Post

JOE CONNERY, a man with 22 years experience in the Chicago school system has announced his intention to file petitions for candidacy for the Dist. 214 school board. Connery, an Arlington Heights resident, is presently principal of Chicago's Steinmetz high school.

An Arlington Heights resident with 22 years experience in the Chicago school system will soon file petitions for candidacy for the Dist. 214 school board.

Joseph J. Connery, 3030 N. Gibbons, said yesterday he will file petitions soon at the Dist. 214 offices and establish his candidacy for one of three seats open on the local high school board of education.

Connery, a resident of the village since 1956, is presently the principal of Steinmetz high school on Chicago's northwest side. He holds a doctorate degree in education and has held numerous posts in the Chicago school system.

From 1948-1952 Connery was a teacher in the Chicago public schools. He was awarded his masters degree in education from Loyola University in 1952 and in the same year was named assistant director of the Bureau of School Plant Planning and Population Surveys and was involved in the planning of a $50 million building program.

CONNERY HELD THAT position until 1955 when he was named the first principal of the Hess Upper Grade Center in Lawndale. the school had an enrollment of 2,800 students.

In 1960 Connery was named principal of Harlan High School, a post he served in until 1965 when he was appointed principal of Steinmetz.

In addition Connery served as principal of three summer school programs and vocational evening school programs.

Pointing to his years of experience with the Chicago school system, Connery feels he can bring an educator's professional expertise to the Dist. 214 board.

"I HAVE WORKED in many phases of education," he said, "and I think I can bring a real understanding of the problems of high schools to the board."

Connery identifies those problems as personnel matters, financing, and the particular needs of special education programs. He also feels he will bring practical knowledge of the schools to the board, although he emphasized he does not believe school board members should undermine the administrative powers of the district's professional staff.

Asked about the issue of smoking at Prospect High and other Dist. 214 schools, Connery's answer was short: "I don't allow smoking at Steinmetz high school," he said.

The candidate and his wife, Patricia, have seven children. Their oldest daughter, Carol, is a student at Marquette University. She is a graduate of Prospect High and three other Connery children are presently students there. Three other children are still in elementary school.

Nonpublic School Aid To Be Debated

Last month it was Con-Con.

Tomorrow, the Elementary and Secondary Nonpublic Schools Study Commission, headed by State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, comes to Arlington Heights.

The commission exploring the explosive issue of state aid .o parochial and private schools, will begin its hearings at 9:30 a.m. at the Arlington Park Towers, Wilke Road and Euclid Avenue in Arlington Heights.

Interest in the hearings reached such a pitch Wednesday that Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, announced that a second hearing will be held on March 20 in Hillside, in DuPage County.

That hearing is scheduled primarily for the benefit of those persons not living in the Northwest suburban area. Priority will also be given tomorrow to those who registered earliest to testify.

SCHLICKMAN SAID that anyone who wishes to testify before the commission will be permitted to do so.

A wide variety of persons have indicated that they wish to testify before the commission. The largest number of speakers that have signed up so far come from area Catholic boards and churches and parent-teacher groups.

Also, State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, reportedly is scheduled to testify.

Speakers scheduled to attend include state representatives Edward Copeland, Chicago, and John Matijevich, North Chicago.

Other scheduled speakers include O. A. Candelaria, an Arlington Heights resident and superintendent of Maple School Dist. 30 in Northbrook, and Ronald Brandt, president of the St. Paul Lutheran church board in Mount Prospect.

THE ISSUE OF state aid to nonpublic schools, perhaps the most controversial to face Illinois legislators and educators today, faces both the Illinois legislature and the Constitutional Convention.

Attempts were made during the last session of the legislature to change the state aid formula. Meanwhile, Con-Con is mulling over changing the constitution's powers in regard to aid to nonpublic education.

An indication of the significance of the issue is that Catholic schools held an open house last weekend to dramatize the fact that Catholic education is quality education.

Also, the Catholic weekly, the New World, issued a one-page reprint of the positions on the issue taken by Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie and Lt. Gov. Paul Simon. Both men have supported some form of state aid to nonpublic schools.

As Catholic schools suffer economic problems, the pressures for state aid increase. What the Schlickman commission must consider, in listening to the 30 or so persons that will speak Saturday, is not only whether state aid is desirable, but also if it is desirable, how much and in what form should it be extended.

Workers May Boycott Nurseries in Spring

A boycott of area nurseries is being planned by the Latin American Community Organization (LACO), according to Louis Archbold, a member of Neighbors at Work (NAW) Inc., in Elk Grove Village.

He said some nurseries which do not provide adequate housing and decent wages for their workers will be boycotted this spring. He did not name any nurseries.

Archbold made the announcement Sunday at a church service in the village. Yesterday, he said the boycott is still planned but that a meeting is being scheduled with nursery owners.

FLAGS OUT FOR Joey recognized the homecoming of Joseph Domko III who returned Wednesday night from Vietnam. Mrs. Kate McNamee, above, was one of several neighbors on the 100 block of Westover Lane, Schaumburg, whose flag went up with a sign welcoming the veteran home.

Joey Came Marching Home

by STEVE NOVICK

All the people on Schaumburg's Westover Lane, near Joey Domko's house, had their flags and banners out Wednesday for Joey's return from Vietnam.

"Joey," is a neighborly nickname for Joseph Domko III, 24, who returned with honors after a year with the Fourth Infantry Division "Pathfinders" in Vietnam's central highlands.

"All through life Joey's won awards," his mother said "But he always said it's not for anyone to know."

A neighbor, Mrs. Kate McNamee volunteered to tell why everyone on the block acknowledged Joe Domko's homecoming.

"At everything he does, he tops the list," she said of the veteran

While in college at Southern Illinois University, Domko won the NCAA wrestling championship for his weight class, Mrs. McNamee said

DOMKO NOW PLANS to study for a master's degree and will look into three or four schools where he has received offers

His wrestling might bring him to the 1972 Olympics in Munich. He has been approached by the U. S. Olympic team, Mrs. McNamee added.

Mrs. Domko harped on her son's modesty, but with a little coaxing she brought out a few of his awards from Vietnam.

One plaque was from the officers and men of the 4th Infantry Division recognizing Domko for "outstanding service and achievement."

It designated Domko as "Mr Airborne-Night Jumper 3."

Other awards recognized Domko as the number one student in his class at Infantry School and at Pathfinder's School.

Mrs. Domko explained the Pathfinders are those paratroopers who go via helicopter into the war zone seeking safe landing places for the other paratroopers to follow.

SHOWING A PICTURE of her son, Mrs. Domko said, "Joey thinks every boy in Vietnam should have his picture in the paper. He said he'd let his picture be put in the paper when all the other boys have their pictures in too."

Mrs McNamee said Domko is a thoughtful and idealistic person besides being modest over his accomplishments.

"In his letters home he'd always write a note to Larry, the postman," Mrs. Domko said.

He writes poetry, plays the guitar and sings, added Mrs. McNamee.

"He's just one hell of a guy," she added.

The 100 block of Westover Lane looked like a Fourth of July display with flags flying on most of the block's houses.

"WELCOME HOME JOEY" and "Welcome Home GI Joe," signs read.

"I'll be seeing you soon," said Domko's last note to Larry the postman.

A tear came to Mrs. Domko's eye Thursday expressing more than words how happy she was that her boy had arrived home safe.

Observe World Day of Prayer

Mrs. William Glab of the Lutheran Church of the Holy Spirit will represent Elk Grove Village today at 1 p.m. at a world day of prayer observance in Hoffman Estates.

The observance is a joint service by several area churches at our Saviour's United Methodist Church 611 E. Golf Road.

World day of prayer is sponsored by the Church Women United and will be celebrated in 25,000 communities in the United States.

Harper Offers a Chance To Meet Your Legislators

by TOM WELLMAN

Four state legislators from the Third District have accepted invitations to participate in "Meet Your Legislators" day as part of Harper College's fifth open house, to be held this Sunday.

The open house will start at 1 p.m. Visitors should plan to arrive no later than 2:30 p.m. if they plan to participate in all of the events, which last about 90 minutes. The college is located at Algonquin and Roselle roads in southern Palatine.

The legislators who will attend are Senator John A. Graham, R-Barrington, and Representatives Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, and David Regner, R-Mount Prospect.

IN ADDITION to meeting informally with the legislators, visitors will be given the opportunity to tour the Harper campus and are invited to view a slide film of the history, development and meaning of the community college.

The current series of Harper Sunday open houses, which started Feb. 8, will run through March 15. More than 2,000 visitors have visited the college during the past four Sunday sessions.

Visitors should use the Algonquin Road (Route 62) entrance to the college. The entrance is located just east of the Roselle Road intersectin.

Sunday open houses, however, are not the only way that the public is being told the "story" of Harper, prior to the March 21 referendum which will seek to boost the tax rate by 17 cents per $100 of assessed valuation.

YESTERDAY, FOR example, Harper teachers and administrators spoke at meetings of the Sunset Park School PTA in Mount Prospect, at the Wheeling Township Republican Organization meeting in Arlington Heights and at the Newcomers Club of Des Plaines

Also, Dr. Omar Olson, who is dean of evening and continuing education at the three-year-old community college, and John Upton, director of governmental relations and project development, spoke Wednesday night at a planning coffee held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Toot of Arlington Heights.

Olson showed a slide-and-sound presentation telling the Harper story. He then answered questions from the 10 persons present and chatted informally with them.

However, Olson, Upton and other administrators do not always sit in living rooms and quietly talk about the referendum. They have spent long hours planning for the March 21 effort, as have teachers, students and board members at the college.

AND PUBLIC organizational support has begun to appear. For example, the Arlington Heights branch of the American Association of University Women (AAUW) recently passed a resolution giving full support and encouragement to the referendum.

The endorsement calls for active campaigning in support of the referendum by members of the AAUW, which is good news to the overworked members of the Harper team

To date there has been no recognizable public opposition forming against the proposal for the 17-cent hike, which Harper will fully utilize when it is available.

Officials are concerned, though, that voter apathy and the inflation threat may hamper the chances of passage. Therefore, efforts are continually being increased to gain public support for voter approval on March 21.

Bomb Threat False Alarm

"There is a bomb in the Highland School and some children are going to be hurt."

Those words were spoken over the telephone to Wood Dale Police Matron Phyllis LaFarge Monday night, launching an extensive search and investigation by village police and fire department authorities.

Fortunately, no bomb was found after a three-hour search of the school by local officials

The anonymous caller phoned village police at approximately 7:53 p.m. Monday. After making the bomb threat, the caller promptly hung up the telephone.

POLICE CHIEF Arthur D Christy said the caller was not a juvenile but appeared to be a male adult.

"This was a false alarm, but further incidents will mean prosecution for the person involved," said Christy.

The police chief was especially high in his praise for Wood Dale's Volunteer Fire Department and William Overlin, acting-chief.

"I commend the volunteers for devotion to duty and a thorough intensive search made of the building," Christy said. "They did a marvelous job."

Jade Expert Will Visit Jewelers

A jade expert, Dr. H. Y. Chang, will display and discuss jade during a two-day visit to Persin and Robbin Jewelers, 24 S. Dunton Court, Arlington Heights, today and tomorrow.

Chang, formerly ambassador to Korea under the Nationalist Chinese government, said he is "contaminated by the tradition of jade in my family. I can sense that a stone is real jade just by looking at it," he said.

Chang said he inherited his religious background from his ancestors who were probably enslaved by the Chinese because of their skills in mining and working with jade.

"Most Chinese sons do not want to follow their father," he continued. "I chose politics, but discovered that my life was bound to jade just as the history of China is bound to it," he said.

His display will include a collection of jade jewelry, figurines and Chinese jade mementos. He will offer a free evaluation of jade for anyone attending the display.

Chang, the only wholesale jade dealer in Chicago, came to the West to study at Magill Unitersity, Montreal, Canada. He said he is one of the relatively few Chinese Moslems.

Two Make Dean's List

Ripon College has named two area students to its dean's list for the first semester.

Bruce Elliott, son of Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell Lane Elliott of 641 Burton, Arlington Heights, is a senior majoring in drama.

Randall Jefferson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred H. Jefferson of 178 E. Fairfax, is a senior majoring in history and mathematics.

Both have also been named to Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges, as has Frederick Dunkel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Dinkel of 315 N. Williams, Palatine.

Student Honored

Roy D. Rettberg of Arlington Heights has earned a place on the fall semester honor roll at the University of Oklahoma, Norman.

Kunstler To Talk In Downers Grove

William Kunstler, defense attorney for the famed "Chicago 7" will speak at George Williams College in Downers Grove tomorrow.

His speech, on "Law and Justice" scheduled for 8:30 p.m. in not open to the public.

Kunstler will answer audience questions and said he "will speak within the bonds of decency."

The college invited Kunstler to speak in an "effort to provide a forum for different points of view so that our students and faculty have an opportunity to hear and question as part of the educational process."

Richard Schultz, assistant prosecuting attorney will speak at the college March 12.

WEXI Wins Award For Drug Program

Arlington Heights radio station WEXI has been named the recipient of the Illinois Medical Society's 1969 Medical Journalism Award for the outstanding radio documentary of the year

The award was based on a nine-hour program, "Both Feet on the Ground," which explored possible causes and cures of drug addiction.

The award is scheduled to be given tomorrow in Chicago.

The WEXI program, aired Oct. 25, was described as "exemplifying the best in radio journalism," for its "objective, balanced presentation."

Seventeen newspapers, television and radio stations received awards for coverage of medical events during 1969.

PR Agency Founder Dies

William A. Dasho, 59, a former Palatine resident and founder of a Chicago public relations agency, died recently after suffering a heart attack in a Loop bank.

Dasho of 1550 N. Lake Shore Drive was pronounced dead at Henrotin Hospital.

He founded the Dasho-Rogers, Inc., public relations firm at 4 S. Michigan. He began public relations work nearly 40 years ago after working as a financial reporter for the Chicago Journal of Commerce.

He had been director of the annual Chicago Youth week celebration for 37 years, and for 25 years had managed the campaigns or publicity work for many candidates for public office.

William A. Dasho

Dasho was Illinois state chairman of Christian Science activities at the New York World's Fair in 1964 and 1965. He had been active in Y.M.C.A. fundraising work for many years and was director of publicity and public relations for Chicago's Medinah Temple.

He was a Mason and a member of Lounsbury Lodge 751 in Barrington, Illinois, Illinois Bethel Commandery 36, Knights Templar, at Elgin, and Medinah Temple. He was a trustee of Illinois Wesleyan University at Bloomington.

He had served the Chicago Press Veterans Association for many years as secretary-treasurer, and was a member of the Chicago Press Club.

Survivors include his widow, Mary M. and a sister Lillian.

The Lighter Side

Homeruns: Wall St. Secret?

by DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A couple of economists recently claimed to have established a connection between the Dow Jones industrial average and baseball batting averages.

During the period 1960-66, they said, stock prices almost invariably rose or fell in accordance with the number of strikeouts in the daily box scores of the Washington Senators.

Very interesting. But what does it mean? This situation fairly cries out for analysis.

But does one turn for guidance to Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, the famous stock brokers and double play combination? Or does one consult Ted Williams, the Senators' manager?

Unfortunately, I am not personally acquainted with any stock brokers. I am, however, on intimate terms with Sam Creases, my neighborhood pawnbroker. So I sought his counsel.

Probably you have heard the expression "as rich as creases."

"If the stock market goes up when the number of strikeouts increase, it obviously means that whiffs are bullish," Sam opined. "By the same token we may conclude that hits and walks are bearish."

Sam's analysis sent me racing to the record book in search of corroborating evidence. And sure enough I found some.

In 1968, you investors may recall, the Dow Jones average hit an all time peak.

Dick West

And in that very same year Donn Clendenon of the Pittsburgh Pirates set a new National League record for the most strikeouts (163) during a 162-game season.

That appears to be conclusive proof that strikeouts have a bullish effect on the stock market. But if additional data are needed, here's the clincher:

By fanning only four times, Joe Sewell of the Cleveland Indians set the present major league record for the fewest strikeouts in 154 games.

Cars Get Wind Warnings

When high Pacific winds buffet San Francisco, radio announcers often broadcast "small-car warnings on Golden Gate Bridge," says National Geographic.

The bearish impact of that feat will immediately become clear when I tell you that the year in which it occurred was 1929.

Well, another baseball season will be opening soon and you can bet that the smart money in the market will be primed to take advantage of this statistical relationship.

Financiers holding seats on the New York Stock Exchange also will be buying seats in Robert F. Kennedy Stadium when the Washhington Senators are playing at home.

And if the local batsmen are in their usual form this season, the Wall Street bulls should win the pennant.

Scout-O-Rama Set

There are 100,000 tickets available for one of the biggest shows of the year.

The Northwest Suburban Council of the Boy Scouts of America will kick off their 1970 Scout-O-Rama ticket sale on March 11. The Scout-O-Rama will be held in the Arlington Park Exhibition Hall, located on the race track property.

This year about 16,000 Cub Scouts, Boy Scouts and Explorers will try to sell 100,000 tickets for the April 25-26 show. The event is expected to be one of the largest indoor Scouting shows in the Midwest with over 300 displays and demonstrations, ranging from exhibitions of camping techniques to authentic Indian dancing.

Heading up this year's Scout-O-Rama is Rees Davis, 891 Sterling Road, Palatine.

Davis in turn has appointed John Breen of Niles to be the Chairman of the Committee on Attendance and Tickets.

"The Scout-O-Rama will provide the public with a full display of Scouting's activities, and it makes a sound money-earning project for each of the 400 Scouting units in the council area," Breen said.

Thirty per cent of the proceeds from the Scout-O-Rama will be paid to participating units for program and camping materials. Other funds will be used to provide program and camping facilities for Scouts in the council.

Participating in the large Scout show this year will be representatives of Scouting organizations that stretch across the entire Northwest suburban Cook County area.

Seven different Scouting districts will be participating in the show: Signal Hill District, Palatine-Barrington-Lake Zurich; Pathfinder District, Elk Grove Village-Hoffman Estates-Schaumburg-Hanover Park; Sauk Woods District, Arlington Heights-Rolling Meadows; North Star District, Mount Prospect-Prospect Heights-Wheeling-Buffalo Grove; and three other districts which represent communities from Des Plaines, to Skokie, Rosemont and Lincolnwood.

'Physical Fitness' Is PTA Meeting Theme

"Physical Fitness" will be the theme for the Hoffman School PTA meeting 8 p.m. Tuesday. The school is on Grand Canyon Street in Hoffman Estates, near Flagstaff Lane.

Members of the Hoffman PTA are asked to wear slacks or other casual clothes for the physical education program Tuesday. A special physical education demonstration will also be given by elementary pupils at Hoffman School.

Robert Stubbs and Connie Engvall are the physical education teachers at Hoffman School.

Heller Play Set March 14

The Theatrical Perspectives, a performing group from the Woodstock-Crystal Lake area, will present "We Bombed in New Haven" in Elgin in the Hemmens Building March 14.

Curtain time will be 8 p.m.

Tickets are available at Ackemann's Department Store, Elgin, on the second floor at the cashier's window and will be sold at the door.

The Theatrical Perspectives had a successful two-week run with the play in the Woodstock Opera House, extending their usual run one week, said Don Barden, director

"We Bombed in New Haven" was written by Joseph Heller, the author of "Catch 22."

It is his first play and was originally produced at the Yale School of Drama in December 1967. Larry Arrick, who directed the Yale production, said:

"The play is marvelous — its subject is war, but its theme is not. War is a metaphor here for a game these people are playing. We are all playing a kind of game in this country today, you know."

Barden has been involved in amateur community theater for 17 years and has been active in Woostock for eight years. He was fulltime resident director and business manager of the Woodstock Opera House for two years.

He has taught drama and technical theater and appears frequently at high school assemblies to perform and discuss the history of the stage.

The 16 performers and backstage crew of "We Bombed in New Haven" are all students at McHenry Junior College except Barden, who plays the Major and Chet Hollister, an Algonquin school teacher who is president of the Woodstock Fine Arts Association, who plays Captain Starkey.

Of the play, Barden, said:

"The play is about war, but it is not done in protest of war."

Baseball Registration Slated for March 10

The first registration period for Hoffman Estates Athletic Association (HEAA) boys and girls baseball program will be held March 10 at 8 p.m. at Helen Keller Junior High School.

Additional registration periods have been scheduled for March 14 and 21 from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. and March 20 from 8 to 10 p.m. at Keller.

All boys and girls in Hoffman Estates between the ages of 9 and 16 are eligible to join the program, according to HEAA Pres. Dyrle Rathman.

Fees of from $10 to $25 per player, depending on the league involved, are payable at registration and birth certificates must also be presented at that time.

Junior School Councils Slate Annual Meeting

Eight people from the community in addition to school officials have been invited to lead dialogue sessions at the annual meeting of junior high school student councils in Elgin School District U46 Saturday.

The joint meeting will be held from 9 a.m. to noon at Abbott Junior High School, 949 Van St., Elgin.

According to Joseph Glaser, student council sponsor at Abbott, one of the purposes of the meeting is to allow council members to see what other schools are doing.

Nearly 150 students will attend. After registration and an assembly, the students will divide into small groups and attend four dialogue sessions of their own choice.

Heading the discussion groups are B. C. Alft, mayor of Elgin; Richard Broadnax, Afro-American Society adviser; Chester Alexander, principal of Elgin High School; Paul Green, principal of Larkin High School; Fred Steffen, Elgin attorney; Levi Lathen, member of Board of Education, and William Ketcham, state's attorney.

Also, Ernie Broadnax, director of Fremont Association; Larry Hansen, State Treasury Department; Chuck West, coordinator for Community Concern for Alcoholism; Vic Masi, coordinator for Parks and Recreation Department; Doug Hoeft, sponsor for Elgin High School student council; and Tom Worth, sponsor for Larkin High School student council.

The participating junior high schools are Kimball Junior High School, Elgin; Abbott Junior High School, Elgin; Larsen Junior High School, Elgin; Ellis Junior High School, Elgin; and Tefft Junior High School, Streamwood.

Scouts Promote Wells

J. David Wells, 357 Princeton Lane, Hoffman Estates, has been promoted to director of Program and Camping for the Northwest Suburban Council of the Boy Scouts of America.

In his new position Wells will be responsible for all council program events, including the Scout-O-Rama, recognition dinner, 1971 conservation projects, and the 1971 World Jamboree of Scouts.

Wells has eight years of professional experience in scouting leadership. He has been serving as district executive for the Skokie Valley District.

Three Are Named To Honor List

Rose Polytechnic Institute, Terre Haute, Ind., has announced the names of three Arlington Heights students who have been named to the school's first term honor list.

They are sophomores Gary R. Hill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus E. Hill of 623 N. Dunton, and Norman P. Klein, son of Mr. and Mrs. N. P. Klein of 335 S. Rammer, and freshman Steven E. Marum, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Marum of 207 S. Reuter.

Pilot Licenses Given

Four area students in the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign have earned aircraft pilot licenses and ratings during the semester just completed.

They are Arlington Heights residents Gerald R. Daley of 1702 N. Drury Lane and Robert A. Ortscheid of 1849 N. Chestnut, Michael D. Herod of 214 N. Pine, Mount Prospect, and Charles F. Nielsen of 262 Eisenhower St., Palatine.

All earned licenses and ratings through ground and flight courses given by the Institute of Aviation at University of Illinois-Willard Airport.

Two Join Fraternity

During a recent business education meeting at Northern Illinois University, two area residents were initiated into the Alpha Phi chapter of Delta Pi Epsilon, business education honorary fraternity.

They are Leonard Holstad, an NIU graduate student of 520 S. Belmont, Arlington Heights, and Robert Zilkowski of William Rainey Harper Community College, Palatine.

Butler Dean's List

Diane Skafte, a sophomore at Butler University, has been named to the dean's list for the second consecutive semester.

Miss Skafte, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Skafte of 709 W. Milburn Ave., Mount Prospect, is dance major at Butler.

Awarded Math Degree

David A. Russell of 2086 N. Tweed Road, Palatine, has been awarded a B.A. degree in mathematics at the conclusion of the fall term at Oakland University, Rochester, Mich.

Ah, spring — as known only to boys who romp in the Deer Grove Forest Preserve near Palatine.

'Two-faced' OK for Complex

Development of Hoffman Estates in the area near Hassel and Barrington Roads was both 'okayed' and delayed Monday by the village board.

Approval was secured for a preliminary plat on the 22-acre Kaufman & Broad (K&B) industrial site. Trustees went along with K&B representative William Kennicott's proposal that buildings at the site face the tollway.

A convenience shopping center, including a quick-stop food mart and development possibilities for dry cleaner, laundromat, liquor store, and beauty shop, is being considered for the site. South of Hassel Road on Barrington Road a large motel is being considered.

Completion is expected on the shops in August or September. It will be designed to serve 164 townhouses now being built off Higgins Road by K&B as part of their 1,450-unit development.

NORTH OF HASSEL ROAD, K&B has entered into a joint project proposing 329 efficiency, one and two-bedroom apartments around a 12-acre lake.

Ring Brothers, a California land planning operation, is the other party in this joint venture.

Gary Thompson, of Ring Bros., told of the estimated $15 million plan at the 45-acre site.

Approval of the plan's concept was being sought from the Hoffman Estates village board Monday, but on advice from attorney Edward Hofert, it was denied.

Hofert said no indication of approval should be given until arrangements are secured to increase water storage facilities in the apartment's area.

UNTIL SUCH ARRANGEMENTS are made, no apartments in addition to those now under construction will be allowed in Hoffman Estates at the K&B, Multicon, and Peter Robins sites.

Thompson said he plans to build all the apartments in one year following approval. The project is designed for upper-middle class incomes and for people willing to pay extra for landscape and for a livable and enjoyable environment.

He called the project a "landmark in the Chicago area," following Ring Bros. success with the concept in the Los Angeles area.

The project includes an indoor-outdoor pool, and a full facility recreational center for tenants.

The entire project will be walled-in at the property line with four ingress and egress points from Hassel Road.

Annex Proposal Gets Second Look

The Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 school board will reconsider a proposal to petition jointly with Dist. 211 for the annexation of 450 acres now in Elgin District U-46 at its board meeting tonight in Helen Keller Junior High.

Board member Gerald Lewin, who previously voted against seeking annexation of the tract, requested the proposal be reconsidered. At the Feb. 5 board meeting, the annexation proposal was turned down by the Dist. 54 board by a 3 to 3 vote. A majority vote is required for passage. Lewin, Elmer Linden, and Mrs. Betty Landon voted against annexation at that time. Board member Gordon Thoren was absent from that meeting.

The 450-acre tract involved is about a half-mile south of Old Higgins Road, a half-mile north of Schaumburg Road, and it extends eastward from Barrington Road for roughly one mile.

Dist. 54 administrators had predicted the board would reconsider the annexation proposal.

The main reason for seeking the annexation of the tract to Dist. 54 and Dist. 211 was to straighten out the irregular boundary line which now has children from Schaumburg Township attending Elgin U-46 schools.

By creating a new boundary line along Barrington Road, these children will now be able to attend elementary school in Dist. 54 and high school in Dist. 211.

A second advantage of the annexation is it would add to the assessed valuation of both Dist. 54 and Dist. 211.

DIST. 211 ADMINISTRATORS indicated they favor annexation of the tract from Elgin Dist. U-46, but the Dist. 211 school board has not yet voted on the proposal. Action on the annexation proposal was postponed when the Dist. 54 board earlier voted against it.

Since Elgin Dist. U-46 is a unit school district, only one of the Schaumburg Township school districts cannot act alone in seeking annexation. Dist. 54 and Dist. 211 must act jointly in annexing the tract from Dist. U-46.

Guidance Program Slated

Traditionally, summer school has been something for students whose hardship or grade problems have interfered with their school work during the normal academic year.

But this summer, Township High School Dist. 211 is going to try something just a little bit different.

The Teacher and Student Orientation to a General Studies Program has been tentatively scheduled to be put into effect in late June to meet the need for a comprehensive pre-high school orientation and guidance program for slow learners and problem students.

The object of the program ist o provide teacher-pupil orientation to one another, together with a four-week attack on harmful attitudes and weak skills in the basic high school disciplines.

THE PROGRAM ITSELF will consist of three phases. Conferences make up the first phase during which students who are identified as likely candidates for the program will be called in with one or both parents for an in-depth interview to identify both student and parent attitudes toward school, and to encourage participation in the program's second phase.

The second phase is the workshop. Here, teachers will spend one week discussing approaches, instructional materials and curriculum possibilities for the program, eventually drawing up a final course format.

THE THIRD PHASE is the summer session. This is tentatively scheduled for June 26 to July 24. This is the heart of the summer program where students will receive help in basic skills. During this phase one of the main goals will be reached: to offer remediation to negative feelings about school and teachers, and to work in skill-building in basic academic areas.

For more information contact Keith Shelton, assistant superintendent, at the administrative center, 1750 S. Roselle Road.

St. Hubert Sign-Up

Registration of new pupils entering St. Hubert Parochial School in Hoffman Estates in September will be held Saturday from 9 a.m. to noon in the church auditorium on Grand Canyon.

A second registration session is scheduled on Saturday, March 14, from 9 a.m. until noon.

Land Issue To District

A proposal concerning vacant properties in the High Point area of Hoffman Estates will soon be sent to the park district according to Board Member George F. Seaver.

Seaver reported this week that he recently met with officials of Hoffman-Rosner, the original developer of most of Hoffman Estates, to discuss all presently vacant areas in the subdivision.

Areas discussed include adjacent areas known as Twin Lakes, the final unit being developed by the builder in Hoffman Estates, as well as all other open lands.

TWIN LAKES, originally planned as a multiple-family development with a few single-family dwellings, is now being completed as a single-family area. All lots are considered "lake front" since they abut a pair of retention ponds.

Although release of the ponds to the park district has been discussed by the park district, village and developer in the past, no final arrangement has been reached.

Seaver said that the proposal should shortly reach the hands of park officials for study and stressed that he would have no recommendation until the outline is received.

Carnival Plan Is Endorsed; Mayor Objects

Overriding the objections of Mayor Freedeerick Downey, the Hoffman Estates Village board Monday unanimously approved plans for the local Jaycee Carnival.

Downey said the carnival would not be a benefit to Hoffman Estates.

Jaycees claim they expect to earn between $7,000 and $8,000 from this year's carnival to finance their community projects.

Representing the Jaycees were Dick Sunde and Joe Stepanek.

Downey took note of an incident which occurred last year involving a concession operator at the carnival.

Stepanek and Sunde said checks have been made with Police Chief John O'Connell and that prevention against the incident repeating itself have been taken.

Stepanek said off duty police will be hired to cover the carnival. Sam Goranson, Civil Defense director, said his men also will assist in the carnival's supervision.

"Perhaps last year's experience will be beneficial to this year's carnival and in future years," said Trustee William Cowin before moving for approval.

The carnival is scheduled July 23-26.

GOP Chiefs Back Lentz

The presidents of three Hanover Township Republican organizations have issued their personal support for Frank P. Lentz, candidate for Republican Committeeman of Hanover Township.

Lentz faces Jerome Mann in the March 17 election. Current committeeman, Eugene Devitt, is retiring. Both candidates are from Elgin.

Mrs. Paul Lenzini, president of the Republican Women's Club; Stanton Faitz, president of the Young Republican Organization; and George Nicholson, president of the Regular Republican Organization; all endorsed Lentz.

"Mr. Lentz's 19 years of experience as a worker and a leader in the Republican Party is in direct contrast to Mr. Mann, who was a registered Democrat until 1968," Mrs. Lenzini said.

Lentz has also been endorsed by the memberships of both the Young Republicans and the Women's Club by votes taken at meetings. The Regular Republican Organization has not endorsed either candidate.

Mann has been endorsed by Streamwood Mayor Nick Kosan and Elgin City Councilman Nufrio Santanni.

Mary Beck On Tour

Mary Beck, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. E. C. Beck of 603 S. School St., Mount Prospect, is a member of the internationally-known St. Olaf College Choir, which will tour the southeast and Atlantic coast states during February.

In June of this year the choir will go abroad for the fifth time, performing at music festivals in Germany, Austria and Holland.

Missile Crewman

Pvt. Gregory N. Duffey, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles N. Duffey, 1434 Norman Drive, Palatine, has completed a sergeant missile crewman course at the Army Artillery and Missile School, Ft. Sill, Okla.

The eight-week course gives each soldier a working knowledge of the preparation and firing of the Sergeant missile.

Simpson Dean's List

G. Wendell Richmond of 320 Hampton Road, Hoffman Estates, a sophomore at Simpson College, has been named to the dean's list for the fall semester 1969.

HIGH PRIEST of the movie-makers, Paul Schreivogel, 928 Greenfield Court, Mount Prospect, is pleased that young people in the area are using the film medium to express themselves "It's exciting because it's new," he explained "It's the first new art form in the technological age . the first really new art form in the past 5,000 years."

Attack Brings Harper Probe

by TOM WELLMAN

The attack Saturday night on a Harper College security guard raises a question of safety on the newly constructed community college serving the Northwestern suburbs

For the past several months, many faculty members and students have been concerned and upset about the college's lack of lighting after hours, and the lack of daylight protection on weekends

The question of campus security revolves around the question of the role of the security office, now combined with the maintenance department and the college It ultimately brings up the question of how much money the college can at this point, spend on security

AN ELEMENT THAT could resolve some of those questions was the announcement late yesterday that a new man will be named to head the department His name will be announced by Monday

In January, the head of the security department, Paul Pitt, left Harper to take a position in southern Illinois Robert Hughes, superintendent of buildings and grounds, said Pitt's departure followed a need to cut costs in the department

After Pitt left, the security department was merged with the maintenance department. Henry Kurowski, who works in maintenance was named head of the department, his immediate supervisor is Hughes

IN AN INTERVIEW several weeks ago with Hughes, he reported the merger was "temporary" and a search would soon begin for a successor for Pitt

Pitt, before he took the Carbondale job, told the Herald there, "wasn't enough money for campus security" He said security was a "luxury" item which could be cut before academic departments had to suffer budget slashes

Pitt said he didn't want to "carry on professionally at Harper," and passage of the March 21 educational and building fund referenda would help fund the department He stressed there were no hard feelings between him and Hughes because of his resignation

There are three full-time persons and eight student cadets on the security force, working three shifts 24 hours a day Hughes reported that the program is 'coordinated' with the Harper law enforcement program in that the part-time cadets are law enforcement students

THE STUDENTS ON the force are not armed but some of them do carry portable two-way radios The department keeps close contact with local county and state police departments

The men on the force do not have power of arrest, Hughes said He reported House Bill 112, which allows arrest powers, must be implemented by the Harper board

HB 112 signed by the governor Sept 15, 1969 permits junior colleges to set up security departments The members of such departments have the normal powers of city policemen, including "the power to make arrests on view or warrants of violations of state city or county law "when such is required for the protection of junior college properties and interests"

IT ADDS THAT THE power of arrest is allowed when appropriate state and local law enforcement officials specifically request it However, campus security departments have no power "to serve and execute civil process"

Although Hughes stated his men could not make police arrests he reported they do have the right of citizen arrest as anyone else would "We're not interested in arresting people," he added

Hughes said protection for the college is provided around-the-clock After the 11 p m closing time a thin chain is stretched across the Algonquin Road entrance but it would be easy for anyone to walk over, under or around the chain to enter the campus

Local police protection is readily available, he said The Palatine police direct traffic on Algonquin and Roselle roads during the rush hours, but they do not direct traffic on school property.

THE GREATEST concern of many students and some faculty members however, is nighttime safety Those who leave campus after 10 p m are concerned about walking across deserted stretches of parking lots to reach their cars

Movie Makers Tell It Like It Is

by DAVE PALERMO

A handful of college and high school students in Mount Prospect have come upon a unique way of expressing their beliefs

They aren't marching in the street holding sit-ins or demonstrating in any way In fact few people are even aware of what they are doing

They're making movies

Youths using the visual medium for getting across ideas isn't new to the area It's been going on for about five or six years

What they do is take an 8 or 16 mm camera and a couple of amateur actors and go out and tell it like it is

Paul Schreivogel 39, 928 Greenfield Court Mount Prospect is the "high priest" of the movie makers and lectures on the subject at Harper College

He for one likes the idea that young people are using films as a medium to express their beliefs and values

"THE KIDS ARE THERE but you don't see them," he explained "They're participating in a creative process all their own

'It's exciting because it's new It's the first new art form in the technological age the first new art form in the past 5,000 years'

Schreivogel, who said filmmaking began coming into its own as an art form in the late 1950s believes that young people are using films as a revolt against a "literate society' A society that ineffectively uses words to express beliefs

"The kids have been raised in a literate society a society in which everything is written down' he explained "Words are only fronts for ideas Words themselves have no literary meaning

"Kids see that these definitions are no longer valid, they see values differently"

WHAT THE YOUTHS are saying through their films is what they've been painting on protest posters, printing in underground newspapers, or generally what they've been thinking about in the last decade

Cinematically, the films are well done — due partly to technological advances in cameras the camera work is innovative as well as the quality of the acting and film

But what's most important, Schreivogel contends is not the technical quality of the films, but the creativeness of the students

Dave Aming, 101 W Memory Lane, Mount Prospect, is a sophomore at Columbia College in Chicago He also has been making movies since he was a student at Prospect High School

A FREQUENT VISITOR at the Schreivogel home, Aming ran off a film he made while he was a high school senior

The film, titled "Scarborough Fair" was done in remarkably clear color and his use of camera angles and double-exposures was impressive

Shot in a countryside, the film includes four characters, three men and a woman

There was no sound except a musical recording by Simon and Garfunkel and the Jefferson Airplanes But the idea Aming was trying to get across was unique As Schreivogel mentioned, "there was more Dave Aming in that film than any other he's done"

What the young filmakers are doing is riding on a crest of a revolution in movies that can be seen at area theaters

Instead of movies serving as a form of entertainment, the flicks are dealing with realism Films like Easy Rider, The Graduate and Bonnie and Clyde, to name a few are putting across messages

SCHREIVOGEL CONTENDS that the time when people go to movies to see the stars is over "The hell with John Wayne and Rock Hudson People are waiting for Catch-22 to come out They could give a damn who the stars are"

The transition of traditionally entertaining movies into an art form which may soon be equated with literature, drama and painting, is recognized by high schools throughout the country

Area high schools which will be offering film study courses next fall include Arlington Heights, Elk Grove, Hersey Forest View and Wheeling Prospect High School will be offering a film study program as part of the art curriculum

Jim Wicklund, head of the English department at Arlington Heights High School is one of the men most responsible for bringing the art of films into the high school

"Movies are becoming more and more serious and less entertaining," said Wicklund, a close friend of Schreivogel "Visual communication is more often used than nonvisual communication"

BOTH WICKLUND and Schreivogel feel that films are better understood by the youths than the adults

"Lief is an instant drama and the youths communicate this in films,' said Schreivogel "The world is a kaleidoscope There's no story line, no beginning or end, no high point or low point'

"The adults resented the Graduate, but the kids had a more valid view of the film" said Wicklund "In Bonnie and Clyde the kids caught the metaphor"

The use of sex in films, both at the theaters and in underground films, is often misunderstood by the older generation agreed Wicklund and Schreivogel

Wicklund told a story of a student-made film which included a scene consisting of a boy undressing a girl The film was first shown to students and then a second time to a group of adults

"The adults kept talking about the nude scene while the students didn't even mention the scene," he said

"THE X RATED movies are supported by the adults," said Schreivogel "Adults are hung up on sex, kids aren't"

The movie magazine SEE commenting on the use of sex in youth-made movies, said "In film especially in student film there is a tendency for most films produced to concern themselves with nakedness — a physical and spiritual undressing what is shown is not so much those who "people" the film as much as the pile of clothes those people discarded"

Wicklund maintained that the film study programs in school will not deal as much with making films as helping the students "develop a creative eye'

Schreivogel, comparing films with literature, said telling a student to make a film would be like "telling an English student to write a novel They're two entirely different things" He said movies young people are making are too far advanced for public viewing, that television and motion picture shows are geared towards the masses and that the majority of the public would not accept the films

"You have to first raise the awareness level of the viewing audience They might see truth and they don't want to see truth"

The Way We See It

Vote for Rentschler

Illinois Republicans face a difficult challenge in the March 17 U.S. Senate primary: They must select a man to compete in November with a Democratic candidate who has a great deal of appeal just because of his name: Adlai E. Stevenson III. And they also must choose a man to fill the shoes of the late Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, a difficult task.

Two candidates, both with many years of loyalty to the party and political activity on various levels, are competing for the nomination. Sen. Ralph T. Smith, who was appointed to the senate vacancy last year, is being challenged by William H. Rentschler

Smith is former speaker of the Illinois House of Representatives and was a member of the House for 15 years Rentschler, although never elected to public office, is known throughout the state for his activity as campaign manager in Illinois for President Nixon in 1968. It was the Illinois vote that put the President over the top and Nixon has given much praise and credit to Rentschler for his performance.

Of the two contenders, we believe Rentschler is the stronger candidate and we recommend his nomination.

Rentschler's attitude on several top issues seems more likely to bring about solutions than does Smith's position.

Rentschler favors a much tougher approach on pollution than does Smith, who has remarked that he does not think pollution is a problem that has to be solved "tomorrow or the next day."

Rentschler supports the efforts of Atty. Gen. William Scott in suing industrial concerns who fail to comply with pollution standards and said if they don't comply, "put padlocks on the plants." Smith does not agree with such a tough approach and would prefer to "turn the corner in four or five years."

On the important issue of inflation, Rentschler favors sharp cuts in government spending, particularly in defense, where he would like budget decreases of from $5 to $10 billion, and in the space program, which he says should not be stepped up when there are urgent problems to face on the domestic level

Rentschler does not favor a policy of tight money and high interest rates because, he said, they are hurting the nation in too many ways, particularly in drying up the housing market.

Smith, on the other hand, prefers to stop inflation with an administration policy calling for "whatever puts less money in the hands of the consumer." He blames inflation on previous administrations and is not as eager as Rentschler to cut back on government spending For example, Smith favors government subsidies for the SST (supersonic transport) plane as "something that has to be developed for the world of the future and probably wouldn't by private capital "

Rentschler is opposed to the SST spending, calling it an unneeded subsidy of private industry.

Another major issue is the future of America's metropolitan areas and the role of the black man in the nation's future.

Rentschler, a Chicago area resident who has operated businesses in Chicago's black areas, is more familiar with the problems of the city and its blacks and justifiably criticizes the Republican Party for "writing the black man off." Smith says the black man is receiving more from the Nixon administration than from previous administrations and is happier than under those administrations.

Rentschler has a good understanding of urban and suburban needs. His more independent approach to issues better serves the interests of the Republican Party, Republican voters and the State of Illinois

We encourage Republicans to nominate him on March 17.

Critic's Corner

Carswell Callow, Callous?

by AL GREENE

I normally acknowledge my birthday with a gentle nod in the direction of my kitchen calendar and a mental note to remember that I have one year less to make the world perfect.

I am somewhat romantic and more idealistic to believe that one person can make a difference in man's rapidly deteriorating condition It takes people like me, the dreamers, to keep and cherish the promise that man, as the most intelligent species around, can have heaven on earth.

AND SO, EVERY YEAR around this time, I start to think that it is really time for me to get the world moving. Usually, I start by planning the great American novel, the dream of every American who has put pen to paper or type to ribbon.

What happens, of course, is that I usually get hung up on something else, such as a hockey game, a trip to the supermarket or some other diversion. I make no excuses for not saving the world, for I recognize they are just that — excuses.

What really brought home the fact that time is not so slowly getting away from me is that G. Harold Carswell, the newest Supreme Court nominee, was 28 when he made his infamous "white supremacy" speech.

CARSWELL CHALKED up the 1948 speech to youth and inexperience. He simply shrugged off something important he said when 28-years-old and blamed it on his callowness

I say nonsense to this!

When a guy is 28, Mr Supreme Court Nominee, he is no longer a kid. He is no longer The Graduate who is searching for the meaning of life and all those other things he read about in philosophy class.

As a friend of mine pointed out, a man 28 "should have known better."

It may be obvious, but when you are 28

you are over 25, the dividing line between the younger generation and the not so younger generation I hesitate to use the word old, because I have met more that a few people in their sixth and seventh decades who have not folded their minds and declared themselves senile. Age, for the most part, is a state of mind

I'm reaching toward thirty and I have done most of the things I set out to do. And, in the process, I have made up my mind about how I feel about things. My attitudes, be they philosophical, sociological, moral or what have you, are pretty well set. I've gone through my major "identity crises" and am ready to get on with the business of living.

SO ARE MOST of my friends. So must have been Mr Carswell when he made his speech

My attitudes and, I suspect, those of my peers are not going to change greatly over the next 40 years we are expected to live. Certainly there will be variations in them, but, for the most part, I expect they will remain constant

When I am 70, I will probably think that everyone should have an equal opportunity to obtain an education. That people who cannot afford food because of a physical or mental illness should be given food. That no man should be allowed to become a public burden simply because he does not feel like working.

I think this way now. After 27 years on this earth, in this country and others. It has, I think, taken me about 24 years to determine how I think.

THE OTHER THREE years have been spent looking for evidence to convince me that I am right. Psychologists will tell you that people, in general, want to read and learn about things with which they agree. People, in general, do not want to be challenged.

Since I am an average middle-class American, I fit the mold. I have, being average, reached my psychological and rational peace with myself.

Mr. Carswell, at 28, must have gone through roughly the same process. He, of course, was not raised on the Northside of Chicago. But, by the time he turned 28, he probably had a good idea about what he thought of blacks.

He must have had some inkling that not everybody agreed with him. He must have at least realized there were people who believed the blacks should be given an even break. He must have heard or read about these people.

But he probably made the decision that whites are better than blacks. And he got up and told people what he believed. At age 28. After he had ample time to consider different points of view.

WHEN SOMEONE reaches 21 he is considered legally responsible for his actions. There is no reason why Mr. Carswell, who is being considered for a post on the highest court in the land, should be any different

At 28, I am not young any more. And reading about Mr. Carswell is aging me rapidly.

The Political Beat

Political Odds Men 'Out'

by CHARLES E. HUFNAGEL

Exuding an optimism that defies description, even causing some of the old professionals who have seen political candidates come and go to take a new look, William H. Rentschler, the Republican underdog in the race for the U.S. Senate, is writing primary campaign history in the face of overwhelming odds.

What's the status of this campaign? There's a shaking of heads and a perfunctory writing him off but there are some reservations too and with good reason.

This candidate who managed a brilliant campaign in 1968 in Illinois for President Nixon refuses to believe what he hears and actually thinks if he can get to the GOP voters he can beat what he calls the "Ogilvie party machine."

TAKE THE "delayed" GOP Lincoln Day dinner Sunday night in DuPage County which hosted state, county and local Republican blacktie people where Sen. Ralph Tyler Smith was the headline speaker. Rentschler wasn't supposed to be on hand much less to get the microphone. But he got the platform and almost stole the show to the consternation of Republican adversaries whose campaign maneuver seems to be: Keep Rentschler out of sight.

But Rentschler had a little help from Elmer Hoffman, retiring GOP chairman. Hoffman said this county was dedicated to open primaries and fairness to GOP voters wouldn't hurt the party. Rentschler got five minutes.

All Republicans holding office, he said, came up through the ranks via open primary That's been the GOP style.

"WE DON'T NEED a machine," he told the Lincoln Day diners. The party must articulate a philosophy in step with these times and formulate a program which has the support of the grass-roots voters.

He brought down the house when he ended his talk with: Daley has his Adlai, Ogilvie his Senator Smith, but the people who vote have their Rentschler. After all, a quick and ready man with a happy phrase.

Senator Smith who learned a thing or two as speaker of the Illinois House, refused to be non-plused. He let it be known in no uncertain terms that the only person who dictated to Smith was Ralph T. Smith, or perhaps Mrs. Smith on occasion.

In the course of his remarks the Senator predicted the nomination of Judge Carswell for the Supreme Court by a 60-30 margin He made a point when he said that with his 12 years experience with legislation at Springfield he was no novice in assuming responsibility at Washington.

YET THE MAJOR issue in this GOP primary campaign seems to be the organization of the party under a leadership responsible to the voters who make the GOP a vital factor in the two-party political process. This is an issue that transcends any individual in the party or any group of individuals. Others than Rentschler are saying that when the voice of the grassroots voter is no longer listened to, the Republican Party is on the way to dusky death. The same for the Democratic Party.

This is what is making the underdog Rentschler tick in this campaign, and he is pursuing it with a dedication comparable to personalities of biblical times. Why is he doing it? No one knows. Who's backing him? No one knows. Why does he suffer this harshness of campaigning? He'll tell you it's for the good of the party. Has he been let down politically? He'll never say so.

Does he think he'll win? He smiles and says, "Of course, if I can talk to the people."

SO WITH MRS. Rentschler always at his side, he seeks an audience everywhere and anywhere. Is this a kind of political craziness? That question strikes him as not very intelligent. We are in an age that calls for involvement and commitment, is his theme There's a task for everyone and if each will assume it we can have a responsible government and a sane society He wants to start with the Republican Party

But the problem, Rentschler says, is to make people understand this. That's his mission in this Republican primary.

Secretary Finch's War on Bassinets Misdirected

We have just read that our secretary of health, education and welfare, Mr. Finch, urges parents to limit their children to two. We feel very strongly on this point, and we would like to make known our views through the people's section of your editorial page.

We are one of the couples "in this country who simply don't get the message. . ." to limit themselves to two children. We are high school educators and the parents of three. It seems to us that to attack our environmental problems by limiting family size might make the problems smaller, but would not eliminate them To rescue our environment we need the resolve and wisdom to utilize our vast talents towards a complete solution We need the courage to rise about a materialistic philosophy and the self-discipline to put our priorities back into proper perspective Mr Finch suggested that the starting point to improve the quality of life would be for parents to limit their families. In other words, he would improve the QUALITY of life for SOME by denying life itself to others?

WE MIGHT POSSIBLY decrease pollution, waste, poverty, urban unrest, etc., by limiting future births. But, in addition, we might possibly deprive the world of some valuable contributions — a cure for cancer, a lasting racial brotherhood, even a more perfect answer to pollution or crime or overpopulation. The person viewed as a "future pollutor" can also be viewed as a "future Einstein." It is interesting that limiting families to two children in the past would have deprived the world of Bach, Shakespeare, Dwight D. Eisenhower, etc.

Our secretary of health, education and welfare suggested that the government might have to offer "disincentives" to discourage parents from having large families. Why not offer stronger "disincentives" to the pollutors in industry? Could it be that we, as parents, do not have as much influence on our lawmakers as some members of "big business?"

In fighting our environmental battles it is insidious to decide that because more people increase our problems we should therefore limit the number of people. Analogously, in fighting a military battle more soldiers increase the problems of military management, but do we limit the number of soldiers or do we strive for more effective management? Why not use our technology and resources to control the pollution, to lessen urban strife, to instruct the people of the world in environmental control, etc.? Why must a solution be a negative one — eliminate future lives? Can a country that is capable of putting men on the moon, really, in good conscience, rescue its natural habitat by refusing life to future human beings — human beings who might even find space for living on the lunar surface?

Mr Finch claims that the American people must be prepared "to meet the costs of environmental restoration — costs that may range from less powerful autos to less frequently occupied bassinets." If America's values encourage us to solve our problems by sacrificing, with equal readiness, our automobiles and our future children — God help us.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Taylor

Protect Unpopular

I hope no one pays any attention to the Black Panther speech at Forest View High School. He seeks to protect liberty by denying it. Free speech in the Bill of Rights means the protection of radical and unpopular speeches or it means nothing. The popular point of view needs no protection.

Headline 'Unsubstantiated'

I feel a few comments are in order after reading your newspaper Feb. 24.

On the front page in bold type was the headline "DEATH FAULT OF HOSPITAL?" and if one were a fast reader the question mark may have been completely ignored.

YET, WHEN I READ the article, there was nothing to be found to even substantiate the supposition of possible wrong doing. So, why the title or wording in the headline?

I realize there seems to be an open season on physicians and headlines sell copy, but I would think responsible reporting is also necessary before any article of this sensitivity is printed.

As a staff member of Northwest Community Hospital and familiar with the other physicians and their attempts to give high quality medical care, I feel this article does nothing more than disturb the doctor-patient relationship which is of paramount importance in the care of any patient.

In contrast, on the same page as this article was a small column reporting some auto accidents which occurred over the weekend. No comment was made of the long hours spent in that same Emergency Room to treat the victims of these accidents. My associate, to mention one doctor, was in the hospital from 1 a.m. to 3 p.m. Sunday, helping to care for these patients.

PLEASE, LET US have more reporting in a responsible manner.

Student Ends Tour With Theater Group

Michael S. Grant, a student at Grinnell College, is back on campus after spending a semester as a member of the Milwaukee Repertory Theatre.

The experimental cooperative educational program being conducted by Grinnell College and the theatre company, is supported by grants from The Rockefeller Foundation. Students serve as production assistants as well as attending seminars in acting.

Grant is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Steward M. Grant of 415 W. Fairview, Arlington Heights, and is a 1967 graduate of Arlington High School.

Merit Status Reached

Virginia Dietz of Prospect Heights and Robert Schmidt of Palatine have achieved merit status for the first semester at Elgin Academy.

Miss Dietz is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Dietz of 200 E. McDonald Road and Schmidt is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Otis A. Schmidt of 300 Lexington Circle.

The position is awarded at the close of each six-week marking period to students who have a "B" average or better and demonstrate maturity and a willingness to abide by the code of honor of the school.

Dunham In Premier

Thomas A. Dunham, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Dunham of Farmington, Kildeer, a 1963 graduate of Arlington High School, returned early for the second semester at the College of Emporia in Emporia, Kan.

The members of the College of Emporia Chorale and stage band recorded the music of Mr. Frank Salisbury's jazz setting to the "Lord's Beatitudes," which is to be given as a world premiere in Emporia's Civic Auditorium on March 21, 1970.

Stan Kenton and Clark Terry assisted the college group, which is under the direction of Roger H. Johnson and Frank A. Malambri, in the January recording session.

Teaching Interns Are Area Students

Several area residents who are students in professional education at Illinois State University have undertaken their teaching internships in schools throughout Illinois.

Arlington Heights students include Marie Kertay of 816 N. Dunton, teaching art at Streator High School; Bette Kolpin of 307 S. Donald, teaching first grade in Sandburg School, Harvey; Margie McCalester of 1020 E. Algonquin, teaching business education in Bradley-Bourbonnais High School, Bradley; and Mary Flodin Weberg of 228 N. Yale, teaching speech in Conant High School, Palatine.

Donna McKinnon Lytle of 1707 Orchard Drive, Prospect Heights, is teaching sixth grade in Washington School, Pontiac, and Thomas Bartels of 2407 Meadow, Rolling Meadows, is teaching the socialy maladjusted and junior high in Bloom Junior High School, Chicago Heights.

Girls Are Initiated

Alpha Beta Alpha, national undergraduate library science fraternity, has initiated two area girls into Mu chapter at Illinois State University.

Linda Nielsen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Nielsen of 1210 W. Euclid, Arlington Heights, is a freshman at ISU.

Janet Oleary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Oleary of 156 N. Schubert, Palatine, is a junior.

THE GREATEST ADVENTURE

When you hear of astronauts preparing to land on the moon, do you long to go with them? Do you wonder what it's like to be there in outer space on their great adventure?

The greatest adventure of all, though, isn't out in space — it's within you.

It's the exploration of yourself, of your God-given individuality and purpose. It's discovering God's view of you, and revealing new capabilities and opportunities.

That's what you'll hear about at a talk to be given by Jessica Pickett, C S., of the Christian Science Board of Lectureship. Miss Pickett's free public lecture is called "Adventure into Inner Space." And that's just what it is.

Do We Have A Choice?
"JOIN THE CHURCH OF YOUR CHOICE," say some preachers This expression is contrary to God's word There are a number of things in Christianity about which there can be no difference of opinion. Paul names seven of them in EPH 4 4 5

ONE BODY which is the ONE church, Eph 1:22 It is the Church of Christ, Rom. 16:16, for he built it, Matt 16-18, and purchased it with his blood, Acts 20:28 You have no more choice of churches to be a member of, than of God's to believe in
ONE SPIRIT that dwells in the heart of every saved person Rom 8:9.
There is ONE HOPE The same hope is held before all men It is heaven and an eternal life therein John 14:1 3
ONE LORD JESUS CHRIST He only can save you
ONE FAITH or system of doctrine that must be accepted, believed, and followed. This faith is the Word of God which is able to save our souls, Jas. 1:19. There is but one source of the ONE FAITH, the Bible, Romans 10:17. Hence there can not be different creeds and beliefs to choose between. We must accept the scripture as the only authority in Christianity.
ONE BAPTISM which is a burial in water Rom 6:3-4 John 3 23, for the remission of sins, Acts 2 38 There being only one baptism, then we can not choose concerning sprinkling or pouring or holy ghost baptism.
ONE GOD. You must believe in Him exclusively.
Do we really have a choice? There is only one way to heaven, John 14:6 Our ONLY choice is to accept Christ and obey His commands, or refuse Him, thus choosing hell.

Should Christianity heal today?

Christ Jesus taught and proved the power of Truth to heal.

The Bible records that he "healed all manner of disease among the people," and he taught all those who followed him to "go and do likewise."

And many do.

Christian Science teaches the present power of God to heal, and this healing is going on today throughout the world.

In our Reading Room you will enjoy reading the inspiring weekly Bible Lessons which reveal the spiritually scientific basis for Jesus' marvelous healing works.

You are welcome to come in and read in our quiet room today.

Regional Championship Game Tonight!

Hersey Awaits Title Tilt After Ousting Fremd, 67-53

by KEITH REINHARD

Hersey cage coach Roger Steingraber made a familiarl move Wednesday and it paid off handsomely . . . again.

The mentor's motion brought Mark Jacoby onto the playing floor early against Fremd in the semi-final round of Arlington's regional Wednesday evening. When the spritely 5-7 senior strolled off the hardwood less than three quarters later the Huskies had bagged their second straight tournament win by thoroughly disposing of the Vikings 67-53.

The Huskies go into action again tonight at 7:30 against the winner of Thursday's Arlington-St. Viator bout to determine a regional tourney champion.

It was the second time in as many contests that Mighty Mark had come off the bench to provide the momentum for a Hersey triumph. Popping in a 15 footer scant moments after he joined his teammates on the floor, Jacoby went on to spearhead a powerful floor game that completely took the wind out of Fremd's usually devasting fast break offense and potent press.

On the heels of a 107-point outburst Monday, Fremd's production Wednesday was the lowest since their opening game of the season. But it was old hat to a Hersey outfit which has been tapped for more than 60 points only four times in 24 contests this winter.

The difference in Hersey this time was a smoothly operating offense to augment their strong defensive play. Shaking off a timid start that had them down 10-2 midway through period one, the Huskies went on to jack five players into double figures and each was a hero in his own right.

Jacoby, who finished with 11, bagged eight tallies in the second quarter to help hike his squad from a 14-13 first quarter deficit into a 34-27 intermission bulge. Prior to that lanky 6-6 guard Mark Lindstrom had allowed Hersey to shrug off Fremd's initial thrust with a trio of medium ranger jumpers and a free throw in the opening stanza.

Lindstrom also went on to score 11 and pulled down nine rebounds.

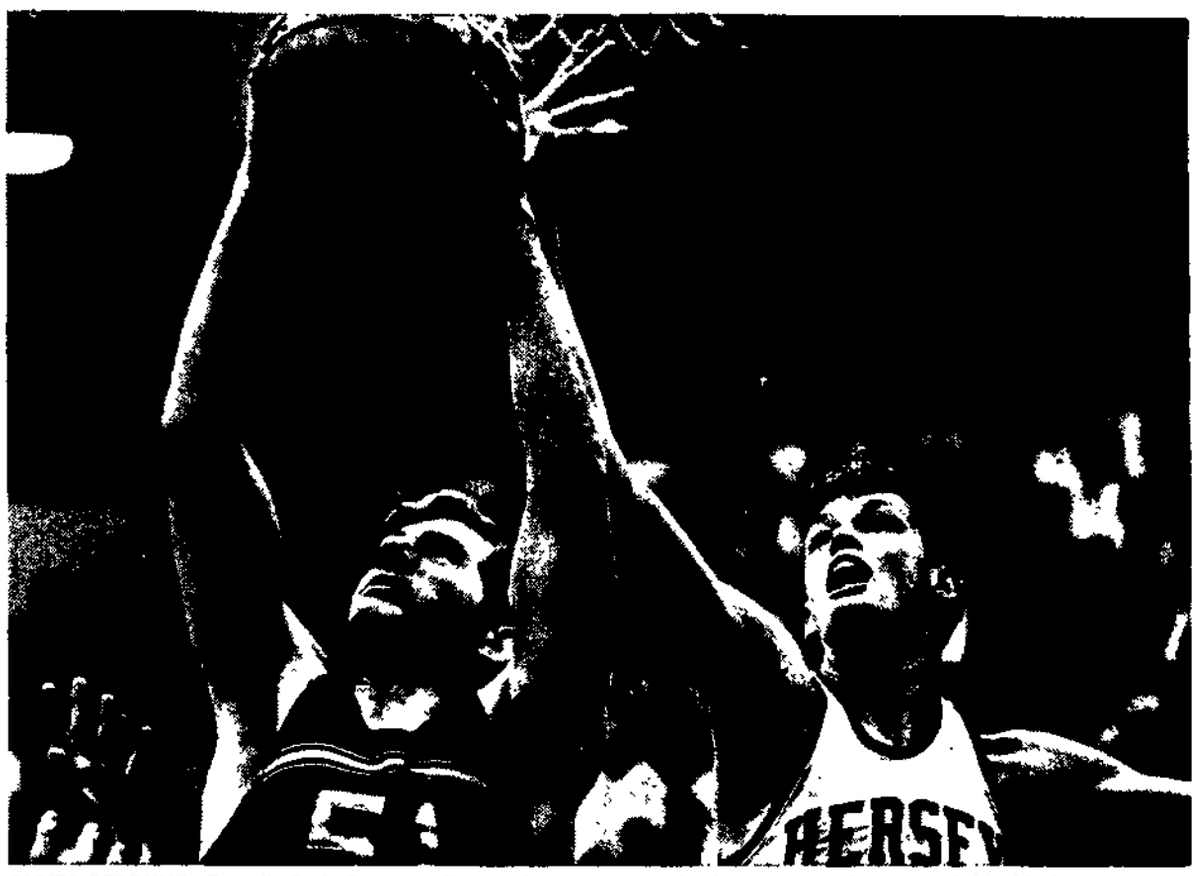
In period three Scott Feige took over the limelight by canning three straight during a span when Fremd's attack appeared on the verge of taking over. Mike Kolze instigated the Viking surge first by passing off to center Randy Hague for a close-in goal and then swishing a pair of free tosses and a layup on Bob Moloznik's feed.

The layup had Leon Kasuboske's group trailing by just five with 2:58 remaining in the third period. Feige countered however with a shot underneath, then matched a layup by Rick Gaare with a 17 footer from the corner and finally followed up a Kolze 13-foot kicker with another long shot to close out the period.

Feige finished up with 15 points to go with a tenacious defensive job on Kolze, who probably would have scored 40 had he been left alone.

In the fourth quarter it was Don Spry providing the heroics. He slammed in one from 15 feet out and later added two tip ins while the Huskies were pulling away.

Finally there was Andy Pancratz, with a few brand new moves to go with his already solid game. The splendid sophomore spent one long stint on the bench in four trouble and still managed to finish off with 19 points and a game high 12 rebounds.



RICK'S REBOUND. Fremd's Rick Gaare, a fine performer Wednesday night, hauls down this rebound despite the efforts of Hersey's Mark Lindstrom, another standout in the semi-final action. Lindstrom and his Huskie teammates ousted Fremd, 67-53, and will play tonight for the regional title. (Photo by Dom Najolia

Kickin' It Around

by BOB FRISK
Sports Editor

YES, OUR AREA BOYS can swim with the big guys.

No, we're not ready to challenge on a team basis in state competition, but give us time.

This is a start, and that's what was needed in swimming.

Watch out, you gymnasts, basketball players, and wrestlers. The swimmers are making their move.

It should be apparent now, after the events that transpired last weekend, that you no longer can label swimming as just that fourth sport in the winter high school season.

It's taken time, as everybody knew it would, but the area has achieved its finest moment in swimming, thanks to St. Viator whiz Rich Lynch, and an exciting future lies ahead.

Years from now, when they look back on the difficult days in the growing up process of area swimming, they'll remember that February Saturday in 1970.

It was the day of The Breakthrough. It was the day that a youngster proved that this area could produce a bona fide swimming star, an All-Stater, a swimmer who could go out there with the Hinsdales, and Evanstons, and New Triers and hold his own.

Yes, Saturday belonged to Hinsdale Central's fantastically-talented swimming team, but it also belonged to a young man from Prospect Heights, a senior at St. Viator.

Rich Lynch

Rich Lynch placed third in the state 50 yard freestyle and fourth in the 100 freestyle, and for an area that's trying so desperately to succeed in swimming, these performances furnished a tremendous boost.

Until a swimmer actually breaks into the elite, crashes that scoring column and lands that All-State rating, it's difficult for any area youngster coming up to fully comprehend what can be accomplished.

Maybe there was a time when an area prep would approach a district qualifying test with a "What's the use?" attitude, simply because nothing of significance had ever been achieved before.

But that was before The Breakthrough, before those sparkling third and fourth place finishes by Rich Lynch.

For the St. Viator standout, this week has been a time to take a rest, to reflect on the past, to look ahead to the future.

"It feels good to take it a little easy," he says, "because I had a lot of trouble sleeping before the state.

"I worked on the fine points in practice last week, the kicking, starts and turns, some time sprints, but there were a lot of other things to think about and, yes, the pressure . . . there's tremendous pressure."

Lynch keyed himself to the 50 free at the state and was satisfied with his performance but admits he would have liked to get his 100 freestyle time down a little.

For the record, Lynch has career bests of 22.3 in the 50 freestyle and 49.2 in the 100. He's shown gradual improvement since he made his first impact, or should we say splash, on the area scene as an extremely talented freshman with clockings of 24.4 and 54.5.

"There was no question then that Rich was going to be a fine one," says St. Viator coach Charles Mondi as he looks back on those afternoons four years ago when this Prospect Heights youngster first reported for practice.

"Rich had a broken foot as a freshman and didn't start the season," Mondi recalls. "There was no flexibility in one ankle, and he hated to kick. But this boy has a tremendous attitude and as the year went on, he really worked as an individual to improve. He's just a fine young man, a team leader, and he definitely can swim at a major college."

Lynch, who now will have to make that decision about college, never took swimming lessons as a youngster and admits today that he got interested "because my sister worked at the pool, we lived close to it, and I just spent a lot of time there."

"I didn't swim during the winter, actually learned quite a bit at the Wagon Wheel in Rochton. Except for the Fourth of July meets, things like that, and that invitational they hold for grade schools at St. Viator (Rich represented St. Alphonsus), there was no real competition. I guess I just picked up stuff along the way but all along I knew how much I enjoyed it."

And St. Viator and area swimming enthusiasts can be thankful Rich Lynch found it so enjoyable because his performances last weekend are being called the best thing that ever happened to the sport here.

"New Trier was magic in swimming for so long and Rich beat a New Trier boy in the district," emphasizes Mondi, the proud head coach. "This is what it takes to get people aware of the sport here, to show what strides are being made, and will be made in the future.

"Just the way the Mid-Suburban schools are moving in swimming, with new pools, new interest, is boosting the sport.

"Everywhere there is new thinking, with new trends, techniques. There's a push to weight-lifting in training, for example, and that's something we plan to do so much more of at St. Viator."

Mondi's enthusiasm is infectious. The enthusiasm of any swimmer you talk to is infectious because the sport finally has caught on in the area and now will mushroom in popularity.

Those first years are always the hardest.

You struggle along for acceptance, battling for pools, battling for some recognition, battling to get boys to come out, and then you turn the corner . . . you see the progress, a Rich Lynch comes along, you receive the recognition, you know the future is bright.

That's the way it is today with area swimming.

The battle continues.

It's up to the spring sports now.

Only one point now separates the top two schools in the struggle for possession of the coveted Paddock Cup, a three-foot high trophy that honors overall varsity sports supremacy in the Mid-Suburban League and is presented by Paddock Publications sports department.

Arlington High School, winner for two straight years in the Cup race and intent on retiring the handsome trophy, rebounded from a so-so showing in fall sports with a spectacular winter campaign.

With two championships and a second place in the three winter sports that include each league school, Arlington has moved into a one-point lead over Prospect.

Heading into the spring sports campaign, where four official league championships will be determined, Arlington owns 35 points in the rankings that rate finishes on a point basis — 10 for a championship, 8 for second, 7 for third, 6 for fourth, and down the line with no points awarded for a tenth place spot.

Prospect, in fourth after the fall sports, climbed into second place (34 points) with seconds in wrestling and basketball and a fourth in gymnastics.

Several high schools remain in contention for the Paddock Cup, a marked departure from recent years when one or two schools dominated throughout.

Hersey, fifth after the fall sports, landed 20½ points in the winter competition to move into third place, one point ahead of Palatine.

Fremd, the leader in the fall, slipped a little in the winter but still remains only eight and one-half points behind Arlington.

Gym Competition Continues Tonight

The second session of the sectional gymnastics meets at Forest View and Addison Trail will be held tonight at 7:00.

Tonight's scheduled events are trampoline, parallel bars and horizontal bar. Thursday's events were side horse, free floor exercise and still rings.

All-around competition will be settled tonight and the team trophy presentation will also be held.

Residents Vote Tomorrow On $950,000 Parks Plan

by PAT GERLACH

Residents of the Schaumburg Park District will go the polls tomorrow to decide if a first-phase capital improvements program built around the neighborhood park concept will be implemented.

Although the total cost of the entire project has been listed at $1.2 million, voters will be asked to approve only a $950,000 bond issue which will finance the largest part of the program.

The remaining money will come from park board action approving an additional levy of one-half of one per cent of the present total assessed valuation of $63 million.

These funds will be used primarily to acquire several parcels of land in the south east and central sections of the village.

APPROVAL OF THE bond issue will ensure the park district of construction of a second community pool which will be located at Jane Addams Park on Springinsguth Road. Construction of the pool complex has been estimated at $275,000.

A multi-purpose recreation center which will be built just east of Weathersfield subdivision is planned to cost in the neighborhood of $220,000 to complete. The facility will house 350 to 400 persons at peak capacity and will be used for instructional programs offered by the park district. Space for community groups to hold meetings will also be allowed.

The proposal's approval will also permit completion of a $100,000 park at the 13-acre Addams site, as well as a $55,000 park on a seven-acre site adjacent to Nathan Hale Elementary School on Wise Road.

Parks, which are each expected to cost $75,000 to finish, will be located on a nine-acre site in Timbercrest and a seven-acre site in Lancer's Carlisle-Benwick subdivision.

A seven to 10 acre site in Sunset Hills, in the far east area of the village, will also be installed at a projected cost of $50,000.

The bond sale will also provide $50,000 for use as engineering and legal fees and a contingency fee of $50,000.

Passage of tomorrow's park referendum will permit an almost immediate start of construction, according to Paul Derda, director of parks and recreation.

Derda predicts the total project will be within 90 per cent of completion one year from tomorrow.

The improvement program has been in preparation by park directors and their planning consultant firm, McFazdean & Everly, Ltd., for more than eight months.

IT EVOLVED FROM revisions made on the original master plan developed for the park district by the Winnetka park and recreation planning firm about three years ago.

Approval of the program will increase taxes paid on a home in the park district assessed at $10,000 about $12 during the first year.

Within five years the increased cost in taxes paid by the same homeowners is expected to drop to about $7 and the cost is expected to continually decline throughout the 15-year amortization period due to anticipated growth in assessed valuation of the park district.

You'll Have 12 Hours

Schaumburg voters will have 12 hours tomorrow, between 6 a.m. and 6 p.m., to vote for or against the $950,000 park district referendum.

Polling places:

—Precinct 1, Schaumburg School, East Schaumburg Road, for residents living north of Schaumburg Road.

—Precinct 2, recreation building of Meadow Trace Apartments, 4738 Arbor Drive, Rolling Meadows, for residents living within the corporate limits of Rolling Meadows.

—Precinct 3, Jane Addams Junior High School, 700 Springinsguth Road, for residents living between Schaumburg and Wise Road, west of Springinsguth.

—Precinct 4, Pebble Path Garden Center, Roselle Road south of Nerge Road, for residents living south of Wise Road.

—Precinct 5, Nathan Hale School, 1300 W. Wise Road, for residents living between Wise and Schaumburg Road, east of Springinsguth Road and west of Braintree Drive.

—Precinct 6, Robert Frost Junior High School, 320 Wise Road, for residents living between Schaumburg and Wise roads, east of Braintree Drive.

Let's Back Parks

Wise planning and a look toward future development has been taken in the preparation of Schaumburg Park District's first-phase development program being presented for voter approval tomorrow.

For these reasons The Herald urges residents of the 24-square mile park district to join us in a YES vote which we believe will benefit each family involved as well as the community as a whole.

Park Director Paul Derda and board members have attempted to include virtually "something for everyone" in their present balanced planning.

Although the total project will cost $1.2 million, voters will be asked to authorize only a $950,000 bond sale with which to finance the major portion of the expansion program.

FUNDS FROM the bond sale will be used to build the park district's second community pool, a multi-purpose recreation center and develop five neighborhood park or park-school installations of varying sizes and spread judiciously through the park district.

Although the new pool, to be located at Jane Addams Park, may appear to some as being quite close to the existing water recreation facility, park board members and their planning consultants have chosen this location with an eye to present population concentration.

While the bulk of Schaumburg's population now lies in the Weathersfield area, a site for the new recreation building has been selected just east of the subdivision. Near-future concentration trends indicate that section will soon equal the earlier development.

The park district also appears to be getting maximum mileage from its school lease agreement with Dist. 54, and to the advantage of taxpayers, will develop the neighborhood parks near schools.

THE SUNSET HILLS area, long lacking in recreational development, will be served by a playground on land being purchased by the district.

Although this program, obviously, is only the first development phase of a rapidly growing park district, it appears to have been well thought out and will provide a number of recreational areas.

Cost to the taxpayer the first year will boost taxes paid to the district by about $12. By the fifth year, however, this cost will have been reduced to about $7 annually. These sums are over and above what is presently being paid in park taxes.

Additional anticipated growth and its corresponding increase in total assessed valuation will continue to bring these costs down further throughout the 15-year amortization period of the proposed bond issue.

THE REMAINING funds to finance the program will come to the park board through its decision to levy an additional tax of one-half of one per cent of the present $63 million assessed valuation of the district. This money will be used primarily to acquire land for the recreation building and Sunset Hills play area.

The expansion program makes a well-planned and organized appearance from both financial and functional standpoints and would also appear to further enforce the total plan for the municipality of Schaumburg.

Demo Women's Meet To Feature Opponents

Lynn Williams and his opponent Ray Krier, both candidates for Democratic state central committeeman March 17, will be among prominent guests at tonight's meeting of the Schaumburg Township Democratic Organization's Women's Auxiliary.

Other guests will include Edward Warman, Democratic candidate for election to Congress from the 13th District, as well as State Rep. Mrs. Eugenia Chapman and Paul Shanyfelt, candidate for state senator from the Third District.

The meeting will be held at 8:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. John Kelley, 1324 Chartwell (Churchill), Schaumburg.

Joey Has Come Marching Home

by STEVE NOVICK

All the people on Schaumburg's Westover Lane, near Joey Domko's house, had their flags and banners out Wednesday for Joey's return from Vietnam.

"Joey," is a neighborly nickname for Joseph Domko III, 24, who returned with honors after a year with the Fourth Infantry Division "Pathfinders" in Vietnam's central highlands.

"All through life Joey's won awards," his mother said. "But he always said it's not for anyone to know."

A neighbor, Mrs. Kate McNamee volunteered to tell why everyone on the block acknowledged Joe Domko's homecoming.

"At everything he does, he tops the list," she said of the veteran.

While in college at Southern Illinois University, Domko won the NCAA wrestling championship for his weight class, Mrs. McNamee said

DOMKO NOW PLANS to study for a master's degree and will look into three or four schools where he has received offers.

His wrestling might bring him to the 1972 Olympics in Munich. He has been approached by the U. S. Olympic team, Mrs. McNamee added.

Mrs. Domko harped on her son's modesty, but with a little coaxing she brought out a few of his awards from Vietnam.

One plaque was from the officers and men of the 4th Infantry Division recognizing Domko for "outstanding service and achievement."

It designated Domko as "Mr. Airborne-Night Jumper 3."

Other awards recognized Domko as the number one student in his class at Infantry School and at Pathfinder's School.

Mrs. Domko explained the Pathfinders are those paratroopers who go via helicopter into the war zone seeking safe landing places for the other paratroopers to follow.

SHOWING A PICTURE of her son, Mrs. Domko said, "Joey thinks every boy in Vietnam should have his picture in the paper. He said he'd let his picture be put in the paper when all the other boys have their pictures in too."

Mrs. McNamee said Domko is a thoughtful and idealistic person besides being modest over his accomplishments.

"In his letters home he'd always write a note to Larry, the postman," Mrs. Domko said.

He writes poetry, plays the guitar and sings, added Mrs. McNamee.

"He's just one hell of a guy," she added.

The 100 block of Westover Lane looked like a Fourth of July display with flags flying on most of the block's houses.

"WELCOME HOME JOEY" and "Welcome Home GI Joe," signs read.

"I'll be seeing you soon," said Domko's last note to Larry the postman.

A tear came to Mrs. Domko's eye Thursday expressing more than words how happy she was that her boy had arrived home safe.

TV 'Booked Up' In District Schools

Lights! Action! Camera!

The actors take their places and the camera starts shooting, but there's no director and no Hollywood movie set.

Instead, a Dist. 54 teacher is giving a demonstration in classroom teaching that will be filmed on videotape and shown to other teachers on a monitor-receiver that looks like a standard television set.

Dist. 54 purchased two videotape recorders earlier this year from the Ampex Corp. of Elk Grove at a cost of $5,698. Each videotape recorder consists of a television camera placed on a portable tripod, a portable videotape recorder, a microphone, and a monitor/receiver.

Use of the video equipment has been so popular with teachers that it is booked solid, said R. Kim Driggers, Dist. 54 program development coordinator.

"This is the first step in a closed-circuit television system," Driggers said.

"The educational use of videotape is practically limitless," Driggers observed.

Presently, the videotape recorders are being used in the Schaumburg Township elementary district for demonstration lessons, in-service workshop taping, special education programs (speech correction and teaching of the handicapped), self-evaluation of teaching methods by classroom teachers, and filming of pupil reports and projects in the classroom.

The videotape film used in the recorders can either be preserved for showing again or erased and used again, Driggers said.

"The tape is reusable up to 800 times," Driggers said. A one-inch-wide tape is used in the recorders, and all of the equipment is simple to operate.

A video sequence lasting 60 minutes can be filmed on a 2,950-foot reel, noted the program development coordinator.

The most common use of the video equipment, Driggers said, is where the videotape recorder and microphone are used together to film a sequence with the television camera and receiver when retrieval of sound is required.

However, the television camera and receiver can be used separately from the recorder in situations where recordings and playback are not necessary, explained the program development coordinator.

For example, a videotape film of President Nixon's visit to Schaumburg Township is being shown to Dist. 54 classes on the monitor-receiver in connection with social studies lessons.

Recent classroom demonstrations filmed in the elementary district included the teaching of mathematics with the Cuisenaire Rods, and speech therapy with a young pupil.

Educationally speaking, Dist. 54 teachers have found that a picture is often worth a thousand words.

VIDEO FILM of a speech therapy lesson is made with one of the video tape recorders now in use in Dist. 54. The television equipment has many different uses, according to school administrators. Here Nina Pettiti, preschool-aged youngster from Hanover Park, receives remedial work in language from teacher Carol Cermak.

SCHAUMBURG VOTERS will determine the fate of neighborhood park development tomorrow. The Park District is asking for permission to spend $950,000 in bonds for the second community swimming pool to be located at Addams Junior High School and a recreation center for Sunset Acres. Ultimately, as shown above, a swimming pool would be added to the complex.

Budgets Are Big Business

(Last of a Series)

by JUDY BRANDES

Budgets are big business, particularly when they involve $11 million in taxpayers' money. Few taxing bodies in the Northwest suburbs have budgets larger than that of High School Dist. 211.

With the highest tax rate among high school districts in Cook County and the sixth-lowest assessed valuation of 60 Cook County high school districts, the money spent for education in Dist. 211 comes dearly, almost straight from the pockets of local residents.

Since the Dist. 211 school board is solely responsible to the electorate for the funds it spends, it can be expected to keep a careful watch on those funds, know where the dear dollars are going, and be able to justify approval of all expenditures for a questioning public.

BUT THE facts, most of them gleaned from Dist. 211 board minutes during the past year, don't support such an assumption. For many years Dist. 211 has operated on a fiscal year which begins July 1 and ends June 30 of the next year.

In preparing an $11 million budget with an expected $1 million deficit, the school district works several months on a tentative budget.

On July 10, 1969, the Dist. 211 board, after a short public hearing, adopted its final budget for this school year. No record of consideration of a tentative budget, which is required in Section 17-1 of the Illinois School Code, appears in the board minutes during the spring and summer months before July.

Nor did the board hold a special public hearing, apart from he regular school board meeting, as is required by law.

Many school boards do hold a public hearing, apart from the regular school board meeting immediately after the public hearing to avoid calling an extra meeting.

THOUGH NOT required by law, taxing bodies like school districts often hold separate public meetings of finance committees for the electorate to hear discussion on pertinent expenditure questions and perhaps offer suggestions.

With no finance committee to review the proposed budget and hold hearings on it, Dist. 211 was unable to let the public know about its upcoming budget, as it has done in years past. A finance committee was not one of the eight committees appointed in the April 24, 1969, organizational meeting of the Dist. 211 board.

Consequently, the burden of preparing the $11 million budget fell on administrative personnel, who received little or no direction from their school board on expenditure priorities or fiscal policies for this year.

Recently, the administration requested the board president appoint a board finance committee to help prepare the 1970-71 budget. This committee should be informed on what is included in next year's budget when the public hearing comes up this summer.

LAST YEAR, according to the official board minutes, no board member mentioned anything about the upcoming $11 million budget while it was being drawn up. And if a tentative budget did reach the board, its acceptance or rejection was not recorded in the board minutes.

Reviewing the budget presented and adopted by the board on July 10, 1969, two funds were not included in the final budget. Three others were grouped together in the revenue section of the building fund budget.

The Bond and Interest Fund and the Site and Construction Fund, totalling a board expenditure of $3.5 million, were excluded from the final budget.

Though the two funds are predetermined by previous commitments of the board through bond sales and contracts for constructing buildings, the board is responsible for the funds.

TAX FUNDS not needed immediately after collection are put into short-term investments to increase revenue. No identifiable figures on the estimated revenue from these two funds is given in the 1969-70 budget.

The $3.5 million, though already allocated by legal contracts, is taxpayers' money and should be accounted for in the budget.

The other three funds that appear in the revenue listing for the building fund are the Liability Insurance, the Life Safety Code and the Special Education levy. The Illinois School Code sets general rules for drawing up budgets, but does not specify how levies for the 10 funds should be reported.

Nor does it indicate that a budget summary of revenue and expenditure be included.

HOWEVER, EASE of understanding where the tax money is being used and how much tax money is being spent prompts most school districts to have separate listings of their tax levies and the monies each yields.

When the Dist. 211 Board approved its final budget, it had no total picture to look at on paper. Despite the fact that $3.5 million was missing from the budget picture, a total of the remaining five funds was not part of the 1969-70 budget either. In essence, the Dist. 211 board approved a budget of a little less than $8 million, yet the district will spend more than $11 million this year.

Once it had passed its 1969-70 budget, questions of priority spending came up that indicate the board did not understand why certain amounts were allocated to certain funds. An example is the capital outlay fund, part of the building fund.

ACCORDING TO the budget, $200,000 is available this year for building improvement, equipment and replacements in the existing buildings. Prior to the Oct. 9, 1969, meeting, about half the money had been approved for reroofing Conant High School, tuckpointing Palatine High School, bleachers and a press box at Palatine, and wrestling room wall pads for Fremd High School.

Administrative officials were recommending $36,600 more in improvements, some of which had been suggested to them by individual board members. The improvements included $25,000 for an elevator in Palatine High School. The board approved $11,000 for fencing, tennis backboards and improvements of the Conant High School track, and postponed consideration of the elevators.

In discussion of the proposed improvements at an earlier board meeting, the board requested a breakdown of the fund since it did not know what the status of the capital outlay fund was. Apparently it did not know how the figure of $200,000 had been obtained and what it was budgeted to be used for.

A $25,000 expenditure for an elevator cannot be considered an emergency budget measure. Consideration of building improvements like an elevator usually come before adoption of a budget and are included in it. The important point is that no member of the Dist. 211 board, the elected representatives of the taxpayers in the district, knew why $200,000 of taxpayers' money was put in a capital outlay fund and how much of that money had already been spent.

Not all expenditures during the school year can be anticipated. When a school board decides on an expenditure of public money that is not budgeted, it is held accountable for reporting the results and benefits, if any, the district receives from the expenditure.

In September, 1969, the Dist. 211 board approved the expenditures necessary to send two board members to Atlanta with a group from High School Dist. 214. The board felt the expenditure justifid for a study of the concept of year-round school, but no limitation was placed on the amount to be spent.

No report has been made public since the two board members and a third administrative official returned. In December, the board approved payment of the bills incurred on the five-day trip. No statements have been made by the board's two travelers about the trip's worth to Dist. 211, nor have any board members

Parent Interest, Help Key to Baseball 'Hit'

Parent interest and participation will be the key to the Hoffman Estates Athletic Association's (HEAA) 1970 baseball program.

In a mass mailing to the community this week, HEAA Pres. Dryle Rathman indicated the 14-year-old association is taking on a new and more positive approach under his leadership.

Late last summer several HEAA officials predicted that because of inadequate facilities and lack of parental interest the program could go out of existence.

Several meetings with park district officials were subsequently held and HEAA also conferred with Dist. 54 in an attempt to secure additional baseball fields and upgrade present facilities.

A LIMITED expansion program is planned and voter approval of the park district's Project Aquarius March 14 will add a lighted, national standard Little League field to the community.

Noteworthy is the fact that this is the first time in the history of HEAA that parents of boys and girls in Hoffman Estates have received a personal letter from the organization prior to registration.

Often in past years, notices of registration have been hastily, if at all, submitted to local newspapers and frequently arrived at the last minute.

In his lengthy and informative letter to parents, Rathman, the father of five sons and an active HEAA member and supporter for many years, stressed his communication was not a request for money.

"Money is not our goal — but, rather, this letter is an offer to help your children," he said.

EXPLAINING THE history of HEAA, Rathman said the organization was founded in 1956 to promote and direct athletic activities for boys and girls of the community.

"Over the years, our programs have benefited hundreds of youngsters and, hopefully, has helped mold them as future citizens," he continued.

Rathman said HEAA currently has a, "fine program of boys baseball and girls softball as well as extensive football and hockey plans.

"Later we will talk with you regarding football and hockey — today, it's baseball," the letter said.

The message explained that March 10, 14, 20 and 21, registration for the forthcoming boys baseball and softball programs will be held at Helen Keller Junior High School.

HE SAID HEAA offers 33 teams of 15 players each which make up five leagues: ponytail (for girls), minor, major, pony and colt leagues (for boys).

The age of participants vary from 9 to 16 years of age depending on league.

"In the past we have registered more than 500 children — just about the maximum. This letter, then, is not sent to help build the program, but to insure that every child who meets the requirements as to age and residence has the opportunity to participage," the letter continued.

Rathman described the HEAA baseball program as the result of combined efforts of many people and said that for every team on the field a number of people are required to produce team function.

"It also involves people to make our money-raising events successful. It is as simple as this — we must have help or the program ceases to exist," he said, also adding, "having a child in the program is not to prerequisite for parental participation."

He said this year team managers will be asked to appoint business managers for their groups from among parents of players in order to assist the team function.

"ONE OF THE new appointee's jobs will be to recruit still other parents to assist — for this year the rule just must be 'if a child is to play, dad or mom must help," he said.

Positions that must be filled if HEAA is to offer a successful baseball program this year include that of manager, which Rathman described as a post open for persons knowledgeable in the sport who will accept total responsibility for the team.

Also needed are persons to act as coaches. The job description for this post indicates that this worker must act as assistant to team mangers.

Opening also exist for business managers for each team. Rathman said this position calls for an individual who will accept responsibility for team rosters, parental participation, fund raising, etc. He said this post is administrative and does not require knowledge of the sport.

Most urgently needed are umpires, according to Rathman, but miscellaneous tasks calling for those willing to make telephone calls, help prepare ball fields and work on fund-raising events are also being sought.

He said jobs will be made available for all interested parents and stressed that participation from a parental standpoint is a must this year.

PARENTS UNABLE to be present at registration, but willing to assist in any of the jobs open, are asked to indicate their willingness and either have someone represent them at registration or contact Hoffman Estates Athletic Association, 222 Highland Blvd., Hoffman Estates, 60172.

Rathman also welcomed all parents and others interested in HEAA activities to attend the association's general meetings held the second Tuesday of each month at 8 30 p.m. at the village hall

Rarely in the past have HEAA meetings been considered open to the public, or even to parents, but Rathman stressed that in the future everyone is welcome at general meetings.

Library Board Hires Consultant

The Schaumburg Township Library Board hired the bond consultant firm of Paul D. Speer & Associates, of Chicago, to assist with a $1.2 million building referendum planned in August at Wednesday's board meeting.

At the annual town meeting in Schaumburg Township April 14, the library directors intend to ask for authorization from township residents to hold the library referendum. If the referendum is passed, the library would then sell $1,200,000 in bonds to finance a 44,000 square-foot library building.

Three bids from bond companies were considered by the library board Wednesday, but Speer & Associates was selected because there will be no charge if the referendum fails. If the referendum is approved, the fee charged by Speer & Associates is $4,000.

THE FIRM of Speer and Associates previously assisted with a referendum for the Glenview Public Library, according to Michael Madden, Schaumburg Township Librarian.

The bond firm of Associated Municipal Consultants, Elgin, submitted a bid of $3,200 for services, but their fee if the referendum failed was $1,500. Benjamin and Lang, of Chicago, submitted bids of $4,200 and $500, (if the referendum fails.)

According to the library attorney, John Jurgensmeyer, the library cannot presently pay more than 6 per cent interest on any bonds sold as a result of a referendum.

Passage of the $1,200,000 library referendum next August would mean an additional tax of about $8 per year for the average homeowner, Madden said.

ARCHITECT'S blueprints for a master library plan are currently being prepared by the firm of O'Donnell, Wicklund, and Pigozzi, of Evanston. This firm will also prepare blueprints for expanding the township library in stages.

The library board is preparing two budgets for the coming year. One will include building expenses, and one will only cover operating expenses. The present library levy is $12 a year.

Madden said the circulation of books at the Schaumburg Township Library is now as large as that of the Elgin Public Library, which has 78,000 square feet of floor space. The township library now as 9,000 square feet. Circulation increased 50 per cent in 1969 over the previous year, Madden said.

A SURVEY of library patrons indicated that 88 per cent would use the library if it were open Sunday afternoon from 1 to 5 p.m., while 12 per cent would not.

Among the patrons surveyed only 25 per cent were in favor of the library being open from 8 to 10 a.m. Monday through Friday. The library now opens at 10 a.m.

Fifty-seven per cent of the patrons polled said they would use the library if it were open in the late evening from 9 to 11 p.m., while 43 per cent would not.

Park Rec Plans on Schedule

Preparation of Hoffman Estates Park District's summer recreation program is now in progress and completion is expected by mid-March. Vaughn R. Black, director of parks and recreation, said this week.

Reporting at this week's meeting, Black told park board members that each member of the recreational staff was sent a memo instructing them of the deadlines set up for program preparation, and completion on-target is anticipated.

Black also noted the park district provided 47 days of ice skating this year compared with only 38 days of skating during 1969.

HE SAID THE three ponds used for skating are now considered unsafe due to thawing conditions and indicated that in all probability the skating season has now ended.

He also said some spring clean-up work is in progress at the parks and reported several loads of gravel had been spread on the driveway and parking lot at Vogelei Community Park.

Black also told board members he obtained permission from the state highway department to upgrade the driveway entrance at Vogelei Park and to remove four dead trees on state property adjoining the park.

Continuing his regular report, Black advised the board that lighting estimates for the park flagpole totaled $200 but said he was not prepared as yet to recommend contracting for the work.

He also noted permission was obtained last week to purchase gasoline from the village of Hoffman Estates. Black said authorization was granted by Daniel Larson, an administrative assistant to Mayor Frederick E. Downey.

"THIS SHOULD SAVE the taxpayers a considerable sum of money since the gasoline can be purchased at a much lower rate from the village," Black commented.

He also told the board that in an attempt to secure accurate attendance figures for park recreation programs, he has instituted a new staff policy.

"Recreational staff members will not be paid until their attendance figures have been submitted and I have advised all these employes that their pay will not be authorized until this information is in my hands," he explained.

Attendance at park-sponsored programs during November totaled 803 while December attendance figures indicated 1,087 persons participated in park activities.

January figures totaled 1,435 and February attendance figures have not yet been compiled, Black said.

Open School Bids Soon

Bids for the construction of two new elementary schools will be opened by the Board of Education of Elgin School District U46 March 19 and 26, 2 p.m., in the Instructional Materials Center, 389 E. Chicago St., Elgin.

March 19, bids will be opened pertaining to heating, ventilation, temperature control, plumbing and electrical work.

Bids for general contract work will be opened March 26.

The two schools, designed by Schmidtke and Layer, Elgin, will be located in Elgin's Century Oaks subdivision and in Hanover Park at the west end of Laurel Avenue along Center street.

District U46 anticipates letting contracts for the construction of two more elementary schools this summer.

All four schools were approved by voters in the December 1968 school bond referendum.

Women To Gather For Prayer Day

Schaumburg Township women will gather at Our Saviour's United Methodist Church, 611 East Golf Goad, Hoffman Estates, today at 1 p.m. to observe World Day of Prayer.

World Day of Prayer is sponsored by Church Women United and will be celebrated in 25,000 communities in the United States. Women will join millions in prayer throughout the world in 75 languages and 1,000 dialects.

The prayers will be asking for courage to act responsibly during the coming year.

Our Saviour's program will include a message from Michael Roschke, vicar of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Mount Prospect, and student at Concordia Theological Seminary, St. Louis.

Nursery service will be provided and a get acquainted coffee will follow the program. Women from Hoffman Estates, Schaumburg, Hanover Park and Elk Grove Village will participate in the program.

Chorale To Sing

The Moody Chorale, the a cappella choir of Moody Bible Institute, Chicago, will sing at the Itasca Evangelical Free Church, on Sunday at 7 p.m.

The church is located on Bonnie Brae and George streets in Itasca. This concert will be held at the onset of the annual Missionary Conference. Everyone is invited to attend the concert.

Moody chorale is heralded on two continents as outstanding in its field. In 1954, 1958, and 1967, the group presented concerts in six European countries. Newspapers dubbed them "missionaries in song," a title that has remained with them through the years.

The chorale tours parts of the United States and Canada twice yearly presenting masterworks of sacred choral music, gospel songs and hymn arrangements. Five record albums featuring their work have been released.

No admission will be charged for the concert; a free-will donation will be accepted.

Bernholdt Is Named Promotion Director

Paul Bernholdt of 540 Edgewood Lane, Elk Grove Village, is activities promotion director for the Rotary International, it was announced recently.

His department promotes Interact, Rotaract, youth exchange program, and world community service.

Bernholdt has been with Rotary International, which is a worldwide service association, since 1966.

Policeman Trainee

Airman Stanley E. Parrett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Parrett, 23 W. 748 Turner Ave., Roselle, has completed basic training at Lackland AFB, Tex.

He is remaining at Lackland for training as a security policeman. Airman Parrett is a 1969 graduate of Lake Park High School.

Budgets Are Big Business

discussed openly the feasibility of year-round school in Dist. 211.

THE TOPIC HAS been considered in closed sessions of the board's long range planning committee, which is illegal according to the open meeting law passed by the Illinois Legislature in 1967. Only collective bargaining negotiations, land acquisition, pending court cases, personnel discussions and student discipline cases are subject for closed sessions.

In comparison, Dist. 211's companions on the trip, board members and administrative officials from Dist. 214, made periodic long distance phone calls to the Herald during the trip to report on activities, issued statements of their opinion of the success of the trip and its value to the district when they returned from Atlanta, and since have released a 37-page report on the trip and the direction Dist. 214 can go with its own program.

It is the responsibility of each board member, as well as the board as a whole, to account for all expenditures of the taxpayers' money in Dist. 211. No item, whether it be a $200,000 capital outlay fund, $500 for a trip, or $3.5 million in the Site and Construction and the Bond and Interest funds, should go undiscussed and unaccounted for.

Inattentiveness in money matters of a high school district with an $11 million budget should not be tolerated by the electorate that eventually pays the bills.

The Dist. 211 school board, because of its inaction and lack of knowledge of the financial matters in the district in the past year, must assume its responsibility soon as a taxing body, and account to the public for the money it has spent.

Observe World Day of Prayer

Mrs. William Glab of the Lutheran Church of the Holy Spirit will represent Elk Grove Village today at 1 p.m. at a world day of prayer observance in Hoffman Estates.

The observance is a joint service by several area churches at our Saviour's United Methodist Church 611 E. Golf Road.

World day of prayer is sponsored by the Church Women United and will be celebrated in 25,000 communities in the United States.

On Dean's List At Iowa State

Five area students have been named to the fall quarter dean's list at Iowa State University at Ames.

They include Jean E. Milburn of 742 S. Beverly Lane, Arlington Heights, an applied art-interior design major; David J. Schimpf, a botany major of 416 W. Fairview St., Arlington Heights; and Brian E. Campbell of 270 Ida Road, Hoffman Estates, an electrical engineering major.

Also, Melinda S. Breit, an elementary education major, of 2035 Frost, Palatine; and David S. Derezotes of 2405 Meadow Drive, Rolling Meadows, Majoring in aerospace engineering.

Township Democrats Seek Chief

John F. Morrissey

Democratic Party politics in the heavily Republican Northwest Suburbs generally don't attract a great deal of attention.

In most races, when they're matched against Republicans, the Democratic candidates are considered underdogs and their record of success is not one most Democrats point to with pride.

But every four years there is one race in which a Democrat is assured victory — the battle for the township committeeman's post, a four-year job as head of the party in a local township.

The committeeman not only directs the activities of his party on the local level, but also becomes a member of the Cook County Democratic Central Committee and plays a large role in the slating of candidates for district and county races.

In Schaumburg Township, Democratic Committeeman John F. Morrissey is being challenged in the March 17 election by Charles De Paul. Morrisey, who was appointed to the post last year following the resignation of Ed Degan, was an unsuccessful candidate for state representative in 1968 and also ran unsuccessfully for mayor of Hoffman Estates in 1969.

DePaul also was a candidate for mayor in 1969, but his name was removed from the ballot after a challenge by Morrissey and his party.

The Herald submitted a series of questions to both candidates, and their responses to most of the questions are printed here.

Herald coverage of the committeeman's race is directed by State Editor Ed Murnane.

Charles DePaul

Morrissey: Party's Suburb 'Image' Lagging

The Democratic Party in the suburbs must improve its image if it hopes to convert Republican voters, said Schaumburg Township Democratic Committeeman John F. Morrissey who is seeking election March 17 to a four year term in the office

"I hate to use the word image because it has a phony, public relations kind of ring," Morrissey told the Herald "But we have to improve the image of the Democratic Party in the suburbs I don't know why we must find this necessary since most of the progressive political thought has emanated from the Democratic Party

"Too many people in this area equate the Democratic Party with machine politics and the Republican Party with the more substantial citizen' type of politics," Morrissey said 'There is an awful lot of phoniness in that kind of situation. For example, Governor Ogilvie is deeply committed to building his own political machine Nevertheless, we have to disencumber ourselves from any aura of subservience to anything other than the public good"

MORRISSEY, WHO was appointed committeeman last year, was a Democratic candidate for state representative from the Third District in 1968.

He has been endorsed by the Regular Democratic Organization in Schaumburg Township and also by the Better Government Association

Morrissey and his opponent, Charles DePaul, were asked a series of questions by the Herald concerning their views and suggestions on the future of the Democratic Party in the suburbs and in Schaumburg Township in particular

—On patronage workers and the need for them to build the local Democratic organization

"I do not think we should 'rely' on patronage at all. Patronage, as we have known it in the past, will probably be virtually eliminated in the future, although it may not die easily. It has been a part of the system in both major parties for a long time

"ALTHOUGH PATRONAGE is still a strong tool within the competitive framework of the parties, I believe political parties should seek their strength principally through philosophic postures and devotion to causes that each perceives as best for the common good.

"Whether more patronage workers would further our success, I cannot be sure. Perhaps in the present patronage system of both parties, it would help to a limited extent But I do not think more patronage is the ultimate answer. Patronage is just not very meaningful in our area, and I have no quarrel with the fact that it isn't."

—On building membership within the party

"We have been struggling with an answer to this question for some time — I'm not sure that there is a clear answer. But I'm sure that we have to dissuade more people from the notion that organized politics must be a dirty game or a part of an underground profit system We have to project something more and better than a picture of 'political hacks'

"POLITICS IS married to government Politics must be wholesome if we expect government to be wholesome To that end more good people have to become committed to politics. It is that need for commitment that we have to communicate if we are to build our membership"

—Is it conceivable that the Democratic Party in Schaumburg will ever be on an even footing with the Republicans? When?

"It is certainly conceivable I think a growing disillusionment with the Republican Party and an enlightened approach by the Democrats will produce the result. I do not want to speculate on when . . but our township hasn't as far to go as some other surrounding townships"

—HOW MANY MEMBERS in your organization have a voice in the endorsement and selection of candidates, and how many should have a voice?

"The committeeman often has the only voice in selection of candidates running in areas larger than a single township. This leaves a lot to be desired in terms of the democratic process. But in theory it is much like other examples of representative government — he is supposed to speak for his township organization. There are certain practical and legal limitations as to how much this method can be changed.

"But improvement could be made by at least giving membership an opportunity to be informed of possible candidates so that they might communicate their appraisals of potential candidates to their committeeman This would include, where practicable the appearance of potential candidates before the organization prior to endorsement"

—WHAT ROLE SHOULD the mayor of Chicago play in selecting of candidates for Third State District offices or for the 13th Congressional District?

"The Mayor of Chicago in that capacity does not have any connection with the selection of such candidates. However, Mayor Daley is also the committeeman of his ward As a committeeman he is by law a member of the Cook County Central Committee of the Democratic Party as are the other ward and township committeemen of the county Some years ago Mayor Daley was first chosen as the chairman of the Cook County Central Committee He is still the chairman and chosen leader of the Central Committee

"THIS ORGANIZATIONAL structure is prescribed by our laws. The entire Central Committee acts by ratification on all such candidate selections, although the actual screening and recommendations are made by subcommittees The Republican Party acts under the same basic structure, with Edmund Kucharski, a Chicagoan and political lieutenant of Gov Ogilvie, as its chairman"

—Should the Democratic Party run candidates in local village elections? Why or why not?

"In the past I have been critical of the involvement of the major parties in small, local elections. However, the Republican Party has become involved to the extent that it controls most of the local government in this area. Therefore, the question of major party involvement has become somewhat moot In order to furnish some hope of checks and balances, I think we may have to run Democratic slates in village elections"

—IS THERE A DIFFERENCE between the suburban Democrat and the suburban Republican? What is it and why?

"I'm afraid that there is essentially too little difference In other words, the difference is quite often more formal than substantive Many are Democrats or Republicans for reasons extraneous to political philosophies But if we are to make partial distinctions, I believe suburban Republicans are more concerned with being in the mainstream and identifying with the fashion of their community

"Many of them seem to think it is a badge of honor to be a member of the so-called silent majority And partially, when we can get away from the emotional, traditional or extraneous aspects of things, liberal thought is still much more prevalent among Democrats I cannot, however, make one broad, prevailing distinction"

—What is your first goal as committeeman during the next four years?

"To help orient the Democratic Party of Schaumburg Township to issues, political philosophies and service To help make it something more than a minor source of social life on the one hand, and more than a political robot on the other"

A Better 'Selling Job' Needed, DePaul Believes

If the Democratic Party hopes to convert Republicans to its way of thinking, it must begin to offer superior candidates and it must embark on a program of public information regarding its candidates, ideals and goals.

That's the opinion of Charles DePaul of Hoffman Estates, who is seeking election as Democratic committeeman of Schaumburg Township in the March 17 election.

DePaul is challenging incumbent Committeeman John F Morrissey, who was appointed to the post last year

His views on conversion of Republicans were offered in response to questions asked by the Herald of him and Morrissey.

— ON PATRONAGE WORKERS and the need for them to build the local Democratic organization

"Patronage in politics promotes an unhealthy situation and should be discouraged on all levels. It enables a man who is otherwise unfit and unqualified to occupy a position which might be better filled by a more suitable candidate It has been an acceptable practice in the past, for both national parties, to rely heavily on patronage workers However, I do not believe this to be a fair and judicious pursuit and will do my best to eliminate it insofar as the office of committeeman is concerned.

"The bestowal of favors and appointments merely on the basis of work performed for the Party, without regard to a man's qualifications, is a procedure which I have always found objectionable I believe it to be undermining and corrupting. In order to adhere to the principles upon which the Democratic Party was founded, true representation can only be achieved by appointment of capable men of integrity who are best qualified for the job disregarding patronage altogether"

—On building membership within the party.

"The precinct captain is the heartline to the people of a community — he is in direct contact with the opinions and desires of the people — the cornerstone upon which our party structure stands As a house is built, brick by brick, the organization must be built, precinct by precinct. In order to do this, the precinct captain must be well informed and knowledgeable about the functions of our government: local, county, state and federal. Toward this end, it is my intention to offer training at regular informative sessions to both precinct captains and block workers"

— IS IT CONCEIVABLE that the Democratic Party in Schaumburg will ever be on an even footing with the Republicans? When?

"It is not only conceivable that the Democratic Party will be on an even footing with the Republican Party, but I am highly optimistic that with good leadership, the Democratic Party can make great strides in this community and develop sufficient strength to totally eclipse the Republican Party The fact that our organization has been ineffectual in this township in the past can be directly attributable to pusillanimous leadership

"I regret to say that I believe the Democratic organization is a decade behind the Republican Party in development in this township. With diligent effort and an intelligently planned program, however, it is possible to achieve equal footing with the Republican Party within approximately five years

— How many members in your organization have a voice in the endorsement and selection of candidates, and how many should have a voice?

"At present, only the committeeman and a few of his close associates have anything to say about the endorsement of a candidate. I advocate that all precinct captains have a voice in the selection of a candidate. It is they who are in direct contact with the people and can best choose the man who will represent the wishes of the people."

— WHAT ROLE SHOULD the mayor of Chicago play in selecting candidates for Third State District offices or for the 13th Congressional District?

"It is my opinion that the mayor of Chicago should exercise the same authority as that invested in each of the committeemen in selection of a candidate — one vote

"As head of the Cook County Central Committee, the mayor of Chicago should be more receptive to the problems of a township A lack of communication in this area has led to neglect of large suburban populations. It should be the obligation of the Cook County Central Committee to assist the township committeemen whenever possible in their efforts toward building a good organization in the suburbs.

— Should the Democratic Party run candidates in local village elections? Why or why not?

"National party politics have a way of infiltrating local government under different labels. Therefore, while in the past I have been strongly antagonistic to national politics entering local elections, the fact is that this condition already exists. It would seem that I have been attempting to lock the barn door after the horse has gone. So, why not give the voters a choice between the two parties and enter the Democratic Party as well?"

— IS THERE A difference between the suburban Democrat and the suburban Republican? What is it and why?

"Because of good leadership, the suburban Republican manifests an active interest in organization functions. While the suburban Democrat exhibits a slack attitude toward Party participation, the responsibility for this lies with deficient leadership and a lack of long-range planning."

— What is your first goal as committeeman during the next four years?

"It is my opinion that lack of communication is a definite stumbling block in our Democratic organization at present. My first goal as committeeman will be to establish a definite training program for all precinct captains and block workers, in order to insure well-informed representatives of the Democratic Party who will be well qualified to communicate the goals of our party to the people of their precinct.

"I will also endeavor to establish communication between all suburban Democratic Township Committeemen at regular intervals to discuss related problems.

"ALSO, BETTER communication with the Cook County Central Committee is indicated to advise them of our township needs and problems as they arise. Regular attendance and participation in their meetings is obligatory as committeeman.

"Another 'first': While Con-Con is in session, I would like to see a new and more equitable tax applied for multiple dwellings. This may be accomplished by assessing each individual apartment instead of the present assessed valuation on the entire building."

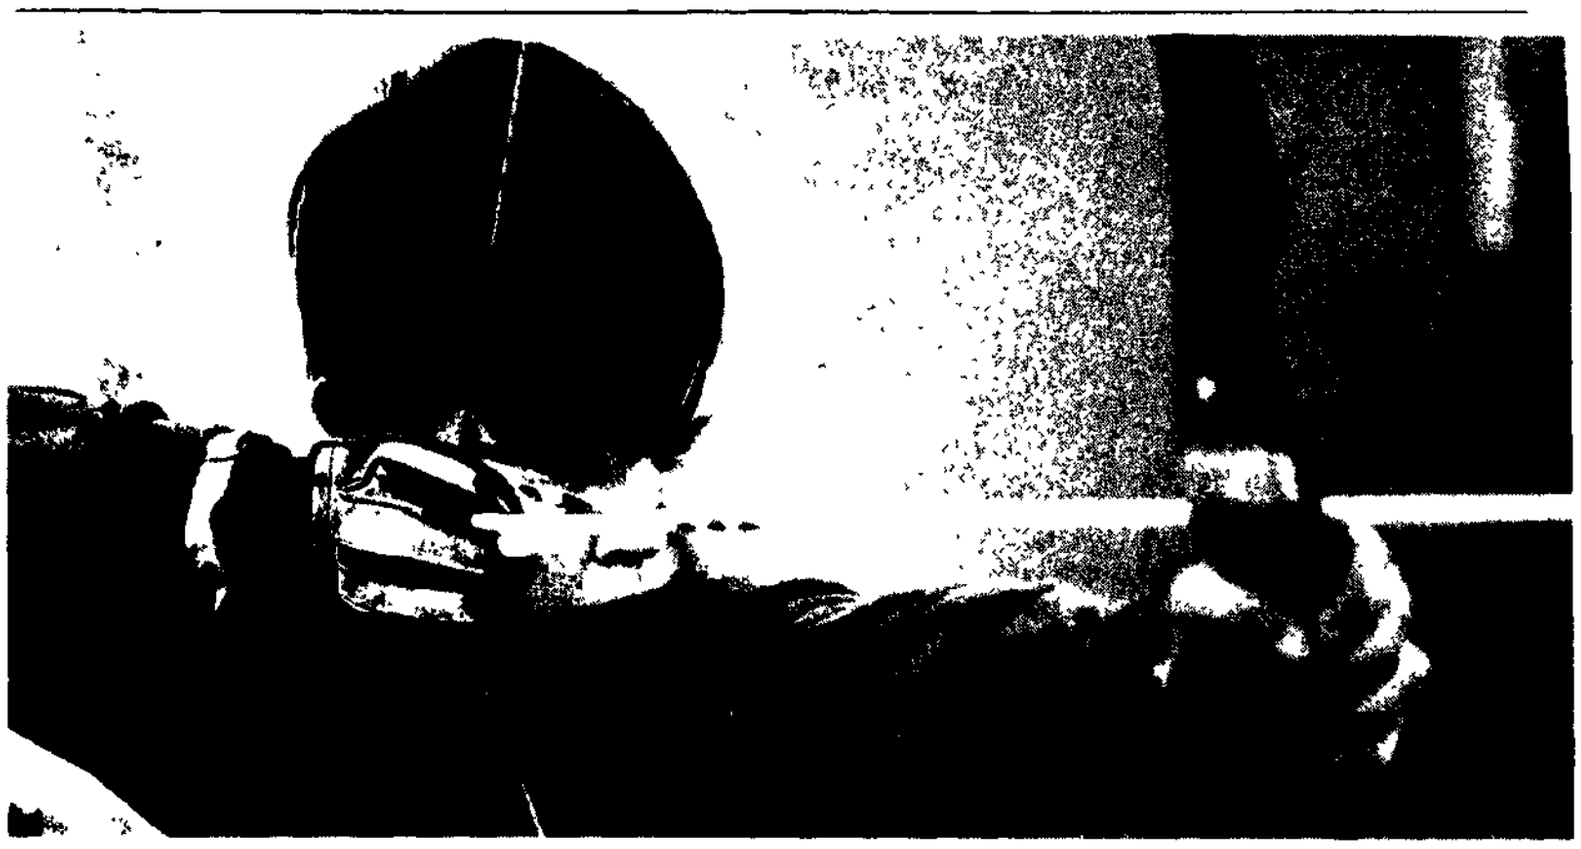
Golden To Leave April 1



A PINT-SIZED William Tell. Archery classes are now underway at the Heritage Park fieldhouse in Wheeling. Young Dan Lanter of Wheeling takes aim and prepares to shoot at the target. Participants in the program meet each Tuesday afternoon at the fieldhouse on Wolf Road in the village for the classes. The classes are sponsored by the Wheeling Park District as part of its winter program of activities.

Matthew Golden will leave his job as Wheeling village manager April 1.

Golden sat calmly behind his desk in the new municipal building yesterday morning and explained that he was quitting for professional and family reasons.

"There isn't any intense pressure from the village board, although our relationship hasn't been the same as it was before the 'crisis' a month ago. From a personal and professional point of view I want to live in the western part of the country. The California local government system is one that is geared to making a manager system of government more effective. There's a clear separation of powers between the board and the manager. My family doesn't particularly want to live in Illinois and it isn't worth it to me professionally to have to fight to make the manager system work here," Golden explained.

GOLDEN SAID he had spent six years in San Francisco and that he liked California because it is "more progressive" "There, local government is completely nonpartisan and candidates at the local level run on issues. It's more conducive to a manager system"

Village manager in Wheeling since Sept. 2, Golden explained that he had notified village employes of his departure yesterday morning in a memo. The manager said that village board members have known he was leaving since an executive session during a village board meeting two weeks ago. Board members spent approximately two hours in that executive session.

Golden said he had "begun to establish a working relationship with some of the board members again" after an incident a month ago when he had submitted the resignation, but the village board refused to accept it by a narrow vote.

AT THAT TIME Golden said he "would like to stay in the village" if problems with the village board could be resolved.

Yesterday, however, he said that his personal and professional reasons for resigning overrode the progress that had been made to date

Golden said he did not have a specific job lined up in California, but that he would probably go back into consulting for local governments rather than take another city manager's post immediately.

He said his biggest regret was that he had to give up what he termed his "commitment" to the village employes.

In the memo all employes received yesterday Golden thanked them for their "tremendous cooperation" and congratulated the employes for progress made because of their "hard work and commitment to the village manger system and myself as manager"

MATTHEW GOLDEN

Golden's announcement of his intention to leave the village came five weeks after the confrontation between the manager and the village board.

GOLDEN OFFERED his resignation in January because "the majority of the board of trustees has expressed severe doubts as to my continued usefulness as village manager."

He attributed the board's lack of confidence to a dispute over personnel policy" wherein several board members have insisted that I retain a particular individual for the position of building inspector" By ordinance, the village manager has the power to hire and fire all employes.

Another factor in the January resignation was concern by four village trustees about a speech Golden had made earlier at a Wheeling Jaycee Prayer Breakfast.

In his speech Golden talked of his experiences in Jordan during the "six day war" in June, 1967. He described himself as "pro-Arab" Reaction to the speech included a request for a second prayer breakfast with a pro-Isreali speaker, and public concern expressed by four local Jewish organizations

Golden said yesterday that the speech reactions had nothing to do with his leaving the village in April

Happening To Provide Grants

"It's happening again this year."

For the third consecutive year, local residents are getting out the grease paint and colorful costumes for the Community Scholarship Foundation variety show.

This year the show is "It Happens Every Year." It will premiere March 20 and 21 in the Wheeling High School Little Theatre.

In addition to providing a lot of fun to the participants, the show serves another, more important purpose

Proceeds from the sale of advertisements in the show's program book will provide scholarships to deserving Wheeling High School seniors who plan to attend college or trade school.

"WE'VE BEEN working really hard to improve this year's show. We hope to raise around $2,000 to provide ten $200 scholarships," explained Charles Mihalek, president of the scholarship foundation.

This year, for the first time, a number of Wheeling High School students will take part in the show.

Although WHS students have ushered and provided music for the acts in the show, they haven't actually performed in the show before.

This year, WHS student Marilyn Raedel, Illinois' Junior Miss, will be on the program. Musical excerpts from the show "Pajama Game," and a reading from the novel "Dandelion Wine," will also be performed by WHS students

"These kids are a real inspiration to me," Mihalek said. "It's just great to see them pitch in and help on a project which can be such a benefit to them"

In the past three years the foundation has awarded 31 scholarships to WHS graduates. Most of these have been one-year scholarships, although in a few cases the foundation has provided additional grants for a second year

"THE ORIGINAL concept was to help as many students as possible to further their education, so the grants have generally been small, about $200 to each person," Mihalek explained. "The idea was to help them get started in their first year of post-high school work."

Fifteen community residents serve on the foundation's board of directors. They come from a variety of backgrounds. Clergymen, housewives, businessmen and local police officers have served on the board.

"The only requirement we desire of our members is interest," Mihalek explained. "It isn't even necessary to have a student at the high school."

The initial impetus to start the organization, the only one of its kind in the state, came from the Wheeling Women's Club and local school officials.

IN 1967 the foundation awarded its first nine scholarships. The number jumped to 12 in 1968 and last year the organization awarded 10 scholarships.

The students have used the scholarship money to attend a variety of schools — Eastern Illinois University, Lutheran General Hospital School of Nursing, and Knox College, among others.

They are not limited in what they use the money for, as long as it is for college expenses. "Generally the money is used for tuition, but sometimes they use it for texts, equipment or other incidentals, whatever is necessary," Mihalek said.

"We like to feel we are making a valuable contribution to the community and to our students," he added. "I think it's being proven that we are."

Inspections Agency Asked

Formation of a new, all-encompassing village department of inspectional services has been recommended by Richard Decker, Buffalo Grove's village manager.

Decker said the new agency would be designed to handle all facts of inspections and enforcement of codes in connection with construction in Buffalo Grove.

In connection with the formation of the new department, the post of building commissioner would be abolished, Decker said. The fire prevention bureau would also become a part of the new inspections department.

THE VILLAGE board will consider the recommendation at its meeting Monday, and Decker is optimistic they will accept it: "The trustees have already been receptive to the idea." Decker has already hired a fire inspector who will eventually head the new department. He is William Dettmer, a former fire inspector from Palatine.

For the new department to be created, certain additional village ordinances would have to be passed. Decker estimated that once the village board gave the go-ahead to the idea, it would take as long as two months to set it up.

"In other municipalities each type of inspection agency is separate from the other, and this is a disadvantage"

To prove his point, Decker gave the following example: "It's possible that a building inspector might see a violation in a building under construction that might fall under the fire inspector's jurisdiction. Under the present system he would have to call the department in whose jurisdiction that violation fell. Under the new system, with one department, the building inspector could handle the violation himself."

DECKER SAID ANOTHER purpose of the new department would be to "eliminate violations before they occur." Currently only the building inspector make inspections before a structure is completed, Decker said. Fire and health inspectors check the building after it is finished.

Decker said that until the new department is created, however, Dettmer will serve as a fire inspector. "We will create the department and build it as finances permit."

Dedicate Municipal Building Tomorrow

Wheeling residents dedicated their new municipal building last December. Tomorrow they'll have a chance to view the dedication of Buffalo Grove's new municipal building at 2 p.m

Following the dedication, an open house will be held until 4 p.m. The building is located on Raupp Boulevard just south of Lake-Cook Road.

The new building was completed in December. Tomorrow's dedication marks the culmination of plans for a new Buffalo Grove village hall that were laid, originally, in 1965.

The go-ahead for construction of the new building came in June 1968 when voters approved issuance of bonds totalling $225,000 for the new building's construction.

First Store In Mall To Open

The first of the stores in the new Buffalo Grove Mall on Dundee Road at Arlington Heights Road opens today.

The new Scott's Family Department Store will open its doors at 9 a.m. this morning. The Scotts Stores chain is a division of the T G & Y Store Co., a major variety store chain with headquarters in Oklahoma City.

R. E. Hicks, district manager, said, "The 15,000-square-foot store is stocked with the most complete assortment of variety merchandise to be found anywhere."

The store's hours are 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. on weekdays, 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturdays, and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Sundays.

Manager of the new store is Dennis Sheble, formerly manager of the Scott Store in Iowa City. Assistant manager is Max Bell.

"Our new unit in Buffalo Grove is part of the growth of the village," Sheble said. "We are proud of this new store and we are proud to be part of a growing community. This is our 12th unit in the Chicago area."

They'll Find It Hard to Handle

At a Buffalo Grove village board meeting this week, a resident from the village's Cambridge subdivision tried to explain the effect of a proposed six-story condominium building next to single-family houses this way:

"Having these buildings next to our homes would be like when Mickey Rooney married Ava Gardner!"

'Where Will We Find Manager?'

by ANNE SLAVICEK

"Will we ever get another village manager?"

That's the question that is on the tongue of many Wheeling residents as they learn of Matthew Golden's intent to leave the post in April.

In two years Wheeling has employed as many village managers. In January, 1969, the village's first manager, C. E. Olson resigned after 11 months in the job.

And now, little more than a year later, Golden has resigned after six months as the village's manager.

THE VILLAGE board members are committed to continuing the manager system and hiring another manager by their public support of the manager system. But will another manager want to come to work in Wheeling?

Some of the trustees are pessimistic, but Golden himself says the outlook is not so dim

"I've heard many comments in the village about the two managers in two years. The people of Wheeling shouldn't be too dismayed by that fact, however," Golden said.

"Wheeling is typical of a village emerging from a long political tradition. That kind usually has many managers before it gets accustomed to the system," he said.

TRUSTEE Peter Egan tended to agree with Golden. "The village shouldn't have any problem getting another manager," he told the Herald yesterday.

Trustee Ira Bird was not so hopeful, however. "I just don't know. There's no question that this (Golden's resignation) will create problems. The extent of the problems and how difficult it will be is hard to say," Bird noted.

Village Press Ted Scanlon said the village will seek another manager "probably after the referendum in April" Scanlon said he didn't know what effect Golden's resignation would have on village efforts to get a third manager.

Golden hinged his optimism for a new manager on the outcome of the April 21 referendum for a permanent village manager form of government.

"IN SOME WAYS I've proven that a manager can be an effective means of government. If the people get out to vote yes on the referendum, in time, as the people and the political leaders get used to the system it will work out.

"If voters turn down the referendum it will eba huge step backwards and the village will have a hard time hiring another manager," he said.

"Being the first manager in a village is always a difficult assignment. First managers rarely last more than a year. The fact that Wheeling's first manager lasted 13 months is a credit to the village. It's not awfully shocking either that I resigned," Golden said. "I have rather strong principles on how a manager system should operate. Maybe Wheeling and I aren't just compatible at this time," he explained.

"If the people pass the referendum the next manager should be able to stay for at least two years. If the referendum fails the village will have real problems if they can't get a manager to work on a day-to-day basis because of the tremendous growth expected in the next six years."

Egan said he was hoepful that the referendum will pass. He said that as long as Golden was contemplating leaving "he should do it before the referendum. It wouldn't be right to stay until the referendum passes and then leave."

Bird said he didn't think Golden's resignation would have much effect on the referendum. "The people realize that the manager system is the best one and if we're going to have it we should have it by state law," Bird said.

Connery Seeks Dist. 214 Post

An Arlington Heights resident with 22 years experience in the Chicago school system will soon file petitions for candidacy for the Dist. 214 school board.

Joseph J. Connery, 3030 N. Gibbons, said yesterday he will file petitions soon at the Dist 214 offices and establish his candidacy for one of three seats open on the local high school board of education.

Connery, a resident of the village since 1956, is presently the principal of Steinmetz high school on Chicago's northwest side. He holds a doctorate degree in education and has held numerous posts in the Chicago school system.

From 1948-1962 Connery was a teacher in the Chicago public schools. He was awarded his masters degree in education from Loyola University in 1962 and in the same year was named assistant director of the Bureau of School Plant Planning and Population Surveys and was involved in the planning of a $50 million building program.

CONNERY HELD THAT position until 1965 when he was named the first principal of the Hess Upper Grade Center in Lawndale. the school had an enrollment of 2,800 students.

In 1960 Connery was named principal of Harlan High School, a post he served in until 1965 when he was appointed principal of Steinmetz.

In addition Connery served as principal of three summer school programs and vocational evening school programs.

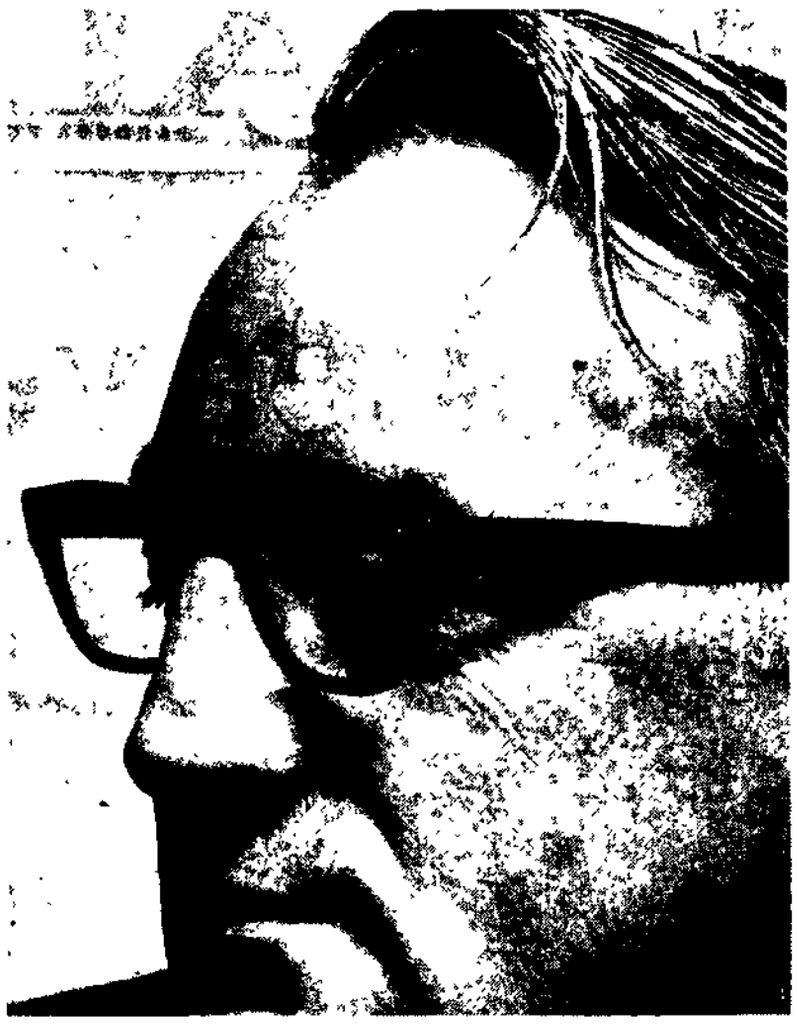
Pointing to his years of experience with the Chicago school system, Connery feels he can bring an educator's professional expertise to the Dist. 214 board.

"I HAVE WORKED in many phases of education," he said, "and I think I can bring a real understanding of the problems of high schools to the board."

Connery identifies those problems as personnel matters, financing, and the particular needs of special education programs. He also feels he will bring practical knowledge of the schools to the board, although he emphasized he does not believe school board members should undermine the administrative powers of the district's professional staff.

Asked about the issue of smoking at Prospect High and other Dist. 214 schools, Connery's answer was short: "I don't allow smoking at Steinmetz high school," he said.

The candidate and his wife, Patricia, have seven children. Their oldest daughter, Carol, is a student at Marquette University. She is a graduate of Prospect High and three other Connery children are presently students there. Three other children are still in elementary school.



JOE CONNERY, a man with 22 years experience in the Chicago school system has announced his intention to file petitions for candidacy for the Dist. 214 school board. Connery, an Arlington Heights resident, is presently principal of Chicago's Steinmetz high school.

Dog Story Ends Happily

The story of Pooch, the dog that was living in a clump of trees near Harper College since November, has a happy ending.

The dog, whose name is Boots, was picked up Wednesday after a neighbor of the owners, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Arendt of 282 W. Kenilworth, saw the story of Boots in the Herald.

Boots had been living in the trees about 400 feet west of the Roselle-Algonquin road intersection on the north side of Algonquin Road.

Miss Karolyn Bonin said yesterday she read the story describing Boots' plight and "knew right away" the dog was Boots.

THE DOG HAS run away once before, Miss Bonin said, but was found within a month.

"This time," she said, "we had no idea where he was."

Miss Bonin said she drove to the woods and spotted Boots lying down. The dog immediately recognized her, she said, and jumped into her car.

Boots was taken to a local vet who reported yesterday the dog seems to be doing fine. There are "five pounds of burrs" in his hair, however, the vet said.

The Arendts are vacationing in Florida and are expected back in Palatine sometime this weekend.

Several people attempted to catch Boots during his four month stay in the woods. None were successful. It took someone who Boots knew.

There will be at least one happy reunion in Palatine this weekend.

Forum Slated To Air Candidates' Opinions

Deciding how to vote in local elections can sometimes be a problem.

The Wheeling Women's Club is sponsoring a candidates' forum Tuesday night to help local residents get to know the candidates running in various upcoming races.

Candidates who have filed for the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 School Board, The Wheeling Public Library District Board, the High School Dist. 214 Board and the Harper Junior College Board have been invited to the forum by the Women's Club.

The forum will be held at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the library of Jack London Junior High School, on Dundee Road in Wheeling.

All candidates who have filed by Tuesday are eligible to speak. Any candidates who filed after invitations were sent may contact club president Mrs. Julius Benjamin at 537-4345.

School Construction Will Begin Saturday

Construction of that long-awaited new school in School Dist. 96 will start Saturday.

Ground-breaking ceremonies for the as yet unnamed new school on Checker Drive and Essington Lane in Buffalo Grove will be held at 11 a.m.

Dist. 96 Supt. William Hitzeman, school board members, architect Donald Anderson and contractor W. F. Fitzsimmons will attend the ceremony. The public is also invited to attend.

THE 700-PUPIL school is scheduled for completion in December, 1970, or January, 1971. It will include 26 classrooms, a library, gymnasium and administrative offices.

The school, the second for Dist. 96, is being built with funds from the Illinois School Building Commission. Approval to construct the school was granted by Dist. 96 voters last September.

Ever go to school on Sunday?

Last Sunday children at three local Catholic schools — St. Mary's, in Buffalo Grove; St. Joseph the Worker, in Wheeling; and St. Alphonsus, in Prospect Heights — did just that

The youngsters were taking part in the unusual Sunday sessions as part of a statewide campaign by the Illinois Catholic Conference (ICC) for some form of state aid to non-public schools.

Village officials, legislators and residents flooded the halls of the three schools Sunday afternoon to watch parochial school education in action.

CATHOLIC EDUCATORS throughout the state are worried.

And they have ample reason to be.

Declining enrollments, a decrease in teaching sisters and priests and correspondingly higher operating costs and tuition have hit Catholic schools hard in recent years.

What lies ahead? Parochial school educators fear many of these schools may be forced to close their doors in the not-too-distant future unless state aid is made available.

The issue is a complicated one, and an emotional one too. Some individuals fear state aid will mean state control of the nonpublic schools. Some say the state has no obligation to provide for both public and private school students. Some feel that private schools do not teach what is in the best interests of the state, while others cry that there are still many unmet needs in Illinois' public schools.

PROPONENTS HOLD fast to the philosophy that the state does have the obligation to help educate all its school children. They add that the public system could not handle the large influx of nonpublic students which would result if the parochial schools closed their doors for good.

No matter what side one takes in this heated controversy, the ICC decision to hold Sunday sessions last weekend was a good one.

Public schools — with their schoolboard meetings, referendums - and so forth, traditionally receive much more attention than their non-public sisters.

Nonpublic schools often get lost in the shuffle. Yet these schools are educating one of every five school children in the state.

SOME NOT FAMILIAR with parochial schools may have the notion that these schools are concerned only with discipline and teaching religion, that equipment and texts are out-of-date, that classes are large and unwieldy.

In this area, at least, these assumptions simply don't hold up, a fact that was well-illustrated Sunday

Instruction through television and other audio-visual devices, small classes and modern equipment were evident.

Even if the state aid issue were not of paramount importance to Catholic educators now, the program Sunday would have been extremely useful in providing Catholics and non-Catholics alike with a glimpse into a too often little known and little understood type of education.

Iowa Band To Perform

The Symphony Band of Iowa State University will perform Monday in the Wheeling High School gymnasium. The concert will begin at 8 p.m. Tickets will be available at the door.

The performance will be the final one for the band during their current concert tour. The group has performed throughout the United States during their current tour, which began Feb. 27.

Plan 3 High-Rise Buildings

Architect's plans for high-rise apartments on he Arlington Park property now call for an initial construction of three 20-story buildings.

George Yarbenet, vice president of Transnation Development Corp. which owns and operates Arlington Park, met with the firm's architect yesterday. Yarbenet said that each apartment building will have 10 units per floor, with a grand total of 600 units in the complex. Construction cost is estimated at about $8 million for the apartments, described as medium to luxury in type.

The apartments will be located in Arlington Heights near Rohlwing Road where a golf driving range is presently in operation. The range will be discontinued when construction begins.

A $3 MILLION shopping center will be constructed on the southwest corner of Euclid Street and Wilke Road in Rolling Meadows. The Shell service station on the northwest corner will remain intact and the golf course, which lies between the station and the Arlington Park Towers hotel will stay "a long time," according to Yarbenet.

The shopping center is expected to house a department store, drug store, food market and small satellite stores. Transnation officials plan to appear before Arlington Heights and Rolling Meadows officials within the next two months.

Plans for the complex were unveiled at a press conference Wednesday by Philip J. Levin, Transnation board chairman. Levin said the race track operations would remain at Arlington Park and that while a domed sports arena was not feasible for 1970, he did not rule out the chances for an arena in the future.

Library Board Hires Consultant

The Schaumburg Township Library Board hired the bond consultant firm of Paul D. Speer & Associates, of Chicago, to assist with a $1.2 million building referendum planned in August at Wednesday's board meeting.

At the annual town meeting in Schaumburg Township April 14, the library directors intend to ask for authorization from township residents to hold the library referendum. If the referendum is passed, the library would then sell $1,200,000 in bonds to finance a 44,000 square-foot library building.

Three bids from bond companies were considered by the library board Wednesday, but Speer & Associates was selected because there will be no charge if the referendum fails. If the referendum is approved, the fee charged by Speer & Associates is $4,000

THE FIRM of Speer and Associates previously assisted with a referendum for the Glenview Public Library, according to Michael Madden, Schaumburg Township Librarian

The bond firm of Associated Municipal Consultants, Elgin, submitted a bid of $3,200 for services, but their fee if the referendum failed was $1,500. Benjamin and Lang, of Chicago, submitted bids of $4,200 and $500, (if the referendum fails.)

According to the library attorney, John Jurgensmeyer, the library cannot presently pay more than 6 per cent interest on any bonds sold as a result of a referendum.

Passage of the $1,200,000 library referendum next August would mean an additional tax of about $8 per year for the average homeowner, Madden said.

ARCHITECT'S blueprints for a master library plan are currently being prepared by the firm of O'Donnell, Wicklund, and Pigozzi, of Evanston. This firm will also prepare blueprints for expanding the township library in stages.

The library board is preparing two budgets for the coming year. One will include building expenses, and one will only cover operating expenses. The present library levy is $12 a year.

Madden said the circulation of books at the Schaumburg Township Library is now as large as that of the Elgin Public Library, which has 78,000 square feet of floor space. The township library now as 9,000 square feet. Circulation increased 50 per cent in 1969 over the previous year, Madden said.

A SURVEY of library patrons indicated that 88 per cent would use the library if it were open Sunday afternoon from 1 to 5 p.m., while 12 per cent would not.

Among the patrons surveyed only 25 per cent were in favor of the library being open from 8 to 10 a.m. Monday through Friday. The library now opens at 10 a.m.

Fifty-seven per cent of the patrons polled said they would use the library if it were open in the late evening from 9 to 11 p.m., while 43 per cent would not

Women To Gather For Prayer Day

Schaumburg Township women will gather at Our Saviour's United Methodist Church, 611 East Golf Goad, Hoffman Estates, today at 1 p.m. to observe World Day of Prayer.

World Day of Prayer is sponsored by Church Women United and will be celebrated in 25,000 communities in the United States. Women will join millions in prayer throughout the world in 75 languages and 1,000 dialects.

The prayers will be asking for courage to act responsibly during the coming year.

Our Saviour's program will include a message from Michael Roschke, vicar of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Mount Prospect, and student at Concordia Theological Seminary, St. Louis.

Nursery service will be provided and a get acquainted coffee will follow the program. Women from Hoffman Estates, Schaumburg, Hanover Park and Elk Grove Village will participate in the program

Open School Bids Soon

Bids for the construction of two new elementary schools will be opened by the Board of Education of Elgin School District U46 March 19 and 26, 2 p.m., in the Instructional Materials Center, 389 E. Chicago St., Elgin.

March 19, bids will be opened pertaining to heating, ventilation, temperature control, plumbing and electrical work.

Bids for general contract work will be opened March 26.

The two schools, designed by Schmidtke and Layer, Elgin, will be located in Elgin's Century Oaks subdivision and in Hanover Park at the west end of Laurel Avenue along Center street.

District U46 anticipates letting contracts for the construction of two more elementary schools this summer.

All four schools were approved by voters in the December 1968 school bond referendum.

Observe World Day of Prayer

Mrs. William Glab of the Lutheran Church of the Holy Spirit will represent Elk Grove Village today at 1 p.m. at a world day of prayer observance in Hoffman Estates

The observance is a joint service by several area churches at our Saviour's United Methodist Church 611 E. Golf Road.

World day of prayer is sponsored by the Church Women United and will be celebrated in 25,000 communities in the United States.

The Race for Township Democrat Committeeman

Wheeling Township, where the Republicans far outnumber the Democrats and consistently win at the polls on election day, has focused its eyes on two Democrats this spring who are competing in the only local election on March 17.

The two are James L. McCabe and Herman Koeneman, and the prize they are seeking is the position of Democratic committeeman in the township.

McCabe currently holds the job, being appointed in 1967 following the resignation of James Stavros.

In 1966, McCabe was the Democratic candidate for Congress in the 13th Congressional District, and in 1968 he served as an alternate delegate for the district at the Democratic National Convention.

Koeneman has been at odds with the party forseveral years and was one of the organizers of the Independent Democrats, a splinter group formed in opposition to Stavros.

The winner of the March 17 race will get a four-year job as head of the party in the township, as well as a spot on the Democratic Central Committee of Cook County.

The Herald submitted a series of questions to both candidates and their responses are printed here.

Herald coverage of the committeeman's race is directed by State Editor Ed Murnane.

McCabe: Party Needs Better Job of 'Selling'

The best way for the Democratic Party in the suburbs to convert Republicans is by presenting exceptionally well qualified and attractive candidates and programs, according to Wheeling Township Democratic Committeeman James L. McCabe.

McCabe, who is seeking a four year term as committeeman on March 17, believes the party has begun to take steps in this direction in 1966 and 1968 by slating candidates such as Adlai E. Stevenson III and Edward V. Hanrahan.

Appointed in late 1967, McCabe is being challenged in the election by Herman Koeneman.

McCabe was the Democratic candidate for congressman against Donald Rumsfeld in 1966 and he was an alternate delegate from the 13th District at the 1968 Democratic National Convention.

James L. McCabe

He and Koeneman were asked the same questions by the Herald.

—TO WHAT EXTENT should the organization rely on patronage workers and do you think your organization needs more patronage workers to help it succeed?

"The Democratic Organization, particularly in the suburban areas, cannot rely too heavily on patronage positions since the system does not usually fit the needs of the suburban area. Our organization is primarily made up of volunteers who have no interest in patronage positions since they are more than satisfactorily employed in private employment.

"However, we are very happy to state that we do have people who work in patronage positions who are not only dedicated to the democratic party but are equally dedicated to the work of their positions of employment.

"I feel that our organization needs more workers - be they patronage or non patronage. We are in a Township that has grown substantially and we are continually exerting our efforts to keep the growth of our organization at a pace with the Township growth."

—How can your organization best build its membership?

"Since I became committeeman in November, 1967, I have stressed that our organization membership is open to any and all citizens who are interested in government and primarily in the affairs, policies and improvement of the Democratic party.

"UNDER THESE PROGRAMS we have added 40 new Precinct Captains. We have also increased the membership of our women's organization and we have created a Young Democratic Club. We are now in the process of forming a Teenage Democratic Club. It is my hope to continue these programs after the election on March 17.

—Is it conceivable that the Democratic Party in Wheeling township will ever be on an even footing with the Republican Party? When?

"It is quite conceivable that the Democratic Party can improve its position to create an effective 2-party system. I understand that we are presently a minority party in the Township, but I further understand that we are an integral part of the entire Party in the County and State and that our reduced minority on election days can strongly contribute to Democratic effectiveness.

"An example of this was the election of Edward Hanrahan in November 1968, and I believe another example will be the election of Adlai Stevenson in November, 1970

"This effective two party system can be created in the forseeable future if the Party continues to present qualified and attractive candidates and continues to open the affairs of the Party to all interested citizens."

—HOW MANY MEMBERS in your organization have a voice in the endorsement and selection of candidates, and how many should have a voice?

"As committeeman I am commissioned to represent my organization on slate making boards and as such have cast the vote of our organization in the endorsement and selection of candidates. When time permits we have discussed candidates before their selection.

"This occurred at our organization meetings prior to the Presidential convention in 1968 and prior to the selection of the gubernatorial candidate in the 1968 election.

"At our last meeting we discussed the congressional and committeeman primary which will be held on March 17, and our organization, after discussion, unanimously endorsed Edward Warman for Congress.

What role should the mayor of Chicago play in selection of candidates for Third State District offices or for the 13th Congressional District?

"Frankly, the mayor of Chicago should have no role in the selection of candidates for the Third State District offices or for the 13th Congressional district. In fact, to my knowledge since I have been active, he has not exerted any pressure in the choice of these candidates. Since I have been involved in the selection of candidates either as a candidate myself or as a member of the slating committee I have never seen any of our local choices rejected and I would object if they were —Should the Democratic Party run candidates in local village elections? Why or why not?

"While I have been Committeeman each village has had a local election. Prior to the filing dates in these elections we met with the democratic captains in the particular area and participated in accordance with the majority feeling in that area.

"Generally I would say our members felt that these local village elections should remain non partisan, however, I feel that the Republican Party has demonstrated an increasing tendency to completely take over the local government and I therefore feel that in some of the future village elections we might very well consider running Democratic candidates as a Democratic Party."

—SHOULD THE Democratic Party run candidates in local township elections? Why or why not?

"In the 1969 Township election it was the decision of our organization, after a meeting of its members, to remain nonpartisan in this Township election. I frankly feel that in the future this position should be reversed since, if nothing else, we have a duty to the people of Wheeling Township to provide them with a choice in Township elections.

"I also feel that the people of Wheeling Township should be aware of the fact that the local Township government is employed as an avenue of patronage by the Republican Party. This occurs while the democratic Party is continually being criticized for its patronage practices."

—Is there a difference between the city Democrat and the suburban Democrat? What is it and why?

"The main difference between the city Democrat and the suburban Democrat is that the city Democrat would normally feel more comfortable voting in the Democratic Party because, in most areas of the city, he would be voting with the majority of his neighbors. However, I have found the suburban Democrat to be a dedicated person who continues to vote for his beliefs and the Party which presents them."

—IS THERE A difference beteen the suburban Democrat and the suburban Republican? What is it and why?

"There is a substantial difference between the suburban Democrat and Republican. The difference lies in principles and ideologies of the parties."

—What is your first goal as committeeman during the next four years?

"My role as committeeman during the next four years would be to continue in the development of programs which are directed toward the encouragement of further membership and participation in the democratic Party. I clearly believe that if the Democratic Party is to be successful in the suburbs it must attract people from all walks of life and philosophical backgrounds.

"I feel that we have been working toward this goal during the last 2½ years, during which time we have attracted 40 new precinct captains to the organization. Our work is only just starting and it is my hope to continue this development during the next four years. I also wish to maintain unity in the Democratic Party of Wheeling Township and am proud to say that there has not been one defection among the members of the organization in the consideration of my candidacy."

It's an Educating Process, Koeneman Thinks

The principles of democracy are best served by the precepts of the Democratic Party and Democrats in the suburbs will be able to convert Republicans to their side of the ballot when they begin proving that, said Herman Koeneman, candidate for Democratic committeeman of Wheeling Township.

Koeneman is challenging James L. McCabe for a four-year term in the office on March 17. McCabe was appointed to the post in 1967 following the resignation of James Stavros.

The Herald asked the same questions of both McCabe and Koeneman.

—HOW MUCH should an organization rely on patronage workers for its strength and does the Wheeling Democratic organization need more patronage workers to succeed?

"Not over 50 per cent. No organization can live without workers and people who enjoy the fruits of their work by being appointed to public jobs. But if an oragnization is going to be successful, it is my opinion that at least 50 per cent of those who work for the organization must be volunteer workers who are working because of their own political ideaologies and philosophies, and not because they intend to secure positions as a result of victories at election time.

"I definitely feel my organization needs more patronage to help it succeed. For many years local organizations, such as Wheeling Township, because of the fact that they are in a highly Republican area, have had a dearth of jobs, and of course, this does not make for good organization."

—How can the organization best build its membership?

"My organization can best build its membershi by somewhat more patronage and more money from the Cook County membership by somewhat more patronage Central Committee so that advertising campaigns can be carried on for people to join the organization - people who are dedicated to the principles of the Democratic Party."

IS IT CONCEIVABLE that the Democratic Party in this township will ever be on an even footing with the Republican Party? When?

"It is conceivable, but not likely, that the Democratic Party in this township will be on an even footing with the Republican Party. However, with the growth of the township, it also is conceivable that the Democratic Party could make a very respectable showing in this township, where the advantage to the Republicans would be only slight.

"I believe this can be done within the next five years because of the influx of Chicagoans into the suburbs. Many of those people were members of the Democratic Party before their removal to the suburbs.

"Our effort should be directed towards securing them in the democratic Party as soon as they move into the suburbs, rather than waiting and then finding them becoming members of the Independent Party or the Republican Party."

securing them in the Democratic Party as ization have a voice in the endorsement and selection of candidates, and how many should have a voice?

"It is my belief that every organization member — that is, every precinct captain and clerk and judges of each precinct — should have a vote or a voice in the endorsement and selection of candidates. This is the only way the Democratic organization will be built up in an area such as Wheeling Township, because these people represent the persons who belong to the Democratic Party in the Township."

—What role should the mayor of Chicago play in selecting of candidates for Third State District offices or for the 13th Congressional District?

"It is a fair assumption to say that Mayor Daley is not greatly endeared by the voters in the 13th Congressional District. Therefore, his role should be played down in selecting candidates for this area."

—SHOULD THE Democratic Party run candidates in local village elections?

"The Democratic Party should run candidates in the local Village elections. The party should support them completely from a financial basis, since it can be assumed they will be losers at the present time but, with each election, with the proper campaigning on the part of the Democratic candidates, and with nothing but the finest possible men selected for the various offices, it should result in the Democratic Party constantly making a better showing at the polls."

—Is there a difference between the city Democrat and the suburban Democrat? What is it and why?

"There is a great difference between a city Democrat and a suburban Democrat. First of all, the average city Democrat looks for some benefits from being a member of the Democratic Party - either for himself or his family. The suburban Democrat is usually a man of at least middle-class status whose average earnings are from perhaps $10,000 to $20,000 per year.

"The suburban Democrat is a Democrat because he believes in the ideologies and philosophy of the Democratic Party. Many of them, through their forefathers, relate back to the philosophy of Andrew Jackson and Thomas Jefferson.

"These are the people who are the backbone of the Democratic Party. Neither they nor members of their families seek political appointments or positions as a result of their loyalty to the party. And the only way the party can lose them is by showing a lack of loyalty towards them and the principles they stand for."

—IS THERE a difference between the suburban Democrat and the suburban Republican? What is it and why?

"There is naturally a difference between a suburban Democrat and a suburban Republican. But the difference here is the difference between beliefs in political thought and not of political jobs or position. Fundamentally, the difference between the two is the basic difference that existed from the beginning of our country and is the basic reason for a two-party system upon which our government is predicated.

"It is a difference to be admired and fostered and not decried or slandered. And it is a difference that can only be changed by showing to the suburban Republican that the Democratic philosophy of government is more worthwhile and that is on a national, state and local basis, than the platforms and theories of the Republican Party."

—WHAT IS your first goal as committeeman during the next four years?

"My first goal would be to insure the fact that the people of Wheeling Township would enjoy good government insofar as the Democratic Party is concerned under my direction. This would include the fact that men selected to run for local or county offices by my organization would be men well-qualified, and men against whom there could be no hint of scandal.

"Of equal importance, I would try to insure the fact that in addition to the foregoing, these men would represent the people and the country as an American and that their political philosphies would be those based upon the American ideal of government which was created by our forefathers and not some of the present precepts of government, which lead people to wonder what party, if any, the men represent, and what country, if any, the men represent."

HIGH PRIEST of the movie-makers, Paul Schreivogel, 928 Greenfield Court, Mount Prospect, is pleased that young people in the area are using the film medium to ex, themselves. "It's exciting because it's new," he explained. "It's the first new art form in the technological age . . . the first really new art form in the past 5,000 years."

Pollution Is Seen As 'Grave' Problem

by BETSY BROOKER

They may not be old enough to vote, but many teens today are more concerned about their country than their parents.

Last month a class of journalism students at Hersey High School in Arlington Heights published a special issue of their school newspaper that included no less than 11 articles on pollution.

At a seminar held yesterday, these same students discussed the pollution problem and suggested solutions.

The problem is especially relevant to them, the teens say, because they are the generation of the future.

"Our parents don't have to worry about this," said Brendan O'Connell, "But we are growing up, and we have been told our children won't live to reach high school. Our parents will probably be gone by then.

"I worry about having a baby that will have to grow up wearing a gas mask," said Diane Gardner. "The suburbs aren't going to stay the same. People are calling them the 'slurbs' now because the houses are made out of cardboard.

"BY 1985 THE city will be stretching from Chicago to Pittsburg," added Diane

These students were not always aware of the pollution problem. They said they didn't realize how serious the situation was until they had seen it featured recently in the media.

Concern over pollution is not just a fad though, they say. "It has just finally become grave enough for people to notice it," said Ted Moravec.

Now, the students want to share their concern with others, "before it is too late."

Changing attitudes is the first step to ending pollution, according to the students. But this change must be worked within the system through legislation, "the democratic way."

No one is "pro-pollution," but if they aren't against it, they are apathetic, said the students. "And it is fine to be concerned about pollution until alleviating it hits your pocketbook," pointed out Bill Stark.

"THE PSYCHOLOGY OF the United States is very capitalistic," said Brendan. "As long as you make money, nothing really matters. We have to change this psychology."

"We need a reversal of the American spirit," agreed Diane. "The spirit, in the past, has always been to go west after the environment is exploited. First it was the New World, then California and now the moon.

"The incentive wasn't given to the person who could find the best way of making peace, but to the person who could make more," added Diane.

How can attitudes be changed? The journalism students admit they are a minority even in their own school. But the minority is powerful enough according to Debbie Zukowki. "People who really care, like Ralph Nader, can do it within the system."

RADICAL TACTICS WILL only polarize people, Ted pointed out. "We have to work in the system," added Bill, "Because carrying signs only turns people off."

"But it is not good enough to just be concerned," said Andrea Demarest. "We also have to do something about it."

Changing legislation is the answer, said the students. "The discrepancy between technical advances and changes in government is a gap that gets wider and wider," Diane pointed out.

Ted suggested writing congressmen and Debbie added that the "social lawyer" can be very effective.

The most urgent solution is population control, according to the students. "It is ironic," said Debbie, "that we are so technically advanced, but we can't curb our population."

"FORCIBLE GOVERNMENT regulation of the family's size is pretty totalitarian," said Ted. "But the government can offer an incentive like a tax exemption."

On a more personal level, the students said they intend to educate people through their own influence. Some of them plan to continue with journalism and expose the problem in the media, others plan to teach, and others said they can be influential by just being a "concerned citizen."

Golden Resigns

Matthew Golden will leave his job as Wheeling village manager April 1.

Golden sat calmly behind his desk in the new municipal building yesterday morning and explained that he was quitting for professional and family reasons.

"There isn't any intense pressure from the village board, although our relationship hasn't been the same as it was before the 'crisis' a month ago. From a personal and professional point of view I want to live in the western part of the country. The California local government system is one that is geared to making a manager system of government more effective. There's a clear separation of powers between the board and the manager. My family doesn't particularly want to live in Illinois and it isn't worth it to me professionally to have to fight to make the manager system work here," Golden explained.

GOLDEN SAID he had spent six years in San Francisco and that he liked California because it is "more progressive." "There, local government is completely nonpartisan and candidates at the local level run on issues. It's more conducive to a manager system."

Village manager in Wheeling since Sept. 2, Golden explained that he had notified village employes of his departure yesterday morning in a memo. The manager said that village board members have known he was leaving since an executive session during a village board meeting two weeks ago. Board members spent approximately two hours in that executive session.

Golden said he had "begun to establish a working relationship with some of the board members again" after an incident a month ago when he had submitted the resignation, but the village board refused to accept it by a narrow vote.

AT THAT TIME Golden said he "would like to stay in the village" if problems with the village board could be resolved.

Yesterday, however, he said that his personal and professional reasons for resigning overrode the progress that had been made to date.

Golden said he did not have a specific job lined up in California, but that he would probably go back into consulting for local governments rather than take another city manager's post immediately.

He said his biggest regret was that he had to give up what he termed his "commitment" to the village employes.

In the memo all employes received yesterday Golden thanked them for their "tremendous cooperation" and congratulated the employes for progress made because of their "hard work and commitment to the village manger system and myself as manager."

Movie Makers' Story

by DAVE PALERMO

A handful of college and high school students in Mount Prospect have come upon a unique way of expressing their beliefs.

They aren't marching in the street, holding sit-ins or demonstrating in any way. In fact, few people are even aware of what they are doing.

They're making movies.

Youths using the visual medium for getting across ideas isn't new to the area. It's been going on for about five or six years.

What they do is take an 8 or 16 mm camera and a couple of amateur actors and go out and tell it like it is

Paul Schreivogel, 39, 928 Greenfield Court, Mount Prospect, is the "high priest" of the movie makers and lectures on the subject at Harper College.

He for one likes the idea that young people are using films as a medium to express their beliefs and values.

"THE KIDS ARE THERE but you don't see them," he explained. "They're participating in a creative process all their own.

"It's exciting because it's new. It's the first new art form in the technological age . . . the first new art form in the past 5,000 years."

Schreivogel, who said filmmaking began coming into its own as an art form in the late 1950s, believes that young people are using films as a revolt against a "literate society." A society that ineffectively uses words to express beliefs.

"The kids have been raised in a literate society . . . a society in which everything is written down," he explained. "Words are only fronts for ideas. Words themselves have no literary meaning.

"Kids see that these definitions are no longer valid, they see values differently."

WHAT THE YOUTHS are saying through their films is what they've been painting on protest posters, printing in underground newspapers, or generally what they've been thinking about in the last decade.

Cinematically, the films are well done — due partly to technological advances in cameras, the camera work is innovative as well as the quality of the acting and film.

But what's most important, Schreivogel contends, is not the technical quality of the films, but the creativeness of the students.

Dave Amling, 101 W. Memory Lane, Mount Prospect, is a sophomore at Columbia College in Chicago. He also has been making movies since he was a student at Prospect High School.

A FREQUENT VISITOR at the Schreivogel home, Amling ran off a film he made while he was a high school senior.

The film, titled "Scarborough Fair," was done in remarkably clear color and his use of camera angles and double-exposures was impressive.

Shot in a countryside, the film includes four characters, three men and a woman.

There was no sound except a musical recording by Simon and Garfunkel and the Jefferson Airplanes. But the idea Amling was trying to get across was unique. As Schreivogel mentioned, "there was more Dave Amling in that film than any other he's done."

What the young filmakers are doing is riding on a crest of a revolution in movies that can be seen at area theaters.

Instead of movies serving as a form of entertainment, the flicks are dealing with realism. Films like Easy Rider, The Graduate and Bonnie and Clyde, to name a few, are putting across messages.

SCHREIVOGEL CONTENDS that the time when people go to movies to see the stars is over. "The hell with John Wayne and Rock Hudson. People are waiting for Catch-22 to come out. They could give a damn who the stars are."

The transition of traditionally entertaining movies into an art form which may soon be equated with literature, drama and painting, is recognized by high schools throughout the country.

Area high schools which will be offering film study courses next fall include Arlington Heights, Elk Grove, Hersey, Forest View and Wheeling. Prospect High School will be offering a film study program as part of the art curriculum.

Jim Wicklund, head of the English department at Arlington Heights High School, is one of the men most responsible for bringing the art of films into the high school.

"Movies are becoming more and more serious and less entertaining," said Wicklund, a close friend of Schreivogel. "Visual communication is more often used than nonvisual communication."

BOTH WICKLUND and Schreivogel feel that films are better understood by the youths than the adults.

"Life is an instant drama and the youths communicate this in films," said Schreivogel. "The world is a kaleidoscope. There's no story line, no beginning or end, no high point or low point."

"The adults resented the Graduate, but the kids had a more valid view of the film," said Wicklund. "In Bonnie and Clyde the kids caught the metaphor."

The use of sex in films, both at the theaters and in underground films, is often misunderstood by the older generation agreed Wicklund and Schreivogel.

Wicklund told a story of a student-made film which included a scene consisting of a boy undressing a girl. The film was first shown to students and then a second time to a group of adults.

"The adults kept talking about the nude scene while the students didn't even mention the scene," he said.

"THE X RATED movies are supported by the adults," said Scheivogel. "Adults are hung up on sex, kids aren't."

The movie magazine SEE, commenting on the use of sex in youth-made movies, said "In film, especially in student film, there is a tendency for most films produced to concern themselves with nakedness — a physical and spiritual undressing . . . what is shown is not so much those who "people" the film as much as the pile of clothes those people discarded."

Wicklund maintained that the film study programs in school will not deal as much with making films as helping the students "develop a creative eye."

Schreivogel, comparing films with literature, said telling a student to make a film would be like "telling an English student to write a novel. They're two entirely different things," He said movies young people are making are too far advanced for public viewing; that television and motion picture shows are geared towards the masses, and that the majority of the public would not accept the films.

"You have to first raise the awareness level of the viewing audience. They might see truth and they don't want to see truth."

Poetry: Key to Youths' Ideals

A slim booklet of literary works produced by Prospect Heights Dist. 23 MacArthur Junior High School students last year reveals the fresh humor and idealism of these young writers.

One of the peices, written by Nancy Sheffield was entitled "An Elephant." It reads: "An elephant; can't step into a tub; sit in hot water; and; rub and scrub; But an elephant; always, smells sweet as a flower; you see; he has; a built-in shower."

Other students reflected a concern in tragedies they had probably read about in the news. Casey Frankiewicz wrote: 'I was a common miner; one of the finer; Working from sun-up to sun-set. I was married and we had a child; Who died at five; And I soon followed; In a cave-in in the mine."

FREEDOM IS a subject frequently discussed by many youths today. Students at MacArthur show several different sides to this subject. Rick Wadecki wrote; "The most important thing in the world is freedom. The right to open your eyes and see the most beautiful things of the world. The right to walk and talk. The right to think on your own. And most of all the freedom to be alive in this wonderful world of ours."

On war: "War is hectic and so uncalled for. It is so useless and all that you do is kill a person and shoot bombs," by Greg Hill.

On beliefs: "The most important thing in the world is living with yourself. You will find true happiness in life if you can face yourself. It takes courage to stick with your beliefs," by Steve Paulus.

And in a lighter, more poetic note, the students wrote about nature. "Clouds, Soft, white; Drifting fast, changing; Strange, feathery, clinging, delicate; Pillow," by Leslie Vanderhoef.

Annual Happening To Provide Grants

"It's happening again this year."

For the third consecutive year, local residents are getting out the grease paint and colorful costumes for the Community Scholarship Foundation variety show.

This year the show is "It Happens Every Year." It will premiere March 20 and 21 in the Wheeling High School Little Theatre.

In addition to providing a lot of fun to the participants, the show serves another, more important purpose.

Proceeds from the sale of advertisements in the show's program book will provide scholarships to deserving Wheeling High School seniors who plan to attend college or trade school.

"WE'VE BEEN working really hard to improve this year's show. We hope to raise around $2,000 to provide ten $200 scholarships," explained Charles Mihalek, president of the scholarship foundation.

This year, for the first time, a number of Wheeling High School students will take part in the show.

Although WHS students have ushered and provided music for the acts in the show, they haven't actually performed in the show before.

This year, WHS student Marilyn Raedel, Illinois' Junior Miss, will be on the program. Musical excerpts from the show "Pajama Game," and a reading from the novel "Dandelion Wine," will also be performed by WHS students.

"These kids are a real inspiration to me," Mihalek said. "It's just great to see them pitch in and help on a project which can be such a benefit to them."

In the past three years the foundation has awarded 31 scholarships to WHS graduates. Most of these have been one-year scholarships, although in a few cases the foundation has provided additional grants for a second year.

"THE ORIGINAL concept was to help as many students as possible to further their education, so the grants have generally been small, about $200 to each person," Mihalek explained. "The idea was to help them get started in their first year of post-high school work."

Fifteen community residents serve on the foundation's board of directors. They come from a variety of backgrounds. Clergymen, housewives, businessmen and local police officers have served on the board.

"The only requirement we desire of our members is interest," Mihalek explained. "It isn't even necessary to have a student at the high school."

The initial impetus to start the organization, the only one of its kind in the state, came from the Wheeling Women's Club and local school officials.

IN 1967 the foundation awarded its first nine scholarships. The number jumped to 12 in 1968 and last year the organization awarded 10 scholarships.

The students have used the scholarship money to attend a variety of schools — Eastern Illinois University, Lutheran General Hospital School of Nursing, and Knox College, among others.

They are not limited in what they use the money for, as long as it is for college expenses. "Generally the money is used for tuition, but sometimes they use it for texts, equipment or other incidentals, whatever is necessary," Mihalek said.

"We like to feel we are making a valuable contribution to the community and to our students," he added. "I think it's being proven that we are."

Connery Seeks Dist. 214 Post

An Arlington Heights resident with 22 years experience in the Chicago school system will soon file petitions for candidacy for the Dist. 214 school board.

Joseph J Connery, 3030 N. Gibbons, said yesterday he will file petitions soon at the Dist. 214 offices and establish his candidacy for one of three seats open on the local high school board of education.

Connery, a resident of the village since 1956, is presently the principal of Steinmetz high school on Chicago's northwest side. He holds a doctorate degree in education and has held numerous posts in the Chicago school system.

From 1948-1952 Connery was a teacher in the Chicago public schools. He was awarded his masters degree in education from Loyola University in 1952 and in the same year was named assistant director of the Bureau of School Plant Planning and Population Surveys and was involved in the planning of a $60 million building program

CONNERY HELD THAT position until 1956 when he was named the first principal of the Hess Upper Grade Center in Lawndale, the school had an enrollment of 2,800 students

In 1960 Connery was named principal of Harlan High School, a post he served in until 1965 when he was appointed principal of Steinmetz.

In addition Connery served as principal of three summer school programs and vocational evening school programs.

Pointing to his years of experience with the Chicago school system, Connery feels he can bring an educator's professional expertise to the Dist. 214 board.

"I HAVE WORKED in many phases of education," he said, "and I think I can bring a real understanding of the problems of high schools to the board."

Connery identifies those problems as personnel matters, financing, and the particular needs of special education programs. He also feels he will bring practical knowledge of the schools to the board, although he emphasized he does not believe school board members should undermine the administrative powers of the district's professional staff.

Asked about the issue of smoking at Prospect High and other Dist. 214 schools, Connery's answer was short: "I don't allow smoking at Steinmetz high school," he said.

The candidate and his wife, Patricia, have seven children. Their oldest daughter, Carol, is a student at Marquette University. She is a graduate of Prospect High and three other Connery children are presently students there. Three other children are still in elementary school.

JOE CONNERY, a man with 22 years experience in the Chicago school system has announced his intention to file petitions for candidacy for the Dist. 214 school board. Connery, an Arlington Heights resident, is presently principal of Chicago's Steinmetz high school.

Dog Story Ends Happily

The story of Pooch, the dog that was living in a clump of trees near Harper College since November, has a happy ending.

The dog, whose name is Boots, was picked up Wednesday after a neighbor of the owners, Mr and Mrs. Stanley Arendt of 252 W Kenilworth, saw the story of Boots in the Herald

Boots had been living in the trees about 400 feet west of the Roselle-Algonquin road intersection on the north side of Algonquin Road.

Miss Karolyn Bonin said yesterday she read the story describing Boots' plight and "knew right away" the dog was Boots.

THE DOG HAS run away once before, Miss Bonin said, but was found within a month.

"This time," she said, "we had no idea where he was."

Miss Bonin said she drove to the woods and spotted Boots lying down. The dog immediately recognized her, she said, and jumped into her car.

Boots was taken to a local vet who reported yesterday the dog seems to be doing fine. There are "five pounds of burrs" in his hair, however, the vet said.

The Arendts are vacationing in Florida and are expected back in Palatine sometime this weekend.

Several people attempted to catch Boots during his four month stay in the woods. None were successful. It took someone who Boots knew.

There will be at least one happy reunion in Palatine this weekend.

Forum Slated To Air Candidates' Opinions

Deciding how to vote in local elections can sometimes be a problem.

The Wheeling Women's Club is sponsoring a candidates' forum Tuesday night to help local residents get to know the candidates running in various upcoming races.

Candidates who have filed for the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 School Board, The Wheeling Public Library District Board, the High School Dist. 214 Board and the Harper Junior College Board have been invited to the forum by the Women's Club.

The forum will be held at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the library of Jack London Junior High School, on Dundee Road in Wheeling.

All candidates who have filed by Tuesday are eligible to speak. Any candidates who filed after invitations were sent may contact club president Mrs. Julius Benjamin at 537-4345.

School Construction Will Begin Saturday

Construction of that long-awaited new school in School Dist. 96 will start Saturday.

Ground-breaking ceremonies for the as yet unnamed new school on Checker Drive and Essington Lane in Buffalo Grove will be held at 11 a.m

Dist. 96 Supt. William Hitzeman, school board members, architect Donald Anderson and contractor W. F. Fitzsimmons will attend the ceremony. The public is also invited to attend.

THE 700-PUPIL school is scheduled for completion in December, 1970, or January, 1971. It will include 26 classrooms, a library, gymnasium and administrative offices.

The school, the second for Dist. 96, is being built with funds from the Illinois School Building Commission. Approval to construct the school was granted by Dist. 96 voters last September.

Ever go to school on Sunday?

Last Sunday children at three local Catholic schools — St Mary's, in Buffalo Grove; St. Joseph the Worker, in Wheeling; and St. Alphonsus, in Prospect Heights — did just that.

The youngsters were taking part in the unusual Sunday sessions as part of a statewide campaign by the Illinois Catholic Conference (ICC) for some form of state aid to non-public schools.

Village officials, legislators and residents flooded the halls of the three schools Sunday afternoon to watch parochial school education in action.

CATHOLIC EDUCATORS throughout the state are worried.

And they have ample reason to be

Declining enrollments, a decrease in teaching sisters and priests and correspondingly higher operating costs and tuition have hit Catholic schools hard in recent years.

What lies ahead? Parochial school educators fear many of these schools may be forced to close their doors in the not-too-distant future unless state aid is made available.

The issue is a complicated one, and an emotional one too. Some individuals fear state aid will mean state control of the nonpublic schools. Some say the state has no obligation to provide for both public and private school students Some feel that private schools do not teach what is in the best interests of the state, while others cry that there are still many unmet needs in Illinois' public schools.

PROPONENTS HOLD fast to the philosophy that the state does have the obligation to help educate all its school children. They add that the public system could not handle the large influx of nonpublic students which would result if the parochial schools closed their doors for good

No matter what side one takes in this heated controversy, the ICC decision to hold Sunday sessions last weekend was a good one

Public schools — with their schoolboard meetings, referendums - and so forth, traditionally receive much more attention than their non-public sisters.

Nonpublic schools often get lost in the shuffle Yet these schools are educating one of every five school children in the state.

SOME NOT FAMILIAR with parochial schools may have the notion that these schools are concerned only with discipline and teaching religion, that equipment and texts are out-of-date, that classes are large and unwieldy.

In this area, at least, these assumptions simply don't hold up, a fact that was well-illustrated Sunday.

Instruction through television and other audio-visual devices, small classes and modern equipment were evident.

Even if the state aid issue were not of paramount importance to Catholic educators now, the program Sunday would have been extremely useful in providing Catholics and non-Catholics alike with a glimpse into a too often little known and little understood type of education.

Iowa Band To Perform

The Symphony Band of Iowa State University will perform Monday in the Wheeling High School gymnasium. The concert will begin at 8 p.m. Tickets will be available at the door.

The performance will be the final one for the band during their current concert tour. The group has performed throughout the United States during their current tour, which began Feb. 27.

"WE HAVE NOTHING to hide. We've acted in good faith, and I honestly feel that the suit was the only way out," claims William Hitzeman, superintendent of Kildeer School Dist. 96. Last month, the district condemned 15 acres of land in the Lake County part of Buffalo Grove's Strathmore subdivision. School officials want to build a 1,500 pupil school on the site.

School Land: How Much--and Where?

(Editor's Note: In this, the second of a three-part series on the current dispute about school sites in the Lake County portion of Buffalo Grove, the parties involved in the controversy discuss what they think is the problem.)

by SUE CARSON

How much land is enough for a school? What is "good" school land?

These are the questions. The answers are many and varied.

Last month, Kildeer School Dist. 96 condemned 15 acres of land in the Lake County part of Buffalo Grove's Strathmore subdivision. The court now will decide what is a fair price for the land. The district will have to pay that price if it wants the land.

DIST. 96 would like to build a 1,500-pupil school on the site, owned by Levitt and Sons Inc., builders of Strathmore.

The district feels that other proposed sites for a new school are unacceptable.

Levitt disagrees. So does Buffalo Grove Village Pres. Don Thompson.

And the Strathmore Homeowners Association (SHA) has responded by picketing the Levitt sales office in Buffalo Grove to demonstrate its support for the school board and to pressure Levitt into "fulfilling its moral obligation" to the school children.

Dist. 96 Supt William Hitzeman and Board Pres. Arthur Edmunds told their side of the story in recent Herald interviews.

"I honestly think that condemnation was the only answer," Hitzeman said.

SEVERAL other sites have been mentioned for the new school: a 5.6-acre site at Arlington Heights and Checker roads, a 14-acre site near the Buffalo Grove sewage plant, and a 10-acre site in the northwest corner of Strathmore. A suggestion has also been made to construct the new school west of Arlington Heights Road outside the village limits.

First of all, Hitzeman feels all these sites are unacceptable. He feels the district needs a minimum of 15 acres of land for a 1,500-pupil school.

"We didn't want the site near the sewage treatment plant because it is in a flood plain and it would cost to fill it in. Building west of Arlington Heights Road would require a $25,000 overpass and $50,000 or $60,000 each year to bus the children to the school," the superintendent said.

Hitzeman believes the 15 acres of land in units 12 and 13 of Strathmore is worth "between $3,000 and $5,000 an acre."

"I CONSIDER this land unimproved. Nothing has been done to it. It's still in cornstalks."

Edmunds echoes Hitzeman's sentiments. "We have considered all the other sites and rejected them for good reason."

'We feel Levitt has a moral obligation to provide a site at a reasonable price," Edmunds said. "I feel that the land should not sell at much more than $3,000 an acre."

The district offered to buy the land from Levitt at this price. The offer was flatly rejected by the building firm, which feels the land is worth $25,000 an acre. Further negotiations also have been completely unsuccessful.

"I THINK the board is deluded on the price of the 15 acres they want to condemn." Such is the opinion of Arthur Gingold, Levitt regional manager, who added, "Their appraisers are leading them on. When I lay out the costs for the land on the table, and they offer me half that, that's unrealistic.

"If there was a situation in Buffalo Grove where I thought there was really a need for land, it would be different," Gingold added. "But I'm not convinced they need land. Moreover, they're going for the best possible piece.

"The village will donate 5.6 acres to the district. Why can't they build another 700-pupil school on Arlington Heights Road? This will handle 1,700 Buffalo Grove kids in all. I can't see how they need more than these two sites.

"There is a second alternative — the 14 acres by the sewage treatment plant. But when they say they want to take the middle of my subdivision, I as a builder won't negotiate. There is a moral obligation to see that the children are educated, but that obligation lies with the parents and the school board, not with the builder."

SAID THOMPSON, "When you have a problem, you bend and sway until you solve it. But they (Dist 96) have never even considered other sites. They're just not trying, and this leaves no basis for negotiation."

Thompson does not feel that Dist. 96 needs 15 acres of land for a 1,500-pupil school.

He pointed out that the new Cooper Junior High in Buffalo Grove is being built on 4 acres of land and will handle 900 children.

"Longfellow School in Buffalo Grove was also built on 4 acres and can take care of 800 students, for a total of 1,600 students handled on 8 acres of land."

THOMPSON also believes the district "missed the boat entirely" when they stated that the condemned land is worth about $3,000 an acre.

"There is no where around here that land can be bought at that price," he said. "Buffalo Grove appraised the land for the sewage treatment plant and that was worth $4,500 an acre. And it's in a flood plain."

Meanwhile, the Strathmore Homeowners Association (SHA) is "backing the school board," according to its president, Steve Havens.

The SHA, in an effort to force Levitt to negotiate, picketed the building firm's sales office several weekends last month. This was stopped after Levitt sought an injunction to bar the picketing.

"THIS WHOLE thing has been handled poorly by the school district and the village," Havens said. "If the school board is telling the truth, we're behind them. But I do think they should have said who appraised that 15 acres.

"On the other hand, Levitt is entitled to recover their costs on the land. How much of what they call "cost" is really unrealized profits? I don't think anyone knows the true economics of the situation."

(Tomorrow: The parties involved offer their solutions to the problem.)

Inspections Agency Asked

Formation of a new, all-encompassing village department of inspectional services has been recommended by Richard Decker, Buffalo Grove's village manager.

Decker said the new agency would be designed to handle all facts of inspections and enforcement of codes in connection with construction in Buffalo Grove.

In connection with the formation of the new department, the post of building commissioner would be abolished, Decker said. The fire prevention bureau would also become a part of the new inspections department.

THE VILLAGE board will consider the recommendation at its meeting Monday, and Decker is optimistic they will accept it. "The trustees have already been receptive to the idea." Decker has already hired a fire inspector who will eventually head the new department. He is William Dettmer, a former fire inspector from Palatine.

For the new department to be created, certain additional village ordinances would have to be passed. Decker estimated that once the village board gave the go-ahead to the idea, it would take as long as two months to set it up.

"In other municipalities each type of inspection agency is separate from the other, and this is a disadvantage."

To prove his point, Decker gave the following example: "It's possible that a building inspector might see a violation in a building under construction that might fall under the fire inspector's jurisdiction. Under the present system he would have to call the department in whose jurisdiction that violation fell. Under the new system, with one department, the building inspector could handle the violation himself."

DECKER SAID ANOTHER purpose of the new department would be to "eliminate violations before they occur." Currently only the building inspector make inspections before a structure is completed, Decker said. Fire and health inspectors check the building after it is finished.

Decker said that until the new department is created, however, Dettmer will serve as a fire inspector. "We will create the department and build it as finances permit."

Golden Resigns

Matthew Golden will leave his job as Wheeling village manager April 1.

Golden sat calmly behind his desk in the new municipal building yesterday morning and explained that he was quitting for professional and family reasons.

"There isn't any intense pressure from the village board, although our relationship hasn't been the same as it was before the 'crisis' a month ago. From a personal and professional point of view I want to live in the western part of the country. The California local government system is one that is geared to making a manager system of government more effective. There's a clear separation of powers between the board and the manager. My family doesn't particularly want to live in Illinois and it isn't worth it to me professionally to have to fight to make the manager system work here," Golden explained.

GOLDEN SAID he had spent six years in San Francisco and that he liked California because it is "more progressive." "There, local government is completely nonpartisan and candidates at the local level run on issues. It's more conducive to a manager system."

Village manager in Wheeling since Sept. 2, Golden explained that he had notified village employes of his departure yesterday morning in a memo. The manager said that village board members have known he was leaving since an executive session during a village board meeting two weeks ago. Board members spent approximately two hours in that executive session.

Golden said he had "begun to establish a working relationship with some of the board members again" after an incident a month ago when he had submitted the resignation, but the village board refused to accept it by a narrow vote.

AT THAT TIME Golden said he "would like to stay in the village" if problems with the village board could be resolved.

Yesterday, however, he said that his personal and professional reasons for resigning overrode the progress that had been made to date.

Golden said he did not have a specific job lined up in California, but that he would probably go back into consulting for local governments rather than take another city manager's post immediately.

He said his biggest regret was that he had to give up what he termed his "commitment" to the village employes.

In the memo all employes received yesterday Golden thanked them for their "tremendous cooperation" and congratulated the employes for progress made because of their "hard work and commitment to the village manger system and myself as manager."

First Store In Mall To Open

The first of the stores in the new Buffalo Grove Mall on Dundee Road at Arlington Heights Road opens today.

The new Scott's Family Department Store will open its doors at 9 a.m. this morning. The Scotts Stores chain is a division of the T G & Y Store Co., a major variety store chain with headquarters in Oklahoma City.

R. E. Hicks, district manager, said, "The 15,000-square-foot store is stocked with the most complete assortment of variety merchandise to be found anywhere."

The store's hours are 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. on weekdays, 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturdays, and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Sundays.

Manager of the new store is Dennis Sheble, formerly manager of the Scott Store in Iowa City. Assistant manager is Max Bell.

"Our new unit in Buffalo Grove is part of the growth of the village," Sheble said. "We are proud of this new store and we are proud to be part of a growing community. This is our 12th unit in the Chicago area."

'Roaring 20s' Come Back

Hundreds of residents will recreate "The Jazz Age" tomorrow night when the Buffalo Grove Jaycees hold their annual "Roaring 20s Night."

The event, which starts at 7 p.m., will be held in the assembly room of the Flick-Reedy Corp. in Bensenville. An auction will be held from midnight until 1 a.m. Refreshments and snacks will be available throughout the evening. Tickets at $2 per person will be available at the door.

"Roaring 20s-type costumes are encouraged," said Joe Pash, Jaycee president. He said that during the evening a Charleston dance contest would be held.

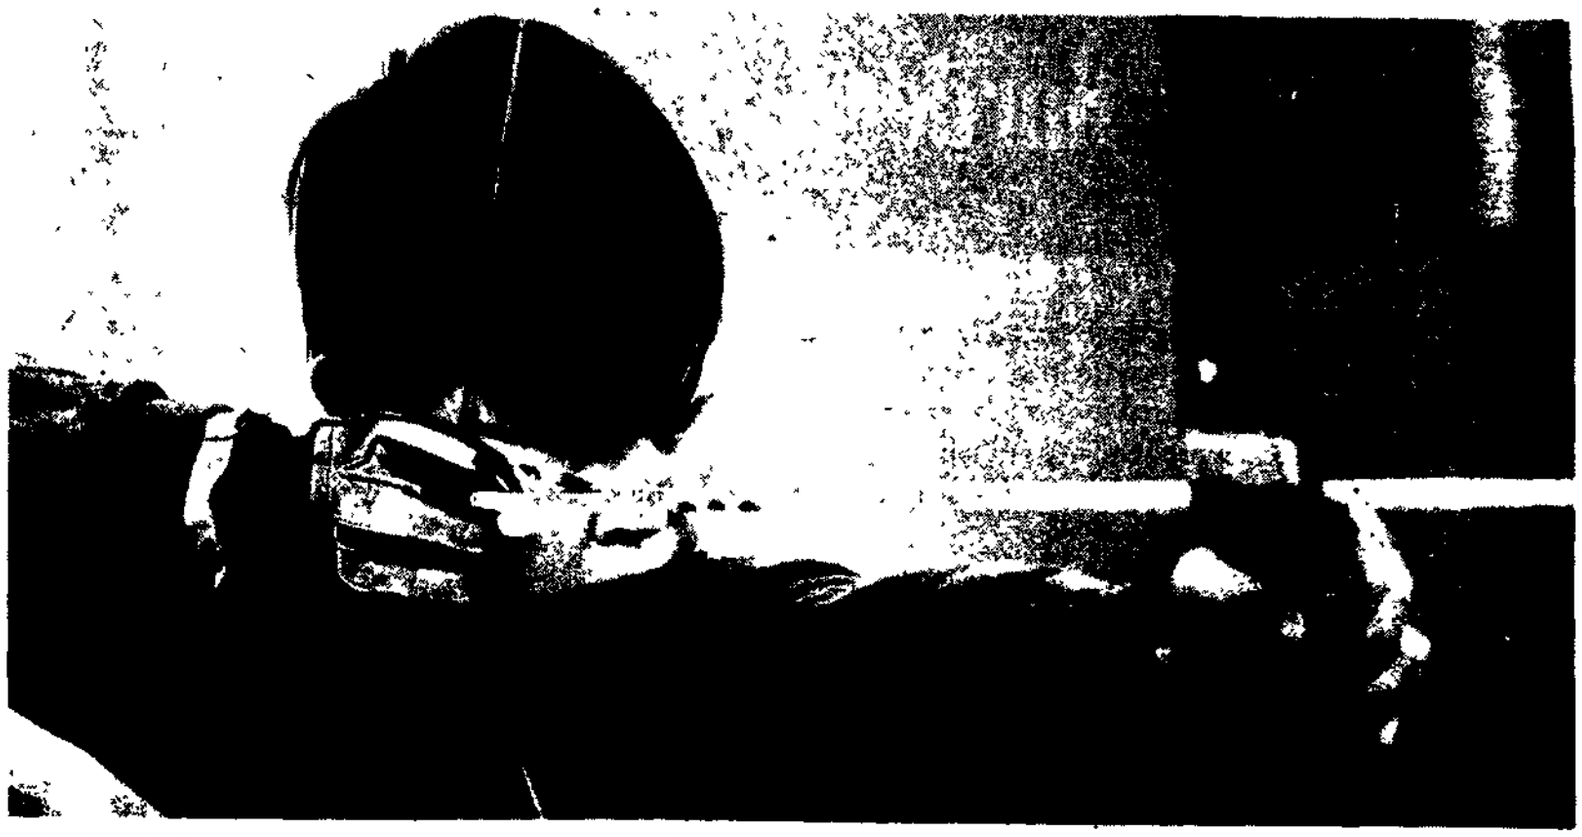
THIS YEAR'S "Roaring 20s Night" is the sixth the Jaycees have sponsored, said Pash. Jaycees are expecting a crowd of about 1,000.

The event is a fund-raising affair for the group, and they expect to raise about $2,500.

To supplement its yearly budget of $20,000 the Jaycees hold fertilizer sales twice a year. The chapter also sells fertilizer wholesale to other organizations or companies.

The funds collected by the Jaycees are spent on such things as their basketball clinic for village boys, baseball diamond improvements and the annual Fourth of July celebration.

The group also sponsors the annual "Miss Teen Queen, Buffalo Grove" contest.



A PINT-SIZED William Tell. Archery classes are now underway at the Heritage Park fieldhouse in Wheeling. Young Dan Lanter of Wheeling takes aim and prepares to shoot at the target. Participants in the program meet each Tuesday afternoon at the fieldhouse on Wolf Road in the village for the classes. The classes are sponsored by the Wheeling Park District as part of its winter program of activities.

Connery Seeks Dist. 214 Post

An Arlington Heights resident with 22 years experience in the Chicago school system will soon file petitions for candidacy for the Dist. 214 school board.

Joseph J. Connery, 3030 N. Gibbons, said yesterday he will file petitions soon at the Dist. 214 offices and establish his candidacy for one of three seats open on the local high school board of education

Connery, a resident of the village since 1956, is presently the principal of Steinmetz high school on Chicago's northwest side He holds a doctorate degree in education and has held numerous posts in the Chicago school system.

From 1948-1952 Connery was a teacher in the Chicago public schools. He was awarded his masters degree in education from Loyola University in 1952 and in the same year was named assistant director of the Bureau of School Plant Planning and Population Surveys and was involved in the planning of a $50 million building program.

CONNERY HELD THAT position until 1955 when he was named the first principal of the Hess Upper Grade Center in Lawndale the school had an enrollment of 2,800 students.

In 1960 Connery was named principal of Harlan High School, a post he served in until 1965 when he was appointed principal of Steinmetz.

In addition Connery served as principal of three summer school programs and vocational evening school programs.

Pointing to his years of experience with the Chicago school system, Connery feels he can bring an educator's professional expertise to the Dist. 214 board

"I HAVE WORKED in many phases of education," he said, "and I think I can bring a real understanding of the problems of high schools to the board."

Connery identifies those problems as personnel matters, financing, and the particular needs of special education programs. He also feels he will bring practical knowledge of the schools to the board, although he emphasized he does not believe school board members should undermine the administrative powers of the district's professional staff.

Asked about the issue of smoking at Prospect High and other Dist. 214 schools, Connery's answer was short: "I don't allow smoking at Steinmetz high school," he said.

The candidate and his wife, Patricia, have seven children. Their oldest daughter, Carol, is a student at Marquette University. She is a graduate of Prospect High and three other Connery children are presently students there. Three other children are still in elementary school.

JOE CONNERY, a man with 22 years experience in the Chicago school system has announced his intention to file petitions for candidacy for the Dist. 214 school board. Connery, an Arlington Heights resident, is presently principal of Chicago's Steinmetz high school.

Fewer Tornadoes, More Dead

There were 253 fewer tornadoes in 1968 than in 1967 but 15 more persons were killed in the storms.

Dog Story Ends Happily

The story of Pooch, the dog that was living in a clump of trees near Harper College since November, has a happy ending.

The dog, whose name is Boots, was picked up Wednesday after a neighbor of the owners, Mr and Mrs. Stanley Arendt of 252 W. Kenilworth, saw the story of Boots in the Herald.

Boots had been living in the trees about 400 feet west of the Roselle-Algonquin road intersection on the north side of Algonquin Road.

Miss Karolyn Bonin said yesterday she read the story describing Boots' plight and "knew right away" the dog was Boots.

THE DOG HAS run away once before, Miss Bonin said, but was found within a month.

"This time," she said, "we had no idea where he was."

Miss Bonin said she drove to the woods and spotted Boots lying down. The dog immediately recognized her, she said, and jumped into her car.

Boots was taken to a local vet who reported yesterday the dog seems to be doing fine. There are "five pounds of burrs" in his hair, however, the vet said.

The Arendts are vacationing in Florida and are expected back in Palatine sometime this weekend.

Several people attempted to catch Boots during his four month stay in the woods. None were successful. It took someone who Boots knew.

There will be at least one happy reunion in Palatine this weekend.

Forum Slated To Air Candidates' Opinions

Deciding how to vote in local elections can sometimes be a problem.

The Wheeling Women's Club is sponsoring a candidates' forum Tuesday night to help local residents get to know the candidates running in various upcoming races.

Candidates who have filed for the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 School Board, The Wheeling Public Library District Board, the High School Dist. 214 Board and the Harper Junior College Board have been invited to the forum by the Women's Club.

The forum will be held at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the library of Jack London Junior High School, on Dundee Road in Wheeling.

All candidates who have filed by Tuesday are eligible to speak. Any candidates who filed after invitations were sent may contact club president Mrs. Julius Benjamin at 537-4345.

School Construction Will Begin Saturday

Construction of that long-awaited new school in School Dist. 96 will start Saturday.

Ground-breaking ceremonies for the as yet unnamed new school on Checker Drive and Essington Lane in Buffalo Grove will be held at 11 a.m.

Dist. 96 Supt. William Hitzeman, school board members, architect Donald Anderson and contractor W. F. Fitzsimmons will attend the ceremony. The public is also invited to attend.

THE 700-PUPIL school is scheduled for completion in December, 1970, or January, 1971. It will include 26 classrooms, a library, gymnasium and administrative offices.

The school, the second for Dist. 96, is being built with funds from the Illinois School Building Commission. Approval to construct the school was granted by Dist. 96 voters last September.

Ever go to school on Sunday?

Last Sunday children at three local Catholic schools — St. Mary's, in Buffalo Grove; St. Joseph the Worker, in Wheeling; and St. Alphonsus, in Prospect Heights — did just that.

The youngsters were taking part in the unusual Sunday sessions as part of a statewide campaign by the Illinois Catholic Conference (ICC) for some form of state aid to non-public schools.

Village officials, legislators and residents flooded the halls of the three schools Sunday afternoon to watch parochial school education in action.

CATHOLIC EDUCATORS throughout the state are worried.

And they have ample reason to be.

Declining enrollments, a decrease in teaching sisters and priests and correspondingly higher operating costs and tuition have hit Catholic schools hard in recent years.

What lies ahead? Parochial school educators fear many of these schools may be forced to close their doors in the not-too-distant future unless state aid is made available.

The issue is a complicated one, and an emotional one too. Some individuals fear state aid will mean state control of the nonpublic schools. Some say the state has no obligation to provide for both public and private school students. Some feel that private schools do not teach what is in the best interests of the state, while others cry that there are still many unmet needs in Illinois' public schools.

PROPONENTS HOLD fast to the philosophy that the state does have the obligation to help educate all its school children. They add that the public system could not handle the large influx of nonpublic students which would result if the parochial schools closed their doors for good.

No matter what side one takes in this heated controversy, the ICC decision to hold Sunday sessions last weekend was a good one.

Public schools — with their schoolboard meetings, referendums - and so forth, traditionally receive much more attention than their non-public sisters.

Nonpublic schools often get lost in the shuffle Yet these schools are educating one of every five school children in the state

SOME NOT FAMILIAR with parochial schools may have the notion that these schools are concerned only with discipline and teaching religion, that equipment and texts are out-of-date, that classes are large and unweildy.

In this area, at least, these assumptions simply don't hold up, a fact that was well-illustrated Sunday

Instruction through television and other audio-visual devices, small classes and modern equipment were evident.

Even if the state aid issue were not of paramount importance to Catholic educators now, the program Sunday would have been extremely useful in providing Catholics and non-Catholics alike with a glimpse into a too often little known and little understood type of education.

Iowa Band To Perform

The Symphony Band of Iowa State University will perform Monday in the Wheeling High School gymnasium. The concert will begin at 8 p.m. Tickets will be available at the door.

The performance will be the final one for the band during their current concert tour. The group has performed throughout the United States during their current tour, which began Feb. 27.

Home Away From Home

FRESHMAN DAVID ENGH is studying one of the plans he and other Harper Junior College architectural students are doing for the PTYO. Currently the students are involved in designing the Joint's new teen center on Smith Road. In the background Joe Yohanan, chairman of the architecture department, is talking to Rex McMorris, director of parks for the Palatine Park District, for whom Yohanan's students are also doing surveying and designing work as part of their practical experience training.

Work Should Be Complete By June

It is beginning to look as though by the end of this school year Palatine and Rolling Meadows teens will have a home away from home.

Work on the Joint's new coffeehouse should be completed by June, according to a recent timetable compiled by the architectural students of Harper Junior College, who have designed the new teen center

Currently, the Harper students are revising portions of their original building plans, according to Joe Yohanan, chairman of the architecture department.

The timetable has completion of the mechanical drawings set for two weeks, with bids to be let for remodeling work in another two weeks. Once bids have been accepted the actual renovation work will take at least two months.

MRS. LORRAINE LaSusa, adult advisor for the youth organization, said that anyone interested in bidding for the following services should contact her or project manager Chris English:

(Electrical, heating and air conditioning, septic field and parking lot, landscaping, roofing and exterior walls, flooring, plumbing, interior design, office set-up and kitchen facilities.

Mrs. LaSusa said, although plans for renovating the house on the former Levade ranch site are well underway, the work on the barn on the same site has been delayed because there are no sewer or water lines running to the barn which will be converted into a dance hall capable of accommodating 1,000 teens.

Other factors which have added to this delay have been the change in architectural plans and the lack of money. Mrs. LaSusa said that architects and contractors have submitted the simple, unadorned remodeling will cost roughly $65,000 without projected services or material being donated.

Should Kids Attend Our Own School?

by AL GREENE

The village of Palatine has been having its problems with the new water system. A malfunctioning part in the pressure recorder of the new Smith Street elevated water storage tank and six water main breaks have caused delay in the implementation of the system.

If and when the problems are ironed out, the new system will mean equalized water pressure throughout the village and better service for residents, village officials say.

Mrs. John L. Morrissey of 55 N. Cedar St., said she has not noticed any change in her water. "The pressure is poor, the same as always," she said.

By this, she said, she meant that when the water is turned on in one room "there is hardly any pressure at all" in another room. "It's still the same way," she said adding that it was almost impossible for someone to take a bath when the dishes were being done

The new system may eliminate these problems, she was told. "I hope so," said Mrs. Morrissey, "it (the present system) makes it bad."

Another problem with water pressure mentioned by several residents comes in the summer.

Mrs. Robert M. Dougherty of 157 S. Quentin Road said during the summer, in periods of little rain, the pressure in her home decreases.

She said, one night last week, she did notice that her home did not have any water, but the problem was corrected by the next morning.

Mrs. Robert F. Teweleit of 1049 E. Fosket Drive, said she had not noticed any major changes in her water nor had she encountered any major problems.

She did say, however, that the water pressure in her home was higher than usual during the week when the changeover was tried, but the change in pressure was "not enough to be aggravating."

William B. Tripp of 963 Carmel Drive, said he has had no problems with his water system recently. "The only thing that ever happened," he said, "was during the summer" when the water pressure is low.

Deborah Tubman of 552 N. Williams said there have been no major water problems in her house other than the "water has been rusty."

Mrs. Fred W. Becker of 640 Bennett Avenue said that in her home it was impossible for someone to take a shower while someone else was doing the dishes. Referring to the problem when her husband is taking a shower, she said, "Either he stops cleaning or I do."

Mrs. Allen F. Bisantz of 200 W. Kenilworth Avenue said that she has not noticed any difference in water pressure in her home.

"It's the same as usual," she said. "If one faucet is turned on, there is no pressure anyplace else."

Mrs. Gerald L. Barnes of 1210 E. Patten Drive said she has experienced no major problems during the changeover. The only problems she said, occur during the dry system when everyone tries to water their lawns at the same time. That is when the pressure is low.

Perhaps the feelings of those who have suffered through low pressure and no pressure are summarized by Susan Cramer, the secretary of the public works department.

Asked what she thought of the proposed system, she replied, "It will be great if we ever get it into effect."

Demos Slate Primary Rally March 10

Democratic candidates, who are bidding for state and local offices in the November general election, will convene in Mount Prospect March 10 to attend one of the party's biggest pre-primary rallies scheduled in the Northwest suburban area.

The rally, sponsored by the Elk Grove Township Democratic Organization, will be held in the American Machinists Hall at Dempster Street and Mount Prospect Road beginning at 7 p.m.

And the guest list reads like a list of Who's Who in the Democratic Party in Illinois.

Although all of the Democratic candidates are slated to run unopposed in the March 17 primary, the rally will launch the Democrats' campaign to win the support and votes of residents in the November election.

Adlai Stevenson, candidate for the U. S. Senate, and Edward Warman of Skokie, candidate for Congress in the 13th Dist., are scheduled to attend Tuesday's rally

OTHER DEMOCRATIC candidates who will participate in the political pow-wow include Paul Shanyfelt of Elk Grove Village, who is seeking the office of stat senator from the 3rd Dist.; Michael Bakalis, candidate for Illinois superintendent of Public Instruction; George Dunn of Chicago, the incumbent candidate for president of the Cook County Board of Commissioners.

Budgets Are Big Business In District 211

(Last of a Series)

by JUDY BRANDES

Budgets are big business, particularly when they involve $11 million in taxpayers' money. Few taxing bodies in the Northwest suburbs have budgets larger than that of High School Dist. 211.

With the highest tax rate among high school districts in Cook County and the sixth-lowest assessed valuation of 60 Cook County high school districts, the money spent for education in Dist. 211 comes dearly, almost straight from the pockets of local residents.

Since the Dist. 211 school board is solely responsible to the electorate for the funds it spends, it can be expected to keep a careful watch on those funds, know where the dear dollars are going, and be able to justify approval of all expenditures for a questioning public.

BUT THE facts, most of them gleaned from Dist. 211 board minutes during the past year, don't support such an assumption. For many years Dist. 211 has operated on a fiscal year which begins July 1 and ends June 30 of the next year.

In preparing an $11 million budget with an expected $1 million deficit, the school district works several months on a tentative budget.

On July 10, 1969, the Dist. 211 board, after a short public hearing, adopted its final budget for this school year. No record of consideration of a tentative budget, which is required in Section 17-1 of the Illinois School Code, appears in the board minutes during the spring and summer months before July.

Nor did the board hold a special public hearing, apart from he regular school board meeting, as is required by law.

Many school boards do hold a public hearing, apart from the regular school board meeting immediately after the public hearing to avoid calling an extra meeting.

THOUGH NOT required by law, taxing bodies like school districts often hold separate public meetings of finance committees for the electorate to hear discussion on pertinent expenditure questions and perhaps offer suggestions.

With no finance committee to review the proposed budget and hold hearings on it, Dist. 211 was unable to let the public know about its upcoming budget, as it has done in years past. A finance committee was not one of the eight committees appointed in the April 24, 1969, organizational meeting of the Dist. 211 board.

Consequently, the burden of preparing the $11 million budget fell on administrative personnel, who received little or no direction from their school board on expenditure priorities or fiscal policies for this year.

Recently, the administration requested the board president appoint a board finance committee to help prepare the 1970-71 budget. This committee should be informed on what is included in next year's budget when the public hearing comes up this summer.

LAST YEAR, according to the official board minutes, no board member mentioned anything about the upcoming $11 million budget while it was being drawn up. And if a tentative budget did reach the board, its acceptance or rejection was not recorded in the board minutes.

Reviewing the budget presented and adopted by the board on July 10, 1969, two funds were not included in the final budget. Three others were grouped together in the revenue section of the building fund budget.

The Bond and Interest Fund and the Site and Construction Fund, totalling a board expenditure of $3.5 million, were excluded from the final budget.

Though the two funds are predetermined by previous commitments of the board through bond sales and contracts for constructing buildings, the board is responsible for the funds.

TAX FUNDS not needed immediately after collection are put into short-term investments to increase revenue. No identifiable figures on the estimated revenue from these two funds is given in the 1969-70 budget.

The $3.5 million, though already allocated by legal contracts, is taxpayers' money and should be accounted for in the budget.

The other three funds that appear in the revenue listing for the building fund are the Liability Insurance, the Life Safety Code and the Special Education levy. The Illinois School Code sets general rules for drawing up budgets, but does not specify how levies for the 10 funds should be reported.

Nor does it indicate that a budget summary of revenue and expenditure be included.

HOWEVER, EASE of understanding where the tax money is being used and how much tax money is being spent prompts most school districts to have separate listings of their tax levies and the monies each yields.

When the Dist. 211 Board approved its final budget, it had no total picture to look at on paper. Despite the fact that $3.5 million was missing from the budget picture, a total of the remaining five funds was not part of the 1969-70 budget either. In essence, the Dist. 211 board approved a budget of a little less than $8 million, yet the district will spend more than $11 million this year.

Once it had passed its 1969-70 budget, questions of priority spending came up

Why a Cop? He 'Needs to be Needed'

by AL GREENE

"Every person needs to be needed."

That is why Raymond Smyk says he is a cop.

The 33-year-old, 6½-year veteran of the Palatine Police Department was patroling his assigned area on a gray morning this week and reflected on why he became a policeman.

"At the beginning," he said, "you say because you want to be a public servant."

But now, he said, there is a certain responsibility.

"My job gives me a good feeling knowing that I can help somebody else . . . when I do something good for somebody."

HE ILLUSTRATES his point by telling of one of the first calls he received. A little girl had been playing on a bridge on a cold day. She stuck out her tongue and it became frozen to the steel railing.

"I was a complete blank," Smyk said. "When I got there, I didn't know what the hell to do."

He called for help. First, flares were used to heat the rail. That didn't work. Next, he tried placing his palms next to her tongue to defrost it. That didn't work.

The fire department arrived, and they tried using olive oil to free the girl. That also failed.

FINALLY, Smyk said, "I figured her tongue was frozen solid, so I took out a pocket knife and cut her away from the metal, leaving a layer of skin."

"When I pulled her away," he said, "she gave me the biggest hug. It gave me the greatest thrill. My chest must have been six feet wide."

"It's things like that that keep a police officer going. It's the one in a thousand that gives you thanks from the heart that matter and makes it worth staying on the job."

Smyk's day began at about 7:45 a.m. when he checked into the police station, answered roll call, received his assignment and listened to the watch commander read the daily bulletin.

THIS DAY, the Palatine police would watch the schools more carefully than usual. They had received a report of a "suspicious person" near a school.

Smyk got into his squad car, checked the equipment and drove off to his assigned area.

He is 5 feet, 8 inches tall and said he just met the minimum physical qualifications for a police officer.

"It's intelligence that counts," he said. "You have to know the law when you approach a citizen. You can make a fool of yourself in public if you don't," he said.

SMYK SAID he liked the day shift because he could be home at night with his family. He also said it was a "safer" shift because the "public is out."

He said the police are more than just coworkers. They are a "close-knit" group who "depend on each other."

When a policeman stops a car, Smyk said, he never really knows what to expect.

When a car is stopped, he said, a policeman in the next area will "wander over to back you up."

"You don't know if you will find a minor traffic violator or "a crazy load of characters."

WHEN ENCOUNTERING a traffic violator who gets abusive, he said, "you can't back away. Once you back away you might as well take the badge off."

The first thing he does when he reaches his assigned area, Smyk said, is to inspect it to find out what's going on. It's called "preventive patroling," he said.

Smyk was on patrol for about an hour when he spotted a stalled car at the intersection of Route 14 and Palatine Road. His job, he said, was to keep traffic from nearing the car and "make sure nobody rams into it."

The driver had gone to a nearby service station and returned with a mechanic who said the car was flooded and started it almost immediately.

FIFTEEN minutes later, Smyk was called to a gas station, where a woman refused to move her car out of the service area.

The attendant said her flat tire could not be repaired and asked her to move the car because he wanted to service other cars.

When Smyk arrived, the woman was persistently talking on the phone. Smyk asked her to move her car twice and she did.

"As soon as I showed up," he said, "she was defensive." Police, he said, are downgraded before saying anything.

"We feel we're second-class citizens," Smyk said, "because we have less rights than the ordinary person."

POLICEMAN Raymond Smyk checks out his radio before going on routine patrol. The hardest part of his job, Smyk says, is staying neutral when two people are involved in a squabble. Most problems are caused by people not wanting to communicate, he says.

Dolik Services Set

Visitation for WO 1.c., Paul E. Dolik of 206 N. Brockway St., Palatine, who was killed in Vietnam, Feb. 23, will be held Sunday from noon until 1:30 p.m. in Ahlgrim and Sons Funeral Home, 201 N. Northwest Highway.

The body will lie in state Monday in Immanuel Lutheran Church, North Plum Grove Road at Wood Street, from noon until the time of the funeral services at 1 p.m.

The Rev. Theodore Braem will preside. Burial will be in Bohemian National Cemetery, Chicago.

Nonpublic School Aid To Be Debated

Last month it was Con-Con.

Tomorrow, the Elementary and Secondary Nonpublic Schools Study Commission, headed by State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, comes to Arlington Heights.

The commission, exploring the explosive issue of state aid to parochial and private schools, will begin its hearings at 9:30 a.m. at the Arlington Park Towers, Wilke Road and Euclid Avenue in Arlington Heights.

Interest in the hearings reached such a pitch Wednesday that Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, announced that a second hearing will be held on March 20 in Hillside, in DuPage County.

That hearing is scheduled primarily for the benefit of those persons not living in the Northwest suburban area. Priority will also be given tomorrow to those who registered earliest to testify.

SCHLICKMAN SAID that anyone who wishes to testify before the commission will be permitted to do so.

A wide variety of persons have indicated that they wish to testify before the commission. The largest number of speakers that have signed up so far come from area Catholic boards and churches and parent-teacher groups.

Also, State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, reportedly is scheduled to testify.

Speakers scheduled to attend include state representatives Edward Copeland, Chicago, and John Matijevich, North Chicago.

Other scheduled speakers include O. A. Candelaria, an Arlington Heights resident and superintendent of Maple School Dist. 30 in Northbrook, and Ronald Brandt, president of the St. Paul Lutheran church board in Mount Prospect.

THE ISSUE OF state aid to nonpublic schools, perhaps the most controversial to face Illinois legislators and educators today, faces both the Illinois legislature and the Constitutional Convention.

Attempts were made during the last session of the legislature to change the state aid formula. Meanwhile, Con-Con is mulling over changing the constitution's powers in regard to aid to nonpublic education.

An indication of the significance of the issue is that Catholic schools held an open house last weekend to dramatize the fact that Catholic education is quality education.

Also, the Catholic weekly, the New World, issued a one-page reprint of the positions on the issue taken by Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie and Lt. Gov. Paul Simon. Both men have supported some form of state aid to nonpublic schools.

As Catholic schools suffer economic problems, the pressures for state aid increase. What the Schlickman commission must consider, in listening to the 30 or so persons that will speak Saturday, is not only whether state aid is desirable, but also if it is desirable, how much and in what form should it be extended.

Anti-Flooding Report Expected Monday

The Palatine Village Board is expected to hear a report Monday night on efforts to alleviate flooding conditions on W. Glade Road.

The Lawrence Wray family, of 203 W. Glade Road, had to be evacuated from their home Tuesday night when a storm sewer backed up and flooded their basement.

Village Trustee Clayton W. Brown, chairman of the village's planning and public works committee, said yesterday he has asked Village Mgr. Berton G. Braun to report on the plans of the U.S. Soil Conservation Department in relation to Salt Creek.

Brown, like Braun, said the problem regarding the west branch of the creek, which gives Glade Road residents the flooding headache, is that the village has no easements to move machinery into the west branch of the creek.

BROWN SAID THE conservation department did not plan to do any work in the west branch, but once it has finished working on the other section of the creek the flooding problem will be eliminated.

He said the implementation of the Salt Creek work is "very close" but he did not know when it would be completed.

Brown said the flooding occurs because the banks of the west branch are six feet higher than the surrounding property "as if the banks were diked."

When the storm sewers were put in, he said, they had to be placed at least three feet below the service and were installed at as flat a pitch as possible.

BECAUSE OF THE low pitch and the height of the banks, he said, the storm sewers cannot empty into the creek.

The only solution, Brown said, is to fill the area near the banks with six feet of fill. This, he said, would be a hardship to other property owners because the filled section would be higher than home foundations and water would start draining into the homes

Brown said, the original storm sewers were "put in as best as humanly possible."

He said the soil conservation department was planning to adjust the flow of Salt Creek and insure that it will be able to retain and control the creek. This, he said, will eliminate the flooding.

Wray says the best solution for him would be to raise the level of the street in front of his house and raise the level of the storm sewer so that it would be able to empty into the creek.

Connery To Seek 214 Post

An Arlington Heights resident with 22 years experience in the Chicago school system will soon file petitions for candidacy for the Dist. 214 school board.

Joseph J. Connery, 3030 N. Gibbons, said yesterday he will file petitions soon at the Dist. 214 offices and establish his candidacy for one of three seats open on the local high school board of education.

Connery, a resident of the village since 1956, is presently the principal of Steinmetz high school on Chicago's northwest side. He holds a doctorate degree in education and has held numerous posts in the Chicago school system.

From 1948-1952 Connery was a teacher in the Chicago public schools. He was awarded his masters degree in education from Loyola University in 1952 and in the same year was named assistant director of the Bureau of School Plant Planning and Population Surveys and was involved in the planning of a $50 million building program.

CONNERY HELD THAT position until 1955 when he was named the first principal of the Hess Upper Grade Center in Lawndale the school had an enrollment of 2,800 students.

In 1960 Connery was named principal of Harlan High School, a post he served in until 1965 when he was appointed principal of Steinmetz.

In addition Connery served as principal of three summer school programs and vocational evening school programs.

Pointing to his years of experience with the Chicago school system, Connery feels he can bring an educator's professional expertise to the Dist. 214 board.

"I HAVE WORKED in many phases of education," he said, "and I think I can bring a real understanding of the problems of high schools to the board."

Connery identifies those problems as personnel matters, financing, and the particular needs of special education programs. He also feels he will bring practical knowledge of the schools to the board, although he emphasized he does not believe school board members should undermine the administrative powers of the district's professional staff.

Asked about the issue of smoking at Prospect High and other Dist. 214 schools, Connery's answer was short: "I don't allow smoking at Steinmetz high school," he said.

The candidate and his wife, Patricia, have seven children. Their oldest daughter, Carol, is a student at Marquette University. She is a graduate of Prospect High and three other Connery children are presently students there. Three other children are still in elementary school.

JOE CONNERY, a man with 22 years experience in the Chicago school system has announced his intention to file petitions for candidacy for the Dist. 214 school board. Connery, an Arlington Heights resident, is presently principal of Chicago's Steinmetz high school.

Arlington Rolls On; Tops Viator

Arlington High School, behind John Brodnan's 29 points, charged into the championship game of the Arlington regional basketball tournament with a 64-54 semi-final victory over neighboring St. Viator last night.

The victory, achieved before a noisy, near-capacity crowd in the Arlington gym, gave George Zigman's Cardinals the right to take on another cross-town and Mid-Suburban League rival, Hersey, for the title tonight. The game, expected to attract a capacity crowd of about 4,000, will begin at 7:30.

Hersey and Arlington have already met twice this year, with the Cardinals winning both times — 55-45 at Hersey in the league opener early in December and 51-45 at Arlington last month.

THE DEFEAT eliminated St. Viator from the tourney and ended its season with 13 wins, 14 losses. The Lions had defeated Palatine, while Arlington had downed Mundelein in first-round games last Tuesday. Hersey defeated Fremd, 67-53, in the other semi-final game Wednesday night.

Arlington, which won the Mid-Suburban League crown this year with a 13-1 record, ran its over-all mark to 18-6 last night. In the process, the Cards gained revenge for a 59-46 loss to St. Viator in semi-final action in last year's regional at Palatine.

Brodnan, a 6-1 junior, dazzled the crowd and riddled St. Viator defenders with spectacular moves and drives and a fine touch from outside. Brodnan has been Arlington's highest scorer all season and was third in the Mid-Suburban League with a 19.7 average.

FORWARDS MIKE MANDELE and Jack Hult and center Bill Kieck helped the Cardinals' cause with strong rebounding and good shooting from in close. Arlington was able to penetrate well all the way, while St. Viator could not and had to rely on shots from much farther out.

Arlington led at halftime, 31-25. St. Viator managed to stay in the game with the rebounding of its 6-5 center, Dave Kaskie, and fine outside shooting by guard Terry Cullen (who led the Lions with 15 points) and Bob Rech, who had 10. Mike Pettenuzzo played a good all-around game and had 14 for St. Viator.

The Cardinals never trailed in the game, jumping to a quick 5-0 lead after a minute and 15 seconds. Guard Bill Heffernan hit a long shot with just seven seconds gone, Kieck followed with a short one and Mandele sank a free throw

ST. VIATOR retaliated with baskets by Rech and Pettenuzzo, but Arlington stayed in command, moving to an 11-5 lead on two buckets from short range by Mandele and Brodnan's first basket, from the side.

Rech hit two more baskets after Kaskie scored on a fine move, but Mandele's eight first-quarter points, plus another goal from the side by Kieck, gave Arlington a 17-12 lead after a quarter.

St. Viator made one comeback move to start the second quarter, with two long shots by Kaskie and Rech and a Pettenuzzo free throw closing the margin to 19-17, with Hult keeping Arlington ahead with a rebound basket.

BUT ARLINGTON broke away from that two-point difference and expanded it to 27-17 after a bullseye from the top of the key by Hult and two long ones just 20 seconds apart by Brodnan.

A drive by Pettenuzzo was offset by Kieck's basket. St. Viator closed the gap to 29-25 on a jumper by Cullen, three free throws by Kaskie and one by Pettenuzzo. The first of Brodnan's beautiful drives with just two seconds left in the half gave Arlington a 31-25 lead at that juncture.

Brodnan exploded for 21 of his points in the second half, 10 in the third quarter when Arlington asserted its superiority by pulling away for the last time.

BRODNAN STARTED the hot streak with a pair of free throws and later in the period hot on two 15-footers and two more flashy drives. Ken Peters helped with a basket from long range. The Lions managed just six points in the third quarter and trailed 46-31 at its conclusion.

St. Viator, desperate to get the ball, tried a pressing defense in the fourth quarter, but to no avail. Arlington easily broke the press for easy layups to stay safely in front, despite Cullen's hot shooting from outside.

Busy Days For Wrestlers

During the last two weeks the Palatine Park District wrestling team has been pretty busy, with two dual meets and one quadrangular.

On Feb. 17 the Palatine grapplers defeated Golf Junior High School with a score of 16 to 15. Winning wrestlers for Palatine were Andy Walsh, Chuck Tuttle, John Lonergan, Randy McAlister, Brian Bauer and Bill Countryman.

On Feb. 20 a quadrangular meet was held between Palatine, Iroquois, London Junior High and Holmes Junior High at Palatine High School.

Palatine finished fourth in this meet. The final scores were Iroquois 113, London, 76, Holmes 73, and Palatine 72.

First-place winners for Palatine were John Lonergan, and Brian Bauer. Second places went to Chuck Tuttle, Randy McAlister, and Bruce Deyze. And finishing in third place were Bob Stark, Andy Walsh, Fred Barr, Bill Vountryman and Tom Esmil.

On Feb. 24 Palatine wrestlers went against the Fremd Park District Program. The final score of the meet was Palatine 32, Fremd 20.

Budgets Are Big Business

that indicate the board did not understand why certain amounts were allocated to certain funds An example is the capital outlay fund, part of the building fund.

ACCORDING TO the budget, $200,000 is available this year for building improvement, equipment and replacements in the existing buildings. Prior to the Oct. 9, 1969, meeting, about half the money had been approved for reroofing Conant High School, tuckpointing Palatine High School, bleachers and a press box at Palatine, and wrestling room wall pads for Fremd High School.

Administrative officials were recommending $36,600 more in improvements, some of which had been suggested to them by individual board members. The improvements included $25,000 for an elevator in Palatine High School The board approved $11 000 for fencing, tennis backboards and improvements of the Conant High School track, and postponed consideration of the elevators

In discussion of the proposed improvements at an earlier board meeting, the board requested a breakdown of the fund since it did not know what the status of the capital outlay fund was. Apparently it did not know how the figure of $200,000 had been obtained and what it was budgeted to be used for.

A $25,000 expenditure for an elevator cannot be considered an emergency budget measure. Consideration of building improvements like an elevator usually come before adoption of a budget and are included in it The important point is that no member of the Dist. 211 board, the elected representatives of the taxpayers in the district, knew why $200,000 of taxpayers' money was put in a capital outlay fund and how much of that money had already been spent.

Not all expenditures during the school year can be anticipated. When a school board decides on an expenditure of public money that is not budgeted, it is held accountable for reporting the results and benefits, if any, the district receives from the expenditure.

In September, 1969, the Dist. 211 board approved the expenditures necessary to send two board members to Atlanta with a group from High School Dist. 214. The board felt the expenditure justified for a study of the concept of year-round school, but no limitation was placed on the amount to be spent.

No report has been made public since the two board members and a third administrative official returned. In December, the board approved payment of the bills incurred on the five-day trip No statements have been made by the board's two travelers about the trip's worth to Dist. 211, nor have any board members discussed openly the feasibility of year-round school in Dist. 211.

THE TOPIC HAS been considered in closed sessions of the board's long range planning committee, which is illegal according to the open meeting law passed by the Illinois Legislature in 1967. Only collective bargaining negotiations, land acquisition, pending court cases, personnel discussions and student discipline cases are subject for closed sessions

In comparison, Dist. 211's companions on the trip, board members and administrative officials from Dist. 214, made periodic long distance phone calls to the Herald during the trip to report on activities, issued statements of their opinion of the success of the trip and its value to the district when they returned from Atlanta and since have released a 37-page report on the trip and the direction Dist 214 can go with its own program.

It is the responsibility of each board member, as well as the board as a whole, to account for all expenditures of the taxpayers' money in Dist. 211. No item, whether it be a $200,000 capital outlay fund, $500 for a trip, or $3.5 million in the Site and Construction and the Bond and Interest funds, should go undiscussed and unaccounted for

Inattentiveness in money matters of a high school district with an $11 million budget should not be tolerated by the electorate that eventually pays the bills.

The Dist. 211 school board, because of its inaction and lack of knowledge of the financial matters in the district in the past year, must assume its responsibility soon as a taxing body, and account to the public for the money it has spent.

Little Cagers End Season

The Junior Basketball League, sponsored by the Palatine Park District and the YMCA held its consolation and championship games recently

Of the teams, which have been competing for the last 10 weeks, only four survived the process of elimination and went on to compete for the championship

The consolation game was played between the Pirates and the Wildcats, with the Wildcats coming out on top. Leading scorers for the Wildcats were Jim Sprinkle with 16 points, and Barry Christensen, with 10 points High scorers for the Pirates were Mike Collins with 16 points and Marty Fenton with 11.

The championship game was a low-scoring defensive dual between the Panthers and the Warriors, who were victorious with a 28-24 score.

For the winners Sal Fioretti with 12 points and Tim Ganatos with 9 points led the scoring. The top scoring Panther was Ed Shortly with 10 points

Trophies were awarded to both the first and second place team. The final standings for the park district-YMCA League are as follows: Pirates, 8 won and 2 lost; Warriors, 5 and 5; Bombers, 2 and 8; Rams, 1 and 9; Division II, 8 and 2, Panthers, 7 and 3; Bulls, 6 and 4; and Heavens Devils, 3 and 7.

'She's Alive Thanks To Him'

"As everyone else was sitting around, he was doing what he should have done to save someone's life My wife wouldn't be alive today if it weren't for him," the man said.

The man was talking about Edward Gorman, 2312 Eastman St., Rolling Meadows. Gorman stopped at the scene of an accident on Dec. 14 at the intersection of Euclid and Wolf Road in Wheeling Township.

He pulled Mrs George Bachar from the car and administered mouth-to-mouth resuscitation to her breathless body.

"IT WAS THROUGH his work that she's alive," said Mr. Bachar who is at home recuperating from injuries he sustained in the accident. The Bachars live at 1112 N. Highland, Arlington Heights.

Bachar said that he and his wife recently found out Gorman's name during a court hearing on the accident. A state policeman obtained Gorman's name and gave Gorman credit for his quick action.

The Race for Township Democrat Committeeman

Republicans usually attract all the attention in highly Republican Palatine Township. The GOP generally gets more than 65 per cent of the vote while the Democrats maintain a minority status.

This year, however, as is the case every four years, there's one race in which a Democrat will be the winner, and that race is attracting a great deal of attention from Democrats and Republicans.

The contest is for the Democratic committeeman's post in the township, a four-year job as head of the party in the township.

The committeeman not only directs the activities of his party on the local level, but also becomes a member of the Cook County Democratic Central Committee and plays a large role in the slating of candidates for district and county races.

This year's Palatine Township committeeman's race, scheduled for March 17, presents a battle between incumbent Committeeman Peter J. Gerling and challenger Richard A. Mugalian.

Gerling was appointed to the position in 1968 following the resignation of Oliver Dilks.

Mugalian, an attorney, was a candidate for committeeman in 1966 but lost to Dilks.

The Herald submitted a series of questions to both candidates and their responses are printed here.

Herald coverage of the committeeman's race is directed by State Editor Ed Murnane.

Gerling: Party Should Run Local Slates . . .

Peter J. Gerling

The Democratic Party should run slates of candidates in local village and township elections, said Palatine Township Democratic Committeeman Peter J. Gerling.

Gerling, who was appointed Palatine committeeman two years ago when Committeeman Oliver J. Dilks resigned, is seeking a full four-year term in the position on March 17.

He is being challenged by Richard A. Mugalian, a Palatine attorney.

GERLING, WHEN ASKED by the Herald, said the party "should certainly run candidates in local village elections. The only possible obstacle might be a lack of qualified candidates."

And he feels just as stoongly about running Democratic slates in township races.

"This is absolutely necessary because suburban townships have been under one party rule for a hundred years," said Gerling, who was an unsuccessful Democratic candidate for township highway commissioner last year.

The same questions were asked of both Gerling and Mugalian.

—ON PATRONAGE AND the need to build an organization on patronage workers: "Patronage workers are so underpaid by industry standards that the Democratic organization really doesn't rely on them at all. The only instance that the organization would be on the lookout for such jobs would be in the case of part time summer jobs to award college students. We feel that this is in the best interests of both the country and the party to aid these people to further their education. I do not feel it is necessarily true that the Democratic organization needs more patronage workers to succeed."

—How can the organization best build its membership? "The organization can best build its membership by continuing to do what it is doing now. Continuing the 'open door' policy of allowing a voice in the organization to all members, continuing open membership to anyone willing to work with us, and continuing better service to the public. This will build the organization to the point of threatening the end of one party rule in the suburbs. The organization can continue to build its membership with good leadership, interesting and well qualified candidates, and by providing a dynamic political model for our young people to follow."

—IS IT CONCEIVABLE that the Democratic Party in this township will ever be on an even footing with the Republican Party? When? "The Democratic Party will be on an even footing with the Republican Party in the very near future. This will occur as soon as suburbanites are fed up with high taxes that continue to rise unabated and blind leadership that allows this to occur."

—How many members in your organization have a voice in the endorsement and selection of candidates, and how many should have a voice? "I have spent many hours on screening committees interviewing and analyzing potential candidates. When I finish I return to the organization, submit my findings and then have a vote on the matter in an open meeting. I feel that all members of the organization should have a voice in these selections."

—WHAT ROLE SHOULD the mayor of Chicago play in selecting of candidates for Third State District offices or for the 13th Congressional District? "None as mayor of Chicago. The committeemen of the 13th Congressional District select candidates for the District. In the screening committee we listen to any constructive criticisms including those submitted by the Chairman of the Cook County Central Committee."

—Is there a difference between the city Democrat and the suburban Democrat? What is it and why? "Yes, there is a big difference between city and suburban Democrats. For the first time in many people's lives they are now homeowners, with a big mortgage and a piece of property. Once this move is made many former Democrats feel that the party no longer reflects their interests any longer, and in addition switching parties seems to be a sort of status symbol.

"THIS OF COURSE is untrue. The Democratic party has long been in the forefront of defending homeowners from additional taxes and preventing incessantly rising taxes Another difference for the party. City Democrats will work for the party more frequently while the suburban Democrats seem to be too busy working on house and property upkeep in addition to their regular jobs "

—How can the Democratic Party best convert Republicans? "The economic condition of the country seems to be the best automatic converter of Republicans to Democrats. During periods of recession Republicans automatically revert to becoming Democrats, while during periods of prosperity they remain as Republicans."

—What is your first goal as committeeman during the next four years? "My first goal as committeeman during the next four years will continue to be what it has been in the past Building the Democratic Party, continuing internal democracy with a voice for every member, continuing service to the public, and bringing harmony to the party while fighting for the principals of the Democratic Party."

...But Mugalian Opposes Such Involvement

Richard A Mugalian of Palatine hopes 1970 is a brighter year than 1966 was.

In 1966, Mugalian was defeated in a three-way scramble for the Palatine Township Democratic committeeman's position and he's challenging an incumbent for the job again this year, this time Peter J. Gerling, who was appointed to the post when Oliver Dilks, who beat Mugalian in 1966, resigned in 1968.

Mugalian is entering the March 17 election with the endorsement of three influential agencies, the Better Government Association, the Independent Voters of Illinois and the Independent Democratic Coalition.

Mugalian, who said he opposes the involvement of national political parties in local elections, said he will resist any attempt by the Republican Party to become entrenched in the Rolling Meadows City Hall, as it has in the Palatine Village Hall, and pledges that the Democratic Party under him would work to restore Palatine to a non-partisan village government

BUT HE TOLD the Herald he does think the party should run in township elections if a qualified slate of candidates can be found

Mugalian and Gerling were asked the same questions by the Herald

—On patronage and the need to build an organization on patronage workers. "The party should not use patronage to the extent it has for the past many years in the township Actually, the almost exclusive reliance on patronage has weakened the organization A man's politics should not depend on his job, and his job should not depend on his politics If Americans won't work for political parties unless patronage is involved, Democracy is in trouble.

"It needs more workers concerned with people — problems and their solution through the party system. Such persons, sometimes referred to as "issue-oriented," are discouraged to participate in the Democratic organization in the township Somehow, my opponent's patronage-based organization fears the influence of issue-oriented Democrats who would greatly outnumber the patronage workers if allowed to enter the organization."

—How can your organization best build its membership?

"By welcoming all Democrats as participating members By making it clear that our township unit of the Democratic Party is concerned with public issues and that all members will have a voice in shaping our party's position on these issues and in selecting our party's candidates. By electing as Committeeman one who is articulate, energetic and loyal to our party's high principles. By making absolutely certain that the Democratic Party belongs to all Democrats and not just an inner circle of patronage workers."

Richard A. Mugalian

—IS IT CONCEIVABLE that the Democratic Party in Palatine township will ever be on an even footing with the Republican Party? When?

"Yes. It will require inspired leadership and hard work. Blind party loyalty is giving way to a more rational, questioning awareness on the part of voters in our area. For example, I have heard many voters question the necessity of publicly declaring one's party in order to vote in a primary. Democrats will catch up and pass the Republican Party when we convince voters that our Party offers better candidates and better solutions to our problems!"

—How many members in your organization have a voice in the endorsement and selection of candidates, and how many should have a voice?

"All members (when I am elected) will have a voice — and a vote! Not only precinct captains. Actually, in a patronage-based organization, so-called precinct captain votes are a mere ritual. The payrollers vote the way they're told at the risk of being "viced" (fired) from their patronage jobs. Since this is a crucial question, I challenge, in advance, my opponent's answer if he suggests that either he, or Mr. Dilks before him, permitted any kind of real vote or democracy within the organization."

What role should the Mayor of Chicago play in selecting of candidates for Third State District offices or for the 13th Congressional District?

The mayor of Chicago, as mayor, should have as much of a role as the mayor of Aurora, Joliet, Oak Park or any other city outside our district: none. Democratic Party candidates for these offices should be selected by the Democrats of the district.

Is there a difference between the city Democrat and the suburban Democrat? What is it and why?

"I was a city Democrat (and precinct captain) and my politics is no different since moving to Palatine. I resist attempts to classify people in general, or party adherants in particular, on the basis of where they reside. I trust that urban and suburban Democrats may have urban and suburban differences, but, as Democrats, are equally concerned about Nixon's inflationary recession, unfair taxation, environmental pollution and all the other problems requiring political action."

HOW CAN THE Democratic Party best convert Republicans"

By being patient and explaining clearly that we are in the 1970's and that war, inflation, pollution, high taxes, crime, poverty, political corruption, and race relations must be solved by careful thought and hard work. Such problems will not be solved by slogans and they will not go away by ignoring them. That they and their children are affected by these problems, even if they are solvent, healthy and secure. Then, to convert them to my Party, Democrats will have to have better answers and better candidates As Committeeman, this would be my principal concern."

—What is your first goal as committeeman during the next four years?

"To forge a free, united and confident Democratic Party organization that is 1) equipped to contest the issues with the Republicans, 2) determined to continually improve the Democratic Party, and 3) always moving forward within the American political system in improving the quality of life in this great land."

Line Petitions Coming

If you are one of 465 homeowners living in Rolling Meadows whose children attend or will attend Dist. 211 schools, and you want them to attend the new high school stay home this weekend to sign the petitions being passed on disannexation from Dist. 211 and annexation to Dist. 214.

A group of interested citizens will be going door-to-door asking residents in an area bounded by Central Road, Route 53, Rohlwing Road, Euclid Avenue, and the Dist. 214 boundary line along Owl and Robin Lanes to sign the petition so high school students in the area can attend the Dist. 214 high school being built in the city.

"We'll actually have two petitions," Fred Jacobson, spokesman for the group, said. "One will be a petition asking both districts to go along with our request for the boundary line change. The second one will be presented to the county board of school trustees."

JACOBSON PLANS to appear before both the Dist. 211 and the Dist. 214 school boards seeking their support. "We're not asking them to do anything, because we have to go to the county board of school trustees to get the boundary changed."

What Jacobson and the people who attend the Dist. 211 board meeting March 12 want is a commitment from the local boards saying they approve of the boundary change.

"Whether or not we get their approval, we will be going to the county board anyway," he said.

"Neither board or both of them together can change the line, only the county board can."

The group of petition passers is meeting tonight to organize their weekend activities. "We will have to be careful to get people who pay taxes in Dist. 211. There are some homes which go to Dist. 211, others to 214. We have a big job trying to them straight."

IN THE 465 homes included in the disannexation from Dist. 211 and annexation to Dist. 214, Dist. 211 officials report there are 134 students attending Fremd High School.

Present juniors and seniors would finish at their own high schools. Sophomores will be seniors the year the high school in Rolling Meadows opens and can elect to remain at their school. Those affected by the opening of the new school will be freshmen now attending Forest View High School and Fremd High School freshmen if the boundary line is changed.

Speak Out

The Water System: Any Problems?

by JUDY BRANDES

With Rolling Meadows residents taking to the street this weekend to pass petitions to have their children attend the high school being built in Rolling Meadows, Speakout asked residents from all over the city what they think of the idea.

The school is scheduled to open in September, 1971, meaning that present sophomores, juniors and seniors will be able to finish their high school education in the school they are presenty attending.

Mrs R. H. Roeska, 3302 Bobolink Lane, says "I'm all for it, especially when we'll be having our own high school," Mrs. Roeska has two older children who are graduates of Palatine High School and two still in grade school

"I'd very much like my two youngsters to go to Rolling Meadows' high school rather than Palatine "

A NEWCOMER to Rolling Meadows and the area, Mrs Raymond Hughes, said she doesn't know too much about the situation. "I have one boy who is a sophomore at Fremd this year." After hearing an explanation of what will be happening in the city, she said, "I think I'd be happy about it. I have six children who will be going to high school sometime."

Mrs. Raymond Peterson Jr., 4307 Linden Ave., lives right behind the site for the new high school. "I think it is a good idea, but I know of a lot of people who will resent being pulled out of 211 and sent to 214."

Mrs. Peterson's children have always been in Dist. 214. "It'll be great to have the high school right behind us. Some of us here have children in three, four, or five schools."

"Personally," Mrs. John Fisk, 4267 Wilson Ave., says, I think our children should go to the Rolling Meadows school."

Mrs. Fisk lives in the Countryside subdivision west of Route 53. The homeowners' association recently decided not to join the group petitioning for disannexation from Dist. 211 because they are located closer to Fremd High School.

"I don't know what my neighbors think, but we live in Rolling Meadows and our children should go to the town school. We have to be bused to either school, so that doesn't matter. I think the town is important and if we are a part of it, we should send our children to its school."

SHE ADDED THAT the name should definitely be Rolling Meadows High School.

Rolling Meadows students who don't attend the new high school will probably feel left out, Chester York, 4004 Jay Lane, says.

"If I were a parent in that section, I would want my child to identify with the Rolling Meadows school. It'll become a community thing. I'll back any proposal so the kids can attend one school "

From the student point of view, Kathy Theile, 4010 S Wren, doesn't think she'll like changing, "but I'll give it a try," she says. Kathy is a freshman at Forest View and will transfer to the new high school her junior year

"I'L GET TO SEE some of the kids I went to junior high with, but I like to meet people We won't have people from different areas. Besides, I like Forest View. I don't want to move but I guess I'll have to."

IT TAKES CONCENTRATION, judgment and a steady arm — not to mention a little luck — to hit that small dot in the center. And this Rolling Meadows William Tell is trying his best to put into effect several weeks of archery training he has received from the park district's archery program. Held at the pistol range every Tuesday night, class instructor Dave Pearce is currently bringing his pupils to the end of 10 weeks of archery instruction, one of the many adult and youth activities now being offered.

Demos Slate Primary Rally March 10

Democratic candidates, who are bidding for state and local offices in the November general election, will convene in Mount Prospect March 10 to attend one of the party's biggest pre-primary rallies scheduled in the Northwest suburban area.

The rally, sponsored by the Elk Grove Township Democratic Organization, will be held in the American Machinists Hall at Dempster Street and Mount Prospect Road beginning at 7 p.m.

And the guest list reads like a list of Who's Who in the Democratic Party in Illinois.

Although all of the Democratic candidates are slated to run unopposed in the March 17 primary, the rally will launch the Democrats' campaign to win the support and votes of residents in the November election.

Adlai Stevenson, candidate for the U. S. Senate, and Edward Warman of Skokie, candidate for Congress in the 13th Dist., are scheduled to attend Tuesday's rally.

OTHER DEMOCRATIC candidates who will participate in the political pow-wow include Paul Shanyfelt of Elk Grove Village, who is seeking the office of stat senator from the 3rd Dist., Michael Bakalis, candidate for Illinois superintendent of Public Instruction; George Dunn of Chicago, the incumbent candidate for president of the Cook County Board of Commissioners.

Dog Story Ends Happily

The story of Pooch, the dog that was living in a clump of trees near Harper College since November, has a happy ending.

The dog, whose name is Boots, was picked up Wednesday after a neighbor of the owners, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Arendt of 252 W Kenilworth, saw the story of Boots in the Herald.

Boots had been living in the trees about 400 feet west of the Roselle-Algonquin road intersection on the north side of Algonquin Road.

Miss Karolyn Bonin said yesterday she read the story describing Boots' plight and "knew right away" the dog was Boots.

THE DOG HAS run away once before, Miss Bonin said, but was found within a month.

"This time," she said, "we had no idea where he was."

Miss Bonin said she drove to the woods and spotted Boots lying down. The dog immediately recognized her, she said, and jumped into her car.

Boots was taken to a local vet who reported yesterday the dog seems to be doing fine. There are "five pounds of burrs" in his hair, however, the vet said.

The Arendts are vacationing in Florida and are expected back in Palatine sometime this weekend.

Several people attempted to catch Boots during his four month stay in the woods. None were successful. It took someone who Boots knew.

There will be at least one happy reunion in Palatine this weekend.

Budgets Are Big Business In District 211

(Last of a Series)

by JUDY BRANDES

Budgets are big business, particularly when they involve $11 million in taxpayers' money. Few taxing bodies in the Northwest suburbs have budgets larger than that of High School Dist. 211.

With the highest tax rate among high school districts in Cook County and the sixth-lowest assessed valuation of 60 Cook County high school districts, the money spent for education in Dist. 211 comes dearly, almost straight from the pockets of local residents.

Since the Dist. 211 school board is solely responsible to the electorate for the funds it spends, it can be expected to keep a careful watch on those funds, know where the dear dollars are going, and be able to justify approval of all expenditures for a questioning public.

BUT THE facts, most of them gleaned from Dist 211 board minutes during the past year, don't support such an assumption. For many years Dist. 211 has operated on a fiscal year which begins July 1 and ends June 30 of the next year.

In preparing an $11 million budget with an expected $1 million deficit, the school district works several months on a tentative budget.

On July 10, 1969, the Dist. 211 board, after a short public hearing, adopted its final budget for this school year. No record of consideration of a tentative budget, which is required in Section 17-1 of the Illinois School Code, appears in the board minutes during the spring and summer months before July.

Nor did the board hold a special public hearing, apart from he regular school board meeting, as is required by law.

Many school boards do hold a public hearing, apart from the regular school board meeting immediately after the public hearing to avoid calling an extra meeting.

THOUGH NOT required by law, taxing bodies like school districts often hold separate public meetings of finance committees for the electorate to hear discussion on pertinent expenditure questions and perhaps offer suggestions.

With no finance committee to review the proposed budget and hold hearings on it, Dist. 211 was unable to let the public know about its upcoming budget, as it has done in years past. A finance committee was not one of the eight committees appointed in the April 24, 1969, organizational meeting of the Dist. 211 board.

Consequently, the burden of preparing the $11 million budget fell on administrative personnel, who received little or no direction from their school board on expenditure priorities or fiscal policies for this year.

Recently, the administration requested the board president appoint a board finance committee to help prepare the 1970-71 budget. This committee should be informed on what is included in next year's budget when the public hearing comes up this summer.

LAST YEAR, according to the official board minutes, no board member mentioned anything about the upcoming $11 million budget while it was being drawn up. And if a tentative budget did reach the board, its acceptance or rejection was not recorded in the board minutes.

Reviewing the budget presented and adopted by the board on July 10, 1969, two funds were not included in the final budget. Three others were grouped together in the revenue section of the building fund budget.

The Bond and Interest Fund and the Site and Construction Fund, totalling a board expenditure of $3.5 million, were excluded from the final budget.

Though the two funds are predetermined by previous commitments of the board through bond sales and contracts for constructing buildings, the board is responsible for the funds.

TAX FUNDS not needed immediately after collection are put into short-term investments to increase revenue. No identifiable figures on the estimated revenue from these two funds is given in the 1969-70 budget.

The $3.5 million, though already allocated by legal contracts, is taxpayers' money and should be accounted for in the budget.

The other three funds that appear in the revenue listing for the building fund are the Liability Insurance, the Life Safety Code and the Special Education levy. The Illinois School Code sets general rules for drawing up budgets, but does not specify how levies for the 10 funds should be reported.

Nor does it indicate that a budget summary of revenue and expenditure be included.

HOWEVER, EASE of understanding where the tax money is being used and how much tax money is being spent prompts most school districts to have separate listings of their tax levies and the monies each yields.

When the Dist. 211 Board approved its final budget, it had no total picture to look at on paper. Despite the fact that $3.5 million was missing from the budget picture, a total of the remaining five funds was not part of the 1969-70 budget either. In essence, the Dist. 211 board approved a budget of a little less than $8 million, yet the district will spend more than $11 million this year.

Once it had passed its 1969-70 budget, questions of priority spending came up

Why a Cop? He 'Needs to be Needed'

by AL GREENE

"Every person needs to be needed."

That is why Raymond Smyk says he is a cop.

The 33-year-old, 6½-year veteran of the Palatine Police Department was patroling his assigned area on a gray morning this week and reflected on why he became a policeman.

"At the beginning," he said, "you say because you want to be a public servant."

But now, he said, there is a certain responsibility.

"My job gives me a good feeling knowing that I can help somebody else . . . when I do something good for somebody."

HE ILLUSTRATES his point by telling of one of the first calls he received. A little girl had been playing on a bridge on a cold day. She stuck out her tongue and it became frozen to the steel railing.

"I was a complete blank," Smyk said. "When I got there, I didn't know what the hell to do."

He called for help. First, flares were used to heat the rail. That didn't work. Next, he tried placing his palms next to her tongue to defrost it. That didn't work.

The fire department arrived, and they tried using olive oil to free the girl. That also failed.

FINALLY, Smyk said, "I figured her tongue was frozen solid, so I took out a pocket knife and cut her away from the metal, leaving a layer of skin."

"When I pulled her away," he said, "she gave me the biggest hug. It gave me the greatest thrill. My chest must have been six feet wide."

"It's things like that that keep a police officer going. It's the one in a thousand that gives you thanks from the heart that matter and makes it worth staying on the job."

Smyk's day began at about 7:45 a.m. when he checked into the police station, answered roll call, received his assignment and listened to the watch commander read the daily bulletin.

THIS DAY, the Palatine police would watch the schools more carefully than usual. They had received a report of a "suspicious person" near a school.

Smyk got into his squad car, checked the equipment and drove off to his assigned area.

He is 5 feet, 8 inches tall and said he just met the minimum physical qualifications for a police officer.

"It's intelligence that counts," he said. "You have to know the law when you approach a citizen. You can make a fool of yourself in public if you don't," he said.

SMYK SAID he liked the day shift because he could be home at night with his family. He also said it was a "safer" shift because the "public is out."

He said the police are more than just coworkers. They are a "close-knit" group who "depend on each other."

When a policeman stops a car, Smyk said, he never really knows what to expect.

When a car is stopped, he said, a policeman in the next area will "wander over to back you up."

"You don't know if you will find a minor traffic violator or "a crazy load of characters."

WHEN ENCOUNTERING a traffic violator who gets abusive, he said, "you can't back away. Once you back away you might as well take the badge off."

The first thing he does when he reaches his assigned area, Smyk said, is to inspect it to find out what's going on. It's called "preventive patroling," he said.

Smyk was on patrol for about an hour when he spotted a stalled car at the intersection of Route 14 and Palatine Road. His job, he said, was to keep traffic from nearing the car and "make sure nobody rams into it."

The driver had gone to a nearby service station and returned with a mechanic who said the car was flooded and started it almost immediately.

FIFTEEN minutes later, Smyk was called to a gas station, where a woman refused to move her car out of the service area.

The attendant said her flat tire could not be repaired and asked her to move the car because he wanted to service other cars.

When Smyk arrived, the woman was persistently talking on the phone. Smyk asked her to move her car twice and she did.

"As soon as I showed up," he said, "she was defensive." Police, he said, are downgraded before saying anything.

"We feel we're second-class citizens," Smyk said, "because we have less rights than the ordinary person."

POLICEMAN Raymond Smyk checks out his radio before going on routine patrol. The hardest part of his job, Smyk says, is staying neutral when two people are involved in a squabble. Most problems are caused by people not wanting to communicate, he says.

Dolik Services Set

Visitation for WO 1.c., Paul E. Dolik of 206 N. Brockway St., Palatine, who was killed in Vietnam, Feb. 23, will be held Sunday from noon until 1:30 p.m. in Ahlgrim and Sons Funeral Home, 201 N. Northwest Highway.

The body will lie in state Monday in Immanuel Lutheran Church, North Plum Grove Road at Wood Street, from noon until the time of the funeral services at 1 p.m.

The Rev. Theodore Braem will preside. Burial will be in Bohemian National Cemetery, Chicago.

Nonpublic School Aid To Be Debated

Last month it was Con-Con.

Tomorrow, the Elementary and Secondary Nonpublic Schools Study Commission, headed by State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, comes to Arlington Heights.

The commission, exploring the explosive issue of state aid to parochial and private schools, will begin its hearings at 9:30 a.m. at the Arlington Park Towers, Wilke Road and Euclid Avenue in Arlington Heights.

Interest in the hearings reached such a pitch Wednesday that Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, announced that a second hearing will be held on March 20 in Hillside, in DuPage County.

That hearing is scheduled primarily for the benefit of those persons not living in the Northwest suburban area. Priority will also be given tomorrow to those who registered earliest to testify.

SCHLICKMAN SAID that anyone who wishes to testify before the commission will be permitted to do so.

A wide variety of persons have indicated that they wish to testify before the commission. The largest number of speakers that have signed up so far come from area Catholic boards and churches and parent-teacher groups.

Also, State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, reportedly is scheduled to testify.

Speakers scheduled to attend include state representatives Edward Copeland, Chicago, and John Matijevich, North Chicago.

Other scheduled speakers include O. A. Candelaria, an Arlington Heights resident and superintendent of Maple School Dist. 30 in Northbrook, and Ronald Brandt, president of the St. Paul Lutheran church board in Mount Prospect.

THE ISSUE OF state aid to nonpublic schools, perhaps the most controversial to face Illinois legislators and educators today, faces both the Illinois legislature and the Constitutional Convention.

Attempts were made during the last session of the legislature to change the state aid formula. Meanwhile, Con-Con is mulling over changing the constitution's powers in regard to aid to nonpublic education.

An indication of the significance of the issue is that Catholic schools held an open house last weekend to dramatize the fact that Catholic education is quality education.

Also, the Catholic weekly, the New World, issued a one-page reprint of the positions on the issue taken by Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie and Lt. Gov. Paul Simon. Both men have supported some form of state aid to nonpublic schools.

As Catholic schools suffer economic problems, the pressures for state aid increase. What the Schlickman commission must consider, in listening to the 30 or so persons that will speak Saturday, is not only whether state aid is desirable, but also if it is desirable, how much and in what form should it be extended.

Anti-Flooding Report Expected Monday

The Palatine Village Board is expected to hear a report Monday night on efforts to alleviate flooding conditions on W. Glade Road.

The Lawrence Wray family, of 203 W. Glade Road, had to be evacuated from their home Tuesday night when a storm sewer backed up and flooded their basement.

Village Trustee Clayton W. Brown, chairman of the village's planning and public works committee, said yesterday he has asked Village Mgr. Berton G. Braun to report on the plans of the U.S. Soil Conservation Department in relation to Salt Creek.

Brown, like Braun, said the problem regarding the west branch of the creek, which gives Glade Road residents the flooding headache, is that the village has no easements to move machinery into the west branch of the creek.

BROWN SAID THE conservation department did not plan to do any work in the west branch, but once it has finished working on the other section of the creek the flooding problem will be eliminated.

He said the implementation of the Salt Creek work is "very close" but he did not know when it would be completed.

Brown said the flooding occurs because the banks of the west branch are six feet higher than the surrounding property "as if the banks were diked."

When the storm sewers were put in, he said, they had to be placed at least three feet below the service and were installed at as flat a pitch as possible.

BECAUSE OF THE low pitch and the height of the banks, he said, the storm sewers cannot empty into the creek.

The only solution, Brown said, is to fill the area near the banks with six feet of fill. This, he said, would be a hardship to other property owners because the filled section would be higher than home foundations and water would start draining into the homes.

Brown said, the original storm sewers were "put in as best as humanly possible."

He said the soil conservation department was planning to adjust the flow of Salt Creek and insure that it will be able to retain and control the creek. This, he said, will eliminate the flooding.

Wray says the best solution for him would be to raise the level of the street in front of his house and raise the level of the storm sewer so that it would be able to empty into the creek.

Busy Days For Wrestlers

During the last two weeks the Palatine Park District wrestling team has been pretty busy, with two dual meets and one quadrangular.

On Feb. 17 the Palatine grapplers defeated Golf Junior High School with a score of 16 to 15. Winning wrestlers for Palatine were Andy Walsh, Chuck Tuttle, John Lonergan, Randy McAlister, Brian Bauer and Bill Countryman.

On Feb. 20 a quadrangular meet was held between Palatine, Iroquois, London Junior High and Holmes Junior High at Palatine High School.

Palatine finished fourth in this meet. The final scores were Iroquois 113, London, 76, Holmes 73, and Palatine 72.

First-place winners for Palatine were John Lonergan, and Brian Bauer. Second places went to Chuck Tuttle, Randy McAlister, and Bruce Deyze. And finishing in third place were Bob Stark, Andy Walsh, Fred Barr, Bill Vountryman and Tom Esmil.

On Feb. 24 Palatine wrestlers went against the Fremd Park District Program. The final score of the meet was Palatine 32, Fremd 20.

Connery To Seek 214 Post

An Arlington Heights resident with 22 years experience in the Chicago school system will soon file petitions for candidacy for the Dist. 214 school board.

Joseph J Connery, 3030 N. Gibbons, said yesterday he will file petitions soon at the Dist. 214 offices and establish his candidacy for one of three seats open on the local high school board of education.

Connery, a resident of the village since 1956, is presently the principal of Steinmetz high school on Chicago's northwest side He holds a doctorate degree in education and has held numerous posts in the Chicago school system.

From 1948-1952 Connery was a teacher in the Chicago public schools. He was awarded his masters degree in education from Loyola University in 1952 and in the same year was named assistant director of the Bureau of School Plant Planning and Population Surveys and was involved in the planning of a $50 million building program.

CONNERY HELD THAT position until 1955 when he was named the first principal of the Hess Upper Grade Center in Lawndale, the school had an enrollment of 2,800 students

In 1960 Connery was named principal of Harlan High School, a post he served in until 1965 when he was appointed principal of Steinmetz.

In addition Connery served as principal of three summer school programs and vocational evening school programs.

Pointing to his years of experience with the Chicago school system, Connery feels he can bring an educator's professional expertise to the Dist. 214 board.

"I HAVE WORKED in many phases of education," he said, "and I think I can bring a real understanding of the problems of high schools to the board."

Connery identifies those problems as personnel matters, financing, and the particular needs of special education programs. He also feels he will bring practical knowledge of the schools to the board, although he emphasized he does not believe school board members should undermine the administrative powers of the district's professional staff.

Asked about the issue of smoking at Prospect High and other Dist. 214 schools, Connery's answer was short: "I don't allow smoking at Steinmetz high school," he said.

The candidate and his wife, Patricia, have seven children. Their eldest daughter, Carol, is a student at Marquette University. She is a graduate of Prospect High and three other Connery children are presently students there. Three other children are still in elementary school.

JOE CONNERY, a man with 22 years experience in the Chicago school system has announced his intention to file petitions for candidacy for the Dist. 214 school board. Connery, an Arlington Heights resident, is presently principal of Chicago's Steinmetz high school.

Arlington Rolls On; Tops Viator

Arlington High School, behind John Brodnan's 29 points, charged into the championship game of the Arlington regional basketball tournament with a 64-54 semi-final victory over neighboring St. Viator last night.

The victory, achieved before a noisy, near-capacity crowd in the Arlington gym, gave George Zigman's Cardinals the right to take on another cross-town and Mid-Suburban League rival, Hersey, for the title tonight. The game, expected to attract a capacity crowd of about 4,000, will begin at 7:30.

Hersey and Arlington have already met twice this year, with the Cardinals winning both times — 55-45 at Hersey in the league opener early in December and 51-45 at Arlington last month.

THE DEFEAT eliminated St. Viator from the tourney and ended its season with 13 wins, 14 losses. The Lions had defeated Palatine, while Arlington had downed Mundelein in first-round games last Tuesday. Hersey defeated Fremd, 67-53, in the other semi-final game Wednesday night.

Arlington, which won the Mid-Suburban League crown this year with a 13-1 record, ran its over-all mark to 18-6 last night. In the process, the Cards gained revenge for a 59-45 loss to St. Viator in semi-final action in last year's regional at Palatine.

Brodnan, a 6-1 junior, dazzled the crowd and riddled St. Viator defenders with spectacular moves and drives and a fine touch from outside. Brodnan has been Arlington's highest scorer all season and was third in the Mid-Suburban League with a 19.7 average.

FORWARDS MIKE MANDELE and Jack Hult and center Bill Kieck helped the Cardinals' cause with strong rebounding and good shooting from in close. Arlington was able to penetrate well all the way, while St. Viator could not and had to rely on shots from much farther out.

Arlington led at halftime, 31-25. St. Viator managed to stay in the game with the rebounding of its 6-6 center, Dave Kaskie, and fine outside shooting by guard Terry Cullen (who led the Lions with 15 points) and Bob Rech, who had 10. Mike Pettenuzzo played a good all-around game and had 14 for St. Viator.

The Cardinals never trailed in the game, jumping to a quick 5-0 lead after a minute and 15 seconds. Guard Bill Heffernan hit a long shot with just seven seconds gone, Kieck followed with a short one and Mandele sank a free throw

ST. VIATOR retaliated with baskets by Rech and Pettenuzzo, but Arlington stayed in command, moving to an 11-5 lead on two buckets from short range by Mandele and Brodnan's first basket, from the side.

Rech hit two more baskets after Kaskie scored on a fine move, but Mandele's eight first-quarter points, plus another goal from the side by Kieck, gave Arlington a 17-12 lead after a quarter.

St. Viator made one comeback move to start the second quarter, with two long shots by Kaskie and Rech and a Pettenuzzo free throw closing the margin to 19-17, with Hult keeping Arlington ahead with a rebound basket.

BUT ARLINGTON broke away from that two-point difference and expanded it to 27-17 after a bullseye from the top of the key by Hult and two long ones just 20 seconds apart by Brodnan.

A drive by Pettenuzzo was offset by Kieck's basket. St. Viator closed the gap to 29-25 on a jumper by Cullen, three free throws by Kaskie and one by Pettenuzzo. The first of Brodnan's beautiful drives with just two seconds left in the half gave Arlington a 31-25 lead at that juncture.

Brodnan exploded for 21 of his points in the second half, 10 in the third quarter when Arlington asserted its superiority by pulling away for the last time.

BRODNAN STARTED the hot streak with a pair of free throws and later in the period hot on two 15-footers and two more flashy drives. Ken Peters helped with a basket from long range. The Lions managed just six points in the third quarter and trailed 46-31 at its conclusion.

St. Viator, desperate to get the ball, tried a pressing defense in the fourth quarter, but to no avail Arlington easily broke the press for easy layups to stay safely in front, despite Cullen's hot shooting from outside.

Mass Inoculation Program Set In Mid-April?

A mass immunization program to inoculate 50,000 Northwest suburban children, aged 5 through 10, against Rubella (German measles) may take place in mid-April.

Northwest Community Hospital officials met with representatives from 11 public school districts and spokesmen from Catholic and Lutheran schools in the area for a preliminary planning session last night.

The primary reason for the program is to reduce or eliminate the risk of expectant mothers contracting the disease

Dr. A. Y DeRamos told the group that women that have German measles in early pregnancy run a high risk of having babies with blindness, brain damage, deafness or heart defects.

OUTBREAKS OF German measles have run in cycles and the next cycle may take place this year, Dr DeRamos said.

Pregnant women cannot be inoculated themselves as doctors do not know the effect of the vaccine on unborn infants.

Cost for the inoculation to parents will be $2. The amount, higher than the actual cost of the injection, will help defray expenses for families who are unable to pay.

Burton Chotiner, assistant administrator of Northwest Community Hospital, said that the tentative dates selected for the inoculation program are April 14 through April 20.

School administrators asked if expectant mothers could catch German measles from a child who received the vaccine. Dr. DeRamos passed out a letter from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare stating that the risk is insignificant.

DR. DeRAMOS SAID the risk, if any, would be much smaller than the possibility of women catching the disease from a child who had the illness.

The physician also pointed out that he knew of no undesirable side effects from the vaccine.

School districts committed to the program last night include Arlington Heights Dist. 25; Mount Prospect Dist. 57; Elk Grove Village Dist. 59; Prospect Heights Dist. 23; Wheeling Dist. 21; Rolling Meadows-Palatine Dist. 15 and River Trails Dist. 26.

Districts 15 and 59 as well as Schaumburg Dist. 54 and Barrington Hills Dist. 1 are highly committed to the program but said they would like further details before a final commitment.

Reports Are Due On Transportation

The first reports for future mass transportation needs in Mount Prospect will be made by members of the Mount Prospect Chamber of Commerce Monday.

A meeting of the chamber's mass transportation committee, including the five subcommittees, will meet at 9:30 a.m. in the Mount Prospect State Bank, according to Paul Dasso, chamber president.

Dick Hughes is chairman of the transportation committee.

Areas to be reported by subcommittee chairmen include whether large or mini-buses should be used, cost of implementing the mass transportation system and what routes might be used.

THE IDEA OF implementing bus service in Mount Prospect was proposed at a meeting sponsored by the chamber earlier this year and it was hoped that it could be implemented on a six-month trial basis by this April.

Dasso said the chamber's mass transit study is not affiliated with another proposed study of mass transportation, sponsored by the Northwest Municipal Conference (NWMC).

"We want to get something into action in Mount Prospect quick. We aren't connected, as yet anyway, with that study," he said.

Earlier this week the Mount Prospect Village Board voted to participate in the NWMC study and agreed to appropriate $3,000 to help finance the project.

Purpose of this study is to determine the transportation needs of specific groups in each of the 15 communities involved and will include an examination of the transportation needs of residents, senior citizens, students, industry and commerce.

THE $3,000 EXPENDITURE is based on a 10-cent per capita contribution by each of the municipalities in the conference and would raise more than $34,000, if each contributed their share.

However, Elk Grove Village and Hoffman Estates so far have declined to contribute to the study.

Mount Prospect Mayor Bob Teichert has endorsed both transportation studies, the one by the chamber and the other by the NWMC.

He also said there is a need to correlate transportation and traffic studies conducted by each of the towns because a solution to the problem would require a joint effort. The village is also participating in the chamber's study.

Hughes said earlier this year that no accurate cost estimate of the chamber's project could be made until more information is gathered, but said a "ball park" figure would be about $25,000. A closer estimation is expected to be made at the meeting Monday.

IF IMPLEMENTED, the bus service in Mount Prospect would be maintained from 9 to 14 hours a day to serve residents and commuters who use the Chicago and North Western R.R. to get to work each day.

The titles and members of the subcommittees are:

Governmental assistance, Village Mgr. Virgil Barnett and Ben Trapani; industrial participation, Phil Cushing and Hughes; modes of transportation and routes, Alfred Sieck, Bob Birks, Nick Drakos and Louis Valasco, financing, Harold Carlson and Birks, and commercial participation, Drakos and Valasco.

Hughes said there would be a north-south route within the corporate limits of Mount Prospect.

THE CHAMBER EARLIER met with United Motor Coach Co officials to find out if they were interested in providing such a bus service and they said they were, if it would pay.

United Motor Coach currently services the village from the Chicago and North Western station along Route 83 to Dundee Road.

Birks, owner of the Prospect Cab Co, said in January he thought it would be too expensive to operate large buses on a regular basis in Mount Prospect and suggested mini-buses

Chen Has Service And Tasty Cuisine

By DAVE PALERMO

There's very little heart in business. It's a jungle. Survival of the fittest

Wen Chen, 53, of 904 Hemlock Lane in Mount Prospect, got the notion about three months ago that he was going to do something for the community. He was going to open a Chinese restaurant with "friendliness, warmness, neatness, speed in service, and tasty, top-grade Oriental cuisine."

WEN CHEN

Chen, who purchased the Pagoda restaurant at the Golf Mill Shopping Center, figured if he made a few bucks with the place so much the better But his primary concern was treating the customer "honestly, openly and speedily."

Most people find that hard to believe: The fact that a restaurateur isn't obsessed with profit, and merely wants to help people. Especially today.

BUT CHEN isn't a restaurateur. He wants to do something that perhaps isn't possible. He's trying to appeal to people's emotions. He wants the business to be successful through "community effort."

To understand Chen you have to talk to him. Ask him about his Christian background. Ask why he decided to go into the restuarant business.

Chen didn't really need the money. A mining engineer and manager of process development with Roberts and Schaefer, a Chicago firm, Chen was making a good enough income to help his daughter, Laura, a second year math student at Northwestern, with her college education.

His wife for 25 years as of last Wednesday, Jeanne, has a master's degree in music from the American Conservatory of Music, and instructs 40 piano and voice students.

"It was more or less an inspiration; there was a need for Chinese food in America," he explained. "I want to do something for the community."

CHEN, WHO LEFT China in 1945 and has never returned, says he "needs help from the community." That's not hard to understand for just about everybody opening a new business needs help in the form of patronage. But the way Chen puts it, he's not being selfish about it.

"I need a tremendous amount of help . . .moral support," he said, sitting in a corner table in the almost empty restaurant. I'm not exactly patronizing people. I'm just here to help the community . . . to give good food efficiently and so on.

"If they need the service, then I'm here to offer the service. An individual like myself may be lacking some . . . ah . . . strength I'd like this to be a group effort in which people in the community all join hands to get this idea materialized."

Chen's finding the restuarant business a difficult on In fact, re admits he's losing money. He said he needs to take in $200 a day to afford the two chefs he employs, and he's not.

THE MENU is a complete one, consisting almost entirely of Chinese dishes except for the old reliable hamburgr There's egg foo young, 14 varieties of chop suey with rice, 13 varieties of chow mein with noodles, six varieties of fried rice and other dishes which give the taste buds an adventure.

Thre are about 15 tables in the restaurant, which employs about 10 people. There's also a bar which Chen hopes to open as a food counter if business picks up

Chen said he read an article about four years ago that Chinese food consumption in the U. S. has gone up about 50 per cent each year. This is one of the primary reasons he felt the venture would be a successful one.

"If I would have known all I'd have to go through, I might not have done it," he said.

CHEN IS finding the going rough. The first day he opened for business he didn't have any cooks and the profits for the day consisted of $8.34 worth of cheeseburgers prepared at a nearby cafeteria.

The family all chips in to keep the place going His son Milt, 17, who plans to attend either Harvard or Yale after graduating from Hersey High School, keeps the place moving nights.

His other daughter, Debbie, 8, keeps busy by folding napkins.

Bernholdt Is Named Promotion Director

Paul Bernholdt of 540 Edgewood Lane, Elk Grove Village, is activities promotion director for the Rotary International, it was announced recently.

His department promotes Interact, Rotaract, youth exchange program, and world community service.

Bernholdt has been with Rotary International, which is a worldwide service association, since 1966.

Little Cagers End Season

The Junior Basketball League, sponsored by the Palatine Park District and the YMCA held its consolation and championship games recently.

Of the teams, which have been competing for the last 10 weeks, only four survived the process of elimination and went on to compete for the championship.

The consolation game was played between the Pirates and the Wildcats, with the Wildcats coming out on top. Leading scorers for the Wildcats were Jim Sprinkle with 16 points, and Barry Christensen, with 10 points. High scorers for the Pirates were Mike Collins with 16 points and Marty Fenton with 11.

The championship game was a low-scoring defensive dual between the Panthers and the Warriors, who were victorious with a 28-24 score.

For the winners Sal Fioretti with 12 points and Tim Ganatos with 9 points led the scoring. The top scoring Panther was Ed Shortly with 10 points

Trophies were awarded to both the first and second place team. The final standings for the park district-YMCA League are as follows: Pirates, 8 won and 2 lost; Warriors, 5 and 5; Bombers, 2 and 8; Rams, 1 and 9; Division II, 8 and 2; Panthers, 7 and 3; Bulls, 6 and 4; and Heavens Devils, 3 and 7.

Youth Charged With Theft, Pot Possession

A 20-year-old Algonquin youth was charged with theft of merchandise and possession of marijuana by Mount Prospect police Wednesday.

Kenneth M. Grzesik, a McHenry County Junior College student, was charged with the theft of a $12 pair of men's pants from Wieboldt's department store at Randhurst Shopping Center following a complaint signed by a Wieboldt's security agent.

At the time of the arrest, Mount Prospect police found five marijuana cigarettes in Grzesik's possession and charged him with possession of marijuana.

Grzesik is scheduled to appear on both charges in Niles Court March 24.

'Viet-Rock' Comes Off Convincingly

by MURRAY DUBIN

They looked as if they were ready to picket something.

The hair, the headbands, the peace and love symbols made you think they beonged in Champaign-Urbana rather than on the stage of the Mill Run Playhouse rehearsing tomorrow's performance of "Viet-Rock."

But as casual as they appeared and as unconcerned as they acted, when the lights went on and the music began, the 17 people in the "Viet-Rock" cast fused into a cohesive performing unit.

The funny musical, called "a contemporary study of our war," combines macabre humor with uproarious overstatement and a sobering look at the blood and guts of war.

STICKING LIKE glue to the Vietnam war, the cast sings, dances, curses, praises and laughs about the conflict. Revolving before the audience's eye on the circular stage, the Loyola and Mundelein drama students play cowboys and Indians in the first act and American and South Vietnamese troops later on.

Particularly convincing in his performance as an Army sergeant was Bill Jaeger, a long-haired, thin actor who reminded you of every "you should a seen my sergeant" story you've ever heard.

The only lapse from the Vietnam theme was the rousing number "The Onion That Ate Chicago," but even that, with blind justice falling off her pedestal, had strains of Vietnam running through it.

The second act began more quietly than the first, with the opening number "Please God" chilling the attentive audience. But the razor-edged lines are only a minute away as the sergeant says, "Spill your blood, boobies! That's the highest form of love."

KRIS KUNZ, a leggy redhead who had "The Loner" stenciled to the back of her dungaree jacket, was great in the second act and through the entire show. Involved in the last three musical numbers of the show, she exemplified the enthusiasm and fervor that the entire cast brought to the theater with them.

The show's music will never rival that of "Hair," but it is adequate and Bubbles Lasowski and the Boys in the Band provide an effective background sound.

The performance, sponsored by the Northwest Suburban Peace Coalition, will begin at 8 p.m. and will feature Curtis MacDougall, a Democratic candidate for the 13th Congressional District race, speaking before the performance.

Nonpublic School Aid To Be Debated

Last month it was Con-Con.

Tomorrow, the Elementary and Secondary Nonpublic Schools Study Commission, headed by State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, comes to Arlington Heights.

The commission, exploring the explosive issue of state aid to parochial and private schools, will begin its hearings at 9:30 a.m at the Arlington Park Towers, Wilke Road and Euclid Avenue in Arlington Heights.

Interest in the hearings reached such a pitch Wednesday that Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, announced that a second hearing will be held on March 20 in Hillside, in DuPage County.

That hearing is scheduled primarily for the benefit of those persons not living in the Northwest suburban area. Priority will also be given tomorrow to those who registered earliest to testify.

SCHLICKMAN SAID that anyone who wishes to testify before the commission will be permitted to do so

A wide variety of persons have indicated that they wish to testify before the commission. The largest number of speakers that have signed up so far come from area Catholic boards and churches and parent-teacher groups.

Also, State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, reportedly is scheduled to testify.

Speakers scheduled to attend include state representatives Edward Copeland, Chicago, and John Matijevich, North Chicago.

Other scheduled speakers include O. A. Candelaria, an Arlington Heights resident and superintendent of Maple School Dist. 30 in Northbrook, and Ronald Brandt, president of the St. Paul Lutheran church board in Mount Prospect.

THE ISSUE OF state aid to nonpublic schools, perhaps the most controversial to face Illinois legislators and educators today, faces both the Illinois legislature and the Constitutional Convention.

Attempts were made during the last session of the legislature to change the state aid formula. Meanwhile, Con-Con is mulling over changing the constitution's powers in regard to aid to nonpublic education.

An indication of the significance of the issue is that Catholic schools held an open house last weekend to dramatize the fact that Catholic education is quality education.

Also, the Catholic weekly, the New World, issued a one-page reprint of the positions on the issue taken by Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie and Lt. Gov. Paul Simon. Both men have supported some form of state aid to nonpublic schools.

As Catholic schools suffer economic problems, the pressures for state aid increase. What the Schlickman commission must consider, in listening to the 30 or so persons that will speak Saturday, is not only whether state aid is desirable, but also if it is desirable, how much and in what form should it be extended.

Officer 'Fishes' Cash Out of 'Grand' Puddle

Money isn't everything, unless you don't have any.

And the Sanitary Plumbing Co., of Chicago might have been out about $1,000 Monday, if Mount Prospect Det. Richard Pascoe didn't find a white business envelope which had fallen in a rain puddle behind a Mount Prospect apartment building.

The envelope, which Pascoe found while investigating a case in the apartment building at 1105 Cottonwood St., was addressed to the Uptown National Bank of Chicago and contained about $1,000 in checks to be deposited in the Sanitary Plumbing Co.'s bank account.

The bookkeeper for the plumbing company, who lives at 1105 Cottonwood, told police he apparently dropped the envelope in the parking lot earlier Monday. Police released the checks to the bookkeeper.

Observe World Day of Prayer

Mrs. William Glab of the Lutheran Church of the Holy Spirit will represent Elk Grove Village today at 1 p.m. at a world day of prayer observance in Hoffman Estates.

The observance is a joint service by several area churches at our Saviour's United Methodist Church 611 E. Golf Road.

World day of prayer is sponsored by the Church Women United and will be celebrated in 25,000 communities in the United States.

From the Library

Films Available

by LAURIE ROSSI

The Mount Prospect Public Library is still doing a great business with its 8mm films, and has been consistently adding to their collection to meet the demand and correlate with cardholders interests.

This winter, over a dozen were added to the already popular collection. Again, the subject matter of these new films covers a variety of tastes.

Included in the new group of films are "A Day at Disneyland," "Expo '67," "The Great Train Robbery," W. C. Fields in "The Barbershop," "World Without Sun," "Victory over the Luftwaffe," "The Nativity of our Lord," "Barnum and Ringling, Inc.," and many more.

The 8mm films may be taken out for two weeks at a time, and can be shown on any home movie projector for 8mm film. This feature makes them extra convenient for parties, family entertainment, or rainy days.

The Mount Prospect library is open weekdays 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., Saturdays 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., and Sundays 2 to 5 p.m.

'Sleepy Hollow' Set

"The Legend of Sleepy Hollow," a musical puppet show, will be presented by students at River Trails Junior High School, 1000 Wolf Road, Mount Prospect, Saturday, March 14, at 8 p.m.

Admission to the show is free.

Shadow Looming

by EDITH FREUND

Abbie Hoffman came to Mount Prospect Feb. 23, stood behind Sheriff Joe Woods and laughed.

The trial was nothing. It was a cesspool of words, grinding itself out in newspapers, television stations, in the courtroom and around it. They were talking to themselves after the first two or three weeks, those attorneys, newsmen and involved spectators.

We were busy getting ready for Christmas in the suburbs, and except for a backhand thought about the jurors' Christmas, we gave it little attention.

The purpose of Abbie Hoffman and his friends was to make fools of government. The purpose of the government was to make a fool, better yet a criminal, of Abbie Hoffman and Co. It was their thing and we let them stew in the juice of their own discontent while we held joy to the world.

Nobody won.

AT LEAST, NOT until Joe Woods came to town last week. Until Feb. 23, they were all fools together, and they were over there. Some place else. They didn't affect you and me here in the quiet suburb of Mount Prospect as we took our trains in the morning, went to church with a Bible in our hand or shopped for our groceries.

To understand the entire situation it is necessary to understand about Joe Woods as somebody in Prosepct Heights understands him. To compare Woods to Don Quixote would insult that earnest gentleman. But Woods is inclined to rush off to tilt with law and order windmills in Indiana, while the folks in Prospect Heights can never find a policeman when they want one.

Sheriff Woods and Abbie Hoffman in the same jail must be marvelous, no matter what their respective positions there might be. It must be the same as trying to store gasoline next to a lighted match. Wherever they are together, whatever their point of view, we would have an explosion out of all proportion to the elements originally involved.

THE TRIAL, the riots, the screaming protests, are all events that move to their natural conclusions. It is their shadow that comes to us here, looming larger and less easy to fight than the event as it takes place.

Are they communists, these Abbie Hoffmans? Joe Woods says so. But Communism is an ideology that can be argued with, that can be offset by our own better way of life. How do we offset the stylized temper tantrums of grown-up children? Any mother can give the answer, but nobody will listen now because the time is past for that answer.

The purpose of the agitators is to agitate, to cause such confusion and unpleasantness that the people of the land will cry out for rigid controls. And those great thinkers of government, the Joe Woods of this world, will answer with restrictive, reactionary controls.

Then the same people, fickle and unthinking, will rise up and threw off the oppressive rules and with it the government we have today. Ridiculous? No. Remember prohibition? The same people who voted for it, drank bathtub gin, laughed at the law, allowed the growth of gangsterism and voted, finally, for the law's repeal.

THE PURPOSE of Abbie Hoffman is to provoke rigid governmental reaction in order to overthrow that very government someday with the help of the same people who now cheer and applaud his haircut. He and his friends can't do it alone. They need us and the Elk Grove Republicans.

For sometime in the future we could have such rigid governmental laws regarding haircuts, the Bible we carry and the train we are allowed to take into the city that even these phlegmatic Elk Grove Republicans might object. The same haircut given Hoffman might seem different when applied to Carl Hansen.

Abbie Hoffman with his tousled, itchy hair and four-letter words on his forehead is his business. Unfortunately, the government made it their business. Although we tried to ignore it, Joe Woods brought it to town and made it our business.

It's true that the business of government only seems oppressive when somebody else is the government. But those of us with imagination can foresee a time when the government might be somebody else.

And that's why Abbie Hoffman was standing there that Monday night, like a ghost of Christmas yet to come, laughing.

Brooks: Academy Is Success

Workers May Boycott Nurseries in Spring

A boycott of area nurseries is being planned by the Latin American Community Organization (LACO), according to Louis Archbold, a member of Neighbors at Work (NAW) Inc., in Elk Grove Village.

He said some nurseries which do not provide adequate housing and decent wages for their workers will be boycotted this spring. He did not name any nurseries.

Merry Men Won't Wait

If Palatine youngsters show up at community park this Saturday to catch the bus for the Goodman Theater to see "Robin Hood," they'll be a little late.

The Herald goofed by reporting the wrong time for the park district's trip to the children's play. Instead of 2 p.m., the bus will leave Palatine at 10:30 a.m.

Clyde Brooks said recently he considered the Sidewalk Academy a success.

Brooks is president of Educational Laboratories, sponsor of the academy, a series of controversial speaking engagements that concluded last week at Forest View High School in Arlington Heights.

"I've has many letters of congratulations and phone calls that indicated the program was a success. People considered it healthy," he said.

"There were statements of disagreement of what was said, but these are healthy," said Brooks, a resident of Elk Grove Village.

Clyde Brooks

AMONG THE SPEAKERS who appeared in the five weeks of talks were: Reverend George Riddick of Operation Breadbasket, Dr. Charles Hurst, president of Malcolm X College, Bobby Rush of the Black Panthers, the Rev. Francis Lawlor of the Southwest Associated Block Clubs, Renault Robinson, president of the Afro-Patrolman's League, Leonard Weinglass, a lawyer for the Conspiracy 7, Matthew Bonds, president of an African-American History group, and the Rev. Rollins Lambert, of St. Dorothy's Catholic Church in Chicago.

All of the speakers have appeared on television talk shows, Brooks said.

Brooks asserted that one of the functions of the academy was to provide information on some of the pressing issues of the day.

"It was simply an honest attempt to provide information," Brooks said, adding, "I personally disagreed with some of the things some of the speakers said."

ONE CRITICISM THAT has been voiced at the academy series was that it did not provide conservative speakers.

"We tried," said Brooks, "but conservatives are more bashful and shy than liberals."

He said all of the speakers were not liberals. Rev. Lambert and Bonds, were moderates while Rev. Lawlor was a conservative, he said.

Brooks said it did not appear likely another Sidewalk Academy would be held in the Northwest Suburbs but that one may be held in other parts of the state.

"Educational Laboratories is state-wide, not just for Northwest Cook County," he said.

EXPLAINING THE purpose of the five-month-old organization, he said it rested primarily in curriculum development and human relations.

He said he plans to continue to work with schools for the improvement in the teaching of black history, in addition to improving relations between the races.

"I like to think of Educational Laboratories as an educational ministry," Brooks concluded.

Pollution Seen As 'Grave' Problem

by BETSY BROOKER

They may not be old enough to vote, but many teens today are more concerned about their country than their parents.

Last month a class of journalism students at Hersey High School in Arlington Heights published a special issue of their school newspaper that included no less than 11 articles on pollution.

At a seminar held yesterday, these same students discussed the pollution problem and suggested solutions

The problem is especially relevant to them, the teens say, because they are the generation of the future.

"Our parents don't have to worry about this," said Brendan O'Connell, "But we are growing up, and we have been told our children won't live to reach high school. Our parents will probably be gone by then.

"I worry about having a baby that will have to grow up wearing a gas mask," said Diane Gardner. "The suburbs aren't going to stay the same. People are calling them the 'slurbs' now because the houses are made out of cardboard.

"BY 1985 THE city will be stretching from Chicago to Pittsburg," added Diane.

These students were not always aware of the pollution problem. They said they didn t realize how serious the situation was until they had seen it featured recently in the media.

Concern over pollution is not just a fad though, they say. "It has just finally become grave enough for people to notice it," said Ted Moravec.

Now, the students want to share their concern with others, "before it is too late"

Changing attitudes is the first step to ending pollution, according to the students. But this change must be worked within the system through legislation, "the democratic way."

No one is "pro-pollution," but if they aren't against it, they are apathetic, said the students. "And it is fine to be concerned about pollution until alleviating it hits your pocketbook," pointed out Bill Stark

"THE PSYCHOLOGY OF the United States is very capitalistic," said Brendan. "As long as you make money, nothing really matters. We have to change this psychology"

"We need a reversal of the American spirit," agreed Diane. "The spirit, in the past, has always been to go west after the environment is exploited. First it was the New World, then California and now the moon

"The incentive wasn't given to the person who could find the best way of making peace, but to the person who could make more," added Diane.

How can attitudes be changed? The journalism students admit they are a minority even in their own school. But the minority is powerful enough according to Debbie Zukowki. "People who really care, like Ralph Nader, can do it within the system."

RADICAL TACTICS WILL only polarize people, Ted pointed out. "We have to work in the system," added Bill, "Because carrying signs only turns people off."

"But it is not good enough to just be concerned," said Andrea Demarest. "We also have to do something about it."

Changing legislation is the answer, said the students. "The discrepancy between technical advances and changes in government is a gap that gets wider and wider," Diane pointed out.

Ted suggested writing congressmen and Debbie added that the "social lawyer" can be very effective.

The most urgent solution is population control, according to the students. "It is ironic," said Debbie, "that we are so technically advanced, but we can't curb our population."

"FORCIBLE GOVERNMENT regulation of the family's size is pretty totalitarian," said Ted. "But the government can offer an incentive like a tax exemption."

On a more personal level, the students said they intend to educate people through their own influence. Some of them plan to continue with journalism and expose the problem in the media, others plan to teach, and others said they can be influential by just being a "concerned citizen."

Little Cagers End Season

The Junior Basketball League, sponsored by the Palatine Park District and the YMCA held its consolation and championship games recently.

Of the teams, which have been competing for the last 10 weeks, only four survived the process of elimination and went on to compete for the championship.

The consolation game was played between the Pirates and the Wildcats, with the Wildcats coming out on top. Leading scorers for the Wildcats were Jim Sprinkle with 16 points, and Barry Christensen, with 10 points. High scorers for the Pirates were Mike Collins with 16 points and Marty Fenton with 11.

The championship game was a low-scoring defensive dual between the Panthers and the Warriors, who were victorious with a 28-24 score.

For the winners Sal Fioretti with 12 points and Tim Ganatos with 9 points led the scoring. The top scoring Panther was Ed Shortly with 10 points.

Trophies were awarded to both the first and second place team The final standings for the park district-YMCA League are as follows: Pirates, 8 won and 2 lost; Warriors, 5 and 5; Bombers, 2 and 8; Rams, 1 and 9; Division II, 8 and 2; Panthers, 7 and 3; Bulls, 6 and 4; and Heavens Devils, 3 and 7.

On Dean's List At Iowa State

Five area students have been named to the fall quarter dean's list at Iowa State University at Ames.

They include Jean E. Milburn of 742 S. Beverly Lane, Arlington Heights, an applied art-interior design major; David J. Schimpf, a botany major of 416 W. Fairview St., Arlington Heights; and Brian E. Campbell of 270 Ida Road, Hoffman Estates, an electrical engineering major.

Also, Melinda S. Breit, an elementary education major, of 2035 Frost, Palatine; and David S. Derezotes of 2405 Meadow Drive, Rolling Meadows, Majoring in aerospace engineering.

Demos Slate Primary Rally

Democratic candidates, who are bidding for state and local offices in the November general election, will convene in Mount Prospect March 10 to attend one of the party's biggest pre-primary rallies scheduled in the Northwest suburban area.

The rally, sponsored by the Elk Grove Township Democratic Organization, will be held in the American Machinists Hall at Dempster Street and Mount Prospect Road beginning at 7 p.m.

And the guest list reads like a list of Who's Who in the Democratic Party in Illinois.

Although all of the Democratic candidates are slated to run unopposed in the March 17 primary, the rally will launch the Democrats' campaign to win the support and votes of residents in the November election.

Adlai Stevenson, candidate for the U. S. Senate, and Edward Warman of Skokie, candidate for Congress in the 13th Dist., are scheduled to attend Tuesday's rally.

OTHER DEMOCRATIC candidates who will participate in the political pow-wow include Paul Shanyfelt of Elk Grove Village, who is seeking the office of stat senator from the 3rd Dist.; Michael Bakalis, candidate for Illinois superintendent of Public Instruction; George Dunn of Chicago, the incumbent casdidate for presicago, the incumbent candidate for presisioners.

Michael Bakalis

Ray Krier of Skokie, candidate for state central committeeman from the 13th Congressional District, and Chester Chesney, who will run unopposed for reelection as Elk Grove Township Democratic committeeman.

Chesney of Mount Prospect, a former Illinois congressman, will introduce the candidates at Tuesday's rally. "We think our March 10 rally will be the greatest political event of the pre-primary season in the Northwest suburbs for either party," he said.

"The Democratic party expects to gather more votes in the Northwest suburban area this November than ever before. These could be the votes that will mean victory in some offices," Chesney said.

Women To Gather For Prayer Day

Schaumburg Township women will gather at Our Saviour's United Methodist Church, 611 East Golf Goad, Hoffman Estates, today at 1 p m. to observe World Day of Prayer

World Day of Prayer is sponsored by Church Women United and will be celebrated in 25,000 communities in the United States. Women will join millions in prayer throughout the world in 75 languages and 1,000 dialects.

The prayers will be asking for courage to act responsibly during the coming year.

Our Saviour's program will include a message from Michael Roschke, vicar of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Mount Prospect, and student at Concordia Theological Seminary, St. Louis.

Nursery service will be provided and a get acquainted coffee will follow the program. Women from Hoffman Estates, Schaumburg, Hanover Park and Elk Grove Village will participate in the program.

Mass Inoculation Program Set In Mid-April?

A mass immunization program to inoculate 50,000 Northwest suburban children, aged 5 through 10, against Rubella (German measles) may take place in mid-April.

Northwest Community Hospital officials met with representatives from 11 public school districts and spokesmen from Catholic and Lutheran schools in the area for a preliminary planning session last night.

The primary reason for the program is to reduce or eliminate the risk of expectant mothers contracting the disease.

Dr. A. Y. DeRamos told the group that women that have German measles in early pregnancy run a high risk of having babies with blindness, brain damage, deafness or heart defects.

OUTBREAKS OF German measles have run in cycles and the next cycle may take place this year, Dr. DeRamos said.

Pregnant women cannot be inoculated themselves as doctors do not know the effect of the vaccine on unborn infants.

Cost for the moculation to parents will be $2. The amount, higher than the actual cost of the injection, will help defray expenses for families who are unable to pay.

Burton Chotiner, assistant administrator of Northwest Community Hospital, said that the tentative dates selected for the inoculation program are April 14 through April 20.

School administrators asked if expectant mothers could catch German measles from a child who received the vaccine. Dr. DeRamos passed out a letter from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare stating that the risk is insignificant.

DR. DeRAMOS SAID the risk, if any, would be much smaller than the possibilty of women catching the disease from a child who had the illness.

The physician also pointed out that he knew of no undesirable side effects from the vaccine.

School districts committed to the program last night include Arlington Heights Dist. 25; Mount Prospect Dist. 57; Elk Grove Village Dist. 59; Prospect Heights Dist. 23; Wheeling Dist. 21; Rolling Meadows-Palatine Dist. 15 and River Trails Dist. 26.

Districts 15 and 59 as well as Schaumburg Dist. 54 and Barrington Hills Dist. 1 are highly committed to the program but said they would like further details before a final commitment.

Reports Are Due On Transportation

The first reports for future mass transportation needs in Mount Prospect will be made by members of the Mount Prospect Chamber of Commerce Monday.

A meeting of the chamber's mass transportation committee, including the five subcommittees, will meet at 9:30 a.m. in the Mount Prospect State Bank, according to Paul Dasso, chamber president.

Dick Hughes is chairman of the transportation committee.

Areas to be reported by subcommittee chairmen include whether large or mini-buses should be used, cost of implementing the mass transportation system and what routes might be used.

THE IDEA OF implementing bus service in Mount Prospect was proposed at a meeting sponsored by the chamber earlier this year and it was hoped that it could be implemented on a six-month trial basis by this April.

Dasso said the chamber's mass transit study is not affiliated with another proposed study of mass transportation, sponsored by the Northwest Municipal Conference (NWMC).

"We want to get something into action in Mount Prospect quick. We aren't connected, as yet anyway, with that study," he said.

Earlier this week the Mount Prospect Village Board voted to participate in the NWMC study and agreed to appropriate $3,000 to help finance the project.

Purpose of this study is to determine the transportation needs of specific groups in each of the 15 communities involved and will include an examination of the transportation needs of residents, senior citizens, students, industry and commerce.

THE $3,000 EXPENDITURE is based on a 10-cent per capita contribution by each of the municipalities in the conference and would raise more than $34,000, if each contributed their share.

However, Elk Grove Village and Hoffman Estates so far have declined to contribute to the study.

Mount Prospect Mayor Bob Teichert has endorsed both transportation studies, the one by the chamber and the other by the NWMC.

He also said there is a need to correlate transportation and traffic studies conducted by each of the towns because a solution to the problem would require a joint effort. The village is also participating in the chamber's study.

Hughes said earlier this year that no accurate cost estimate of the chamber's project could be made until more information is gathered, but said a "ball park" figure would be about $25,000. A closer estimation is expected to be made at the meeting Monday.

IF IMPLEMENTED, the bus service in Mount Prospect would be maintained from 9 to 14 hours a day to serve residents and commuters who use the Chicago and North Western R.R. to get to work each day.

The titles and members of the subcommittees are:

Governmental assistance, Village Mgr. Virgil Barnett and Ben Trapani; industrial participation, Phil Cushing and Hughes; modes of transportation and routes, Alfred Sieck, Bob Burks, Nick Drakos and Louis Valasco; financing, Harold Carlson and Birks; and commercial participation, Drakos and Valasco.

Hughes said there would be a north-south route within the corporate limits of Mount Prospect.

THE CHAMBER EARLIER met with United Motor Coach Co. officials to find out if they were interested in providing such a bus service and they said they were, if it would pay.

United Motor Coach currently services the village from the Chicago and North Western station along Route 83 to Dundee Road.

Burks, owner of the Prospect Cab Co., said in January he thought it would be too expensive to operate large buses on a regular basis in Mount Prospect and suggested mini-buses.

Chen Has Service And Tasty Cuisine

By DAVE PALERMO

There's very little heart in business. It's a jungle. Survival of the fittest.

Wen Chen, 53, of 904 Hemlock Lane in Mount Prospect, got the notion about three months ago that he was going to do something for the community. He was going to open a Chinese restaurant with "friendliness, warmness, neatness, speed in service, and tasty, top-grade Oriental cuisine."

WEN CHEN

Chen, who purchased the Pagoda restaurant at the Golf Mill Shopping Center, figured if he made a few bucks with the place so much the better. But his primary concern was treating the customer "honestly, openly and speedily."

Most people find that hard to believe: The fact that a restaurateur isn't obsessed with profit, and merely wants to help people. Especially today.

BUT CHEN isn't a restaurateur. He wants to do something that perhaps isn't possible. He's trying to appeal to people's emotions. He wants the business to be successful through "community effort."

To understand Chen you have to talk to him. Ask him about his Christian background. Ask why he decided to go into the restuarant business.

Chen didn't really need the money. A mining engineer and manager of process development with Roberts and Schaefer, a Chicago firm, Chen was making a good enough income to help his daughter, Laura, a second year math student at Northwestern, with her college education.

His wife for 25 years as of last Wednesday, Jeanne, has a master's degree in music from the American Conservatory of Music, and instructs 40 piano and voice students.

"It was more or less an inspiration; there was a need for Chinese food in America," he explained. "I want to do something for the community."

CHEN, WHO LEFT China in 1945 and has never returned, says he "needs help from the community." That's not hard to understand for just about everybody opening a new business needs help in the form of patronage. But the way Chen puts it, he's not being selfish about it.

"I need a tremendous amount of help . . . moral support," he said, sitting in a corner table in the almost empty restaurant. I'm not exactly patronizing people. I'm just here to help the community . . . to give good food efficiently and so on.

"If they need the service, then I'm here to offer the service. An individual like myself may be lacking some . . . ah . . . strength I'd like this to be a group effort in which people in the community all join hands to get this idea materialized."

Chen's finding the restaurant business a difficult on. In fact, re admits he's losing money. He said he needs to take in $200 a day to afford the two chefs he employs and he's not.

THE MENU is a complete one, consisting almost entirely of Chinese dishes except for the old reliable hamburgr. There's egg foo young, 14 varieties of chop suey with rice, 13 varieties of chow mein with noodles, six varieties of fried rice and other dishes which give the taste buds an adventure.

Thre are about 15 tables in the restaurant, which employs about 10 people. There's also a bar which Chen hopes to open as a food counter if business picks up.

Chen said he read an article about four years ago that Chinese food consumption in the U. S. has gone up about 50 per cent each year. This is one of the primary reasons he felt the venture would be a successful one.

"If I would have known all I'd have to go through, I might not have done it," he said.

CHEN IS finding the going rough. The first day he opened for business he didn't have any cooks and the profits for the day consisted of $8.34 worth of cheeseburgers prepared at a nearby cafeteria.

The family all chips in to keep the place going. His son Milt, 17, who plans to attend either Harvard or Yale after graduating from Hersey High School, keeps the place moving nights.

His other daughter, Debbie, 8, keeps busy by folding napkins.

Arlington Rolls On To Finals

Arlington High School, behind John Brodnan's 29 points, charged into the championship game of the Arlington regional basketball tournament with a 64-54 semi-final victory over neighboring St. Viator last night.

The victory, achieved before a noisy, near-capacity crowd in the Arlington gym, gave George Zigman's Cardinals the right to take on another cross-town and Mid-Suburban League rival, Hersey, for the title tonight. The game, expected to attract a capacity crowd of about 4,000, will begin at 7:30.

Hersey and Arlington have already met twice this year, with the Cardinals winning both times — 55-45 at Hersey in the league opener early in December and 51-45 at Arlington last month.

THE DEFEAT eliminated St. Viator from the tourney and ended its season with 13 wins, 14 losses. The Lions had defeated Palatine, while Arlington had downed Mundelein in first-round games last Tuesday. Hersey defeated Fremd, 67-53, in the other semi-final game Wednesday night.

Arlington, which won the Mid-Suburban League crown this year with a 13-1 record, ran its over-all mark to 18-6 last night. In the process, the Cards gained revenge for a 59-45 loss to St. Viator in semi-final action in last year's regional at Palatine.

Brodnan, a 6-1 junior, dazzled the crowd and riddled St. Viator defenders with spectacular moves and drives and a fine touch from outside. Brodnan has been Arlington's highest scorer all season and was third in the Mid-Suburban League with a 19.7 average.

FORWARDS MIKE MANDELE and Jack Hult and center Bill Kieck helped the Cardinals' cause with strong rebounding and good shooting from in close. Arlington was able to penetrate well all the way, while St. Viator could not and had to rely on shots from much farther out.

Arlington led at halftime, 31-25. St. Viator managed to stay in the game with the rebounding of its 6-8 center, Dave Kaskie, and fine outside shooting by guard Terry Cullen (who led the Lions with 15 points) and Bob Rech, who had 10. Mike Pettenuzzo played a good all-around game and had 14 for St. Viator.

The Cardinals never trailed in the game, jumping to a quick 5-0 lead after a minute and 15 seconds. Guard Bill Heffernan hit a long shot with just seven seconds gone, Kieck followed with a short one and Mandele sank a free throw.

ST. VIATOR retaliated with baskets by Rech and Pettenuzzo, but Arlington stayed in command, moving to an 11-5 lead on two buckets from short range by Mandele and Brodnan's first basket, from the side.

Rech hit two more baskets after Kaskie scored on a fine move, but Mandele's eight first-quarter points, plus another goal from the side by Kieck, gave Arlington a 17-12 lead after a quarter.

St. Viator made one comeback move to start the second quarter, with two long shots by Kaskie and Rech and a Pettenuzzo free throw closing the margin to 19-17, with Hult keeping Arlington ahead with a rebound basket.

BUT ARLINGTON broke away from that two-point difference and expanded it to 27-17 after a bullseye from the top of the key by Hult and two long ones just 20 seconds apart by Brodnan.

A drive by Pettenuzzo was offset by Kieck's basket. St. Viator closed the gap to 29-25 on a jumper by Cullen, three free throws by Kaskie and one by Pettenuzzo. The first of Brodnan's beautiful drives with just two seconds left in the half gave Arlington a 31-25 lead at that juncture.

Brodnan exploded for 21 of his points in the second half, 10 in the third quarter when Arlington asserted its superiority by pulling away for the last time.

BRODNAN STARTED the hot streak with a pair of free throws and later in the period hot on two 15-footers and two more flashy drives. Ken Peters helped with a basket from long range. The Lions managed just six points in the third quarter and trailed 46-31 at its conclusion.

St. Viator, desperate to get the ball, tried a pressing defense in the fourth quarter, but to no avail. Arlington easily broke the press for easy layups to stay safely in front, despite Cullen's hot shooting from outside.

Connery Seeks Dist. 214 Post

JOE CONNERY, a man with 22 years experience in the Chicago school system has announced his intention to file petitions for candidacy for the Dist. 214 school board. Connery, an Arlington Heights resident, is presently principal of Chicago's Steinmetz high school.

An Arlington Heights resident with 22 years experience in the Chicago school system will soon file petitions for candidacy for the Dist. 214 school board.

Joseph J. Connery, 3030 N. Gibbons, said yesterday he will file petitions soon at the Dist. 214 offices and establish his candidacy for one of three seats open on the local high school board of education.

Connery, a resident of the village since 1956, is presently the principal of Steinmetz high school on Chicago's northwest side. He holds a doctorate degree in education and has held numerous posts in the Chicago school system.

From 1948-1952 Connery was a teacher in the Chicago public schools. He was awarded his masters degree in education from Loyola University in 1952 and in the same year was named assistant director of the Bureau of School Plant Planning and Population Surveys and was involved in the planning of a $80 million building program.

CONNERY HELD THAT position until 1955 when he was named the first principal of the Hess Upper Grade Center in Lawndale. the school had an enrollment of 2,800 students.

In 1960 Connery was named principal of Harlan High School, a post he served in until 1965 when he was appointed principal of Steinmetz.

In addition Connery served as principal of three summer school programs and vocational evening school programs.

Pointing to his years of experience with the Chicago school system, Connery feels he can bring an educator's professional expertise to the Dist. 214 board.

"I HAVE WORKED in many phases of education," he said, "and I think I can bring a real understanding of the problems of high schools to the board."

Connery identifies those problems as personnel matters, financing, and the particular needs of special education programs. He also feels he will bring practical knowledge of the schools to the board, although he emphasized he does not believe school board members should undermine the administrative powers of the district's professional staff.

Asked about the issue of smoking at Prospect High and other Dist. 214 schools, Connery's answer was short: "I don't allow smoking at Steinmetz high school," he said.

The candidate and his wife, Patricia, have seven children. Their oldest daughter, Carol, is a student at Marquette University. She is a graduate of Prospect High and three other Connery children are presently students there. Three other children are still in elementary school.

Bernholdt Is Named Promotion Director

Paul Bernholdt of 540 Edgewood Lane, Elk Grove Village, is activities promotion director for the Rotary International, it was announced recently.

His department promotes Interact, Rotaract, youth exchange program, and world community service.

Bernheldt has been with Rotary International, which is a worldwide service association, since 1966.

Little Cagers End Season

The Junior Basketball League, sponsored by the Palatine Park District and the YMCA held its consolation and championship games recently.

Of the teams, which have been competing for the last 10 weeks, only four survived the process of elimination and went on to compete for the championship.

The consolation game was played between the Pirates and the Wildcats, with the Wildcats coming out on top. Leading scorers for the Wildcats were Jim Sprinkle with 16 points, and Barry Christensen, with 10 points. High scorers for the Pirates were Mike Collins with 16 points and Marty Fenton with 11.

The championship game was a low-scoring defensive dual between the Panthers and the Warriors, who were victorious with a 28-24 score.

For the winners Sal Fioretti with 12 points and Tim Ganatos with 9 points led the scoring. The top scoring Panther was Ed Shortly with 10 points.

Trophies were awarded to both the first and second place team. The final standings for the park district-YMCA League are as follows: Pirates, 8 won and 2 lost; Warriors, 5 and 5; Bombers, 2 and 8; Rams, 1 and 9; Division II, 8 and 2; Panthers, 7 and 3; Bulls, 6 and 4; and Heavens Devils, 3 and 7

Youth Charged With Theft, Pot Possession

A 20-year-old Algonquin youth was charged with theft of merchandise and possession of marijuana by Mount Prospect police Wednesday.

Kenneth M. Grzesik, a McHenry County Junior College student, was charged with the theft of a $12 pair of men's pants from Wieboldt's department store at Randhurst Shopping Center following a complaint signed by a Wieboldt's security agent.

At the time of the arrest, Mount Prospect police found five marijuana cigarettes in Grzesik's possession and charged him with possession of marijuana.

Grzesik is scheduled to appear on both charges in Niles Court March 24

From the Library

Films Available

by LAURIE ROSSI

The Mount Prospect Public Library is still doing a great business with its 8mm films, and has been consistently adding to their collection to meet the demand and correlate with cardholders interests.

This winter, over a dozen were added to the already popular collection. Again, the subject matter of these new films covers a variety of tastes.

Included in the new group of films are "A Day at Disneyland," "Expo '67," "The Great Train Robbery," W. C. Fields in "The Barbershop," "World Without Sun," "Victory over the Luftwaffe," "The Nativity of our Lord," "Barnum and Ringling, Inc.," and many more.

The 8mm films may be taken out for two weeks at a time, and can be shown on any home movie projector for 8mm film. This feature makes them extra convenient for parties, family entertainment, or rainy days.

The Mount Prospect library is open weekdays 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., Saturdays 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., and Sundays 2 to 5 p.m.

'Sleepy Hollow' Set

"The Legend of Sleepy Hollow," a musical puppet show, will be presented by students at River Trails Junior High School, 1000 Wolf Road, Mount Prospect, Saturday, March 14, at 3 p.m.

Admission to the show is free.

'Viet-Rock' Comes Off Convincingly

by MURRAY DUBIN

They looked as if they were ready to picket something.

The hair, the headbands, the peace and love symbols made you think they beonged in Champaign-Urbana rather than on the stage of the Mill Run Playhouse rehearsing tomorrow's performance of "Viet-Rock."

But as casual as they appeared and as unconcerned as they acted, when the lights went on and the music began, the 17 people in the "Viet-Rock" cast fused into a cohesive performing unit.

The funny musical, called "a contemporary study of our war," combines macabre humor with uproarious overstatement and a sobering look at the blood and guts of war.

STICKING LIKE glue to the Vietnam war, the cast sings, dances, curses, praises and laughs about the conflict. Revolving before the audience's eye on the circular stage, the Loyola and Mundelein drama students play cowboys and Indians in the first act and American and South Vietnamese troops later on.

Particularly convincing in his performance as an Army sergeant was Bill Jaeger, a long-haired, thin actor who reminded you of every "you should a seen my sergeant" story you've ever heard.

The only lapse from the Vietnam theme was the rousing number "The Onion That Ate Chicago," but even that, with blind justice falling off her pedestal, had strains of Vietnam running through it.

The second act began more quietly than the first, with the opening number "Please God" chilling the attentive audience. But the razor-edged lines are only a minute away as the sergeant says, "Spill your blood, boobies! That's the highest form of love."

KRIS KUNZ, a leggy redhead who had "The Loner" stenciled to the back of her dungaree jacket, was great in the second act and through the entire show. Involved in the last three musical numbers of the show, she exemplified the enthusiasm and fervor that the entire cast brought to the theater with them.

The show's music will never rival that of "Hair," but it is adequate and Bubbles Lasowski and the Boys in the Band provide an effective background sound.

The performance, sponsored by the Northwest Suburban Peace Coalition, will begin at 8 p.m. and will feature Curtis MacDougall, a Democratic candidate for the 13th Congressional District race, speaking before the performance.

Nonpublic School Aid To Be Debated

Last month it was Con-Con.

Tomorrow, the Elementary and Secondary Nonpublic Schools Study Commission, headed by State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, comes to Arlington Heights.

The commission, exploring the explosive issue of state aid to parochial and private schools, will begin its hearings at 9:30 a.m. at the Arlington Park Towers, Wilke Road and Euclid Avenue in Arlington Heights.

Interest in the hearings reached such a pitch Wednesday that Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, announced that a second hearing will be held on March 20 in Hillside, in DuPage County.

That hearing is scheduled primarily for the benefit of those persons not living in the Northwest suburban area. Priority will also be given tomorrow to those who registered earliest to testify.

SCHLICKMAN SAID that anyone who wishes to testify before the commission will be permitted to do so.

A wide variety of persons have indicated that they wish to testify before the commission. The largest number of speakers that have signed up so far come from area Catholic boards and churches and parent-teacher groups.

Also, State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, reportedly is scheduled to testify.

Speakers scheduled to attend include state representatives Edward Copeland, Chicago, and John Matijevich, North Chicago.

Other scheduled speakers include O. A. Candelaria, an Arlington Heights resident and superintendent of Maple School Dist. 30 in Northbrook, and Ronald Brandt, president of the St. Paul Lutheran church board in Mount Prospect.

THE ISSUE OF state aid to nonpublic schools, perhaps the most controversial to face Illinois legislators and educators today, faces both the Illinois legislature and the Constitutional Convention.

Attempts were made during the last session of the legislature to change the state aid formula. Meanwhile, Con-Con is mulling over changing the constitution's powers in regard to aid to nonpublic education.

An indication of the significance of the issue is that Catholic schools held an open house last weekend to dramatize the fact that Catholic education is quality education.

Also, the Catholic weekly, the New World, issued a one-page reprint of the positions on the issue taken by Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie and Lt. Gov. Paul Simon. Both men have supported some form of state aid to nonpublic schools.

As Catholic schools suffer economic problems, the pressures for state aid increase. What the Schlickman commission must consider, in listening to the 30 or so persons that will speak Saturday, is not only whether state aid is desirable, but also if it is desirable, how much and in what form should it be extended.

Officer 'Fishes' Cash Out of 'Grand' Puddle

Money isn't everything, unless you don't have any

And the Sanitary Plumbing Co., of Chicago might have been out about $1,000 Monday, if Mount Prospect Det. Richard Pascoe didn't find a white business envelope which had fallen in a rain puddle behind a Mount Prospect apartment building

The envelope, which Pascoe found while investigating a case in the apartment building at 1105 Cottonwood St., was addressed to the Uptown National Bank of Chicago and contained about $1,000 in checks to be deposited in the Sanitary Plumbing Co.'s bank account.

The bookkeeper for the plumbing company, who lives at 1105 Cottonwood, told police he apparently dropped the envelope in the parking lot earlier Monday. Police released the checks to the bookkeeper.

Observe World Day of Prayer

Mrs. William Glab of the Lutheran Church of the Holy Spirit will represent Elk Grove Village today at 1 p.m. at a world day of prayer observance in Hoffman Estates.

The observance is a joint service by several area churches at our Saviour's United Methodist Church 611 E. Golf Road.

World day of prayer is sponsored by the Church Women United and will be celebrated in 25,000 communities in the United States.

Shadow Looming

by EDITH FREUND

Abbie Hoffman came to Mount Prospect Feb. 23, stood behind Sheriff Joe Woods and laughed.

The trial was nothing. It was a cesspool of words, grinding itself out in newspapers, television stations, in the courtroom and around it. They were talking to themselves after the first two or three weeks, those attorneys, newsmen and involved spectators.

We were busy getting ready for Christmas in the suburbs, and except for a backhand thought about the jurors' Christmas, we gave it little attention.

The purpose of Abbie Hoffman and his friends was to make fools of government. The purpose of the government was to make a fool, better yet a criminal, of Abbie Hoffman and Co. It was their thing and we let them stew in the juice of their own discontent while we held joy to the world.

Nobody won.

AT LEAST, NOT until Joe Woods came to town last week. Until Feb. 23, they were all fools together, and they were over there. Some place else. They didn't affect you and me here in the quiet suburb of Mount Prospect as we took our trains in the morning, went to church with a Bible in our hand or shopped for our groceries.

To understand the entire situation it is necessary to understand about Joe Woods as somebody in Prosepct Heights understands him. To compare Woods to Don Quioxote would insult that earnest gentleman. But Woods is inclined to rush off to tilt with law and order windmills in Indiana, while the folks in Prospect Heights can never find a policeman when they want one.

Sheriff Woods and Abbie Hoffman in the same jail must be marvelous, no matter what their respective positions there might be. It must be the same as trying to store gasoline next to a lighted match. Wherever they are together, whatever their point of view, we would have an explosion out of all proportion to the elements originally involved.

THE TRIAL, the riots, the screaming protests, are all events that move to their natural conclusions. It is their shadow that comes to us here, looming larger and less easy to fight than the event as it takes place.

Are they communists, these Abbie Hoffmans? Joe Woods says so. But Communism is an ideology that can be argued with, that can be offset by our own better way of life. How do we offset the stylized temper tantrums of grown-up children? Any mother can give the answer, but nobody will listen now because the time is past for that answer.

The purpose of the agitators is to agitate, to cause such confusion and unpleasantness that the people of the land will cry out for rigid controls. And those great thinkers of government, the Joe Woods of this world, will answer with restrictive, reactionary controls.

Then the same people, fickle and unthinking, will rise up and throw off the oppressive rules and with it the government we have today. Ridiculous? No. Remember prohibition? The same people who voted for it, drank bathtub gin, laughed at the law, allowed the growth of gangsterism and voted, finally, for the law's repeal.

THE PURPOSE of Abbie Hoffman is to provoke rigid governmental reaction in order to overthrow that very government someday with the help of the same people who now cheer and applaud his haircut. He and his friends can't do it alone. They need us and the Elk Grove Republicans

For sometime in the future we could have such rigid governmental laws regarding haircuts, the Bible we carry and the train we are allowed to take into the city that even these phlegmatic Elk Grove Republicans might object The same haircut given Hoffman might seem different when applied to Carl Hansen.

Abbie Hoffman with his tousled, itchy hair and four-letter words on his forehead is his business. Unfortunately, the government made it their business. Although we tried to ignore it, Joe Woods brought it to town and made it our business.

It's true that the business of government only seems oppressive when somebody else is the government. But those of us with imagination can foresee a time when the government might be somebody else.

And that's why Abbie Hoffman was standing there that Monday night, like a ghost of Christmas yet to come, laughing.

Brooks: Academy Is Success

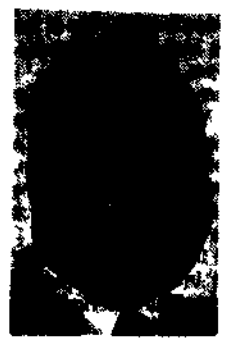
by TOM JACHIMIEC

Clyde Brooks said recently he considered the Sidewalk Academy a success.

Brooks is president of Educational Laboratories, sponsor of the academy, a series of controversial speaking engagements that concluded last week at Forest View High School in Arlington Heights.

"I've has many letters of congratulations and phone calls that indicated the program was a success. People considered it healthy," he said.

"There were statements of disagreement of what was said, but these are healthy," said Brooks, a resident of Elk Grove Village.



Clyde Brooks

AMONG THE SPEAKERS who appeared in the five weeks of talks were: Reverend George Riddick of Operation Breadbasket, Dr. Charles Hurst, president of Malcolm X College, Bobby Rush of the Black Panthers, the Rev. Francis Lawlor of the Southwest Associated Block Clubs, Renault Robinson, president of the Afro-Patrolman's League, Leonard Weinglass, a lawyer for the Conspiracy 7, Matthew Bonds, president of an African-American History group, and the Rev. Rollins Lambert, of St. Dorothy's Catholic Church in Chicago.

All of the speakers have appeared on television talk shows, Brooks said.

Brooks asserted that one of the functions of the academy was to provide information on some of the pressing issues of the day.

"It was simply an honest attempt to provide information," Brooks said, adding, "I personally disagreed with some of the things some of the speakers said."

ONE CRITICISM THAT has been voiced at the academy series was that it did not provide conservative speakers.

"We tried," said Brooks, "but conservatives are more bashful and shy than liberals."

He said all of the speakers were not liberals. Rev. Lambert and Bonds, were moderates while Rev. Lawlor was a conservative, he said.

Brooks said it did not appear likely another Sidewalk Academy would be held in the Northwest Suburbs but that one may be held in other parts of the state.

"Educational Laboratories is state-wide, not just for Northwest Cook County," he said.

EXPLAINING THE purpose of the five-month-old organization, he said it rested primarily in curriculum development and human relations.

He said he plans to continue to work with schools for the improvement in the teaching of black history, in addition to improving relations between the races.

"I like to think of Educational Laboratories as an educational ministry," Brooks concluded.

Workers May Boycott Nurseries in Spring

A boycott of area nurseries is being planned by the Latin American Community Organization (LACO), according to Louis Archbold, a member of Neighbors at Work (NAW) Inc., in Elk Grove Village.

He said some nurseries which do not provide adequate housing and decent wages for their workers will be boycotted this spring. He did not name any nurseries.

Merry Men Won't Wait

If Palatine youngsters show up at community park this Saturday to catch the bus for the Goodman Theater to see "Robin Hood," they'll be a little late.

The Herald goofed by reporting the wrong time for the park district's trip to the children's play. Instead of 2 p.m., the bus will leave Palatine at 10:30 a.m.

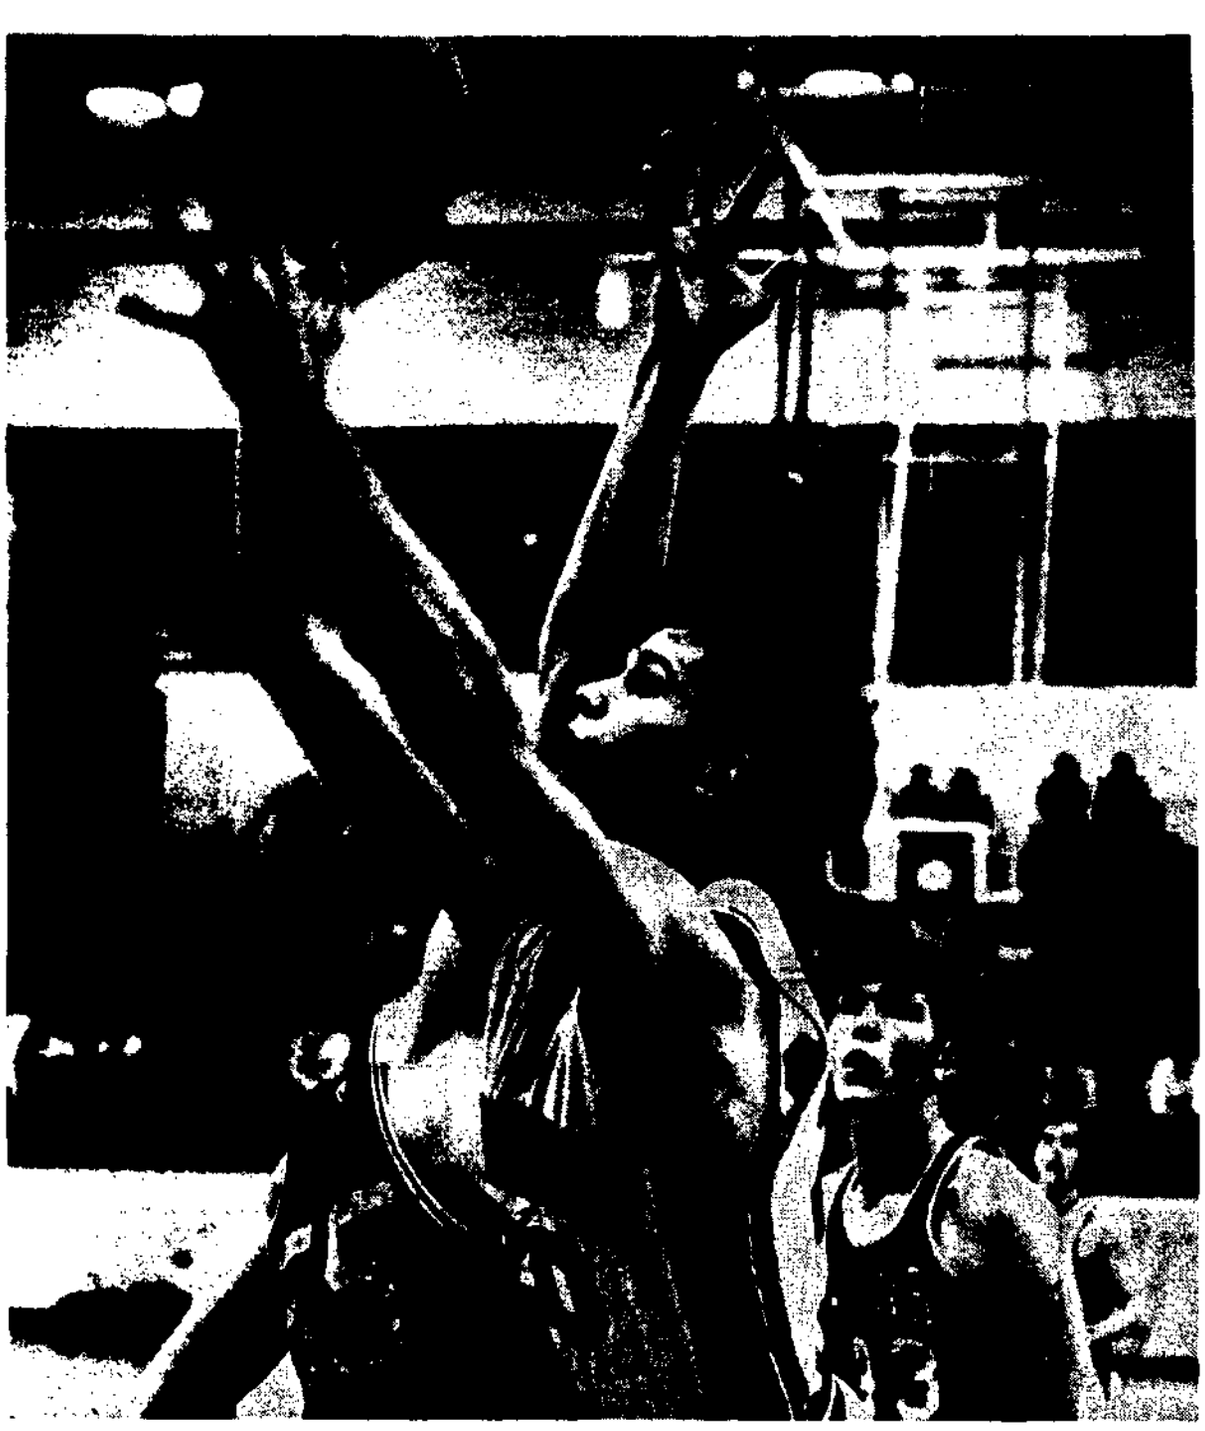
MONEY AND/? Mrs. Virginia Brodnan, a local teller at the First National Bank, has been concerned with more than your money lately. Her son, John, is one of the stars of the Arlington High basketball team that played St. Viator last night in the final round of the Regional Basketball Tournament. For her devotion to the team, Mrs. Brodnan gets two points and a free throw.



TWO MORE. Arlington's high-scoring junior guard John Brodnan drives past St. Viator's Dave Kaskie (55) for two of his 29 points Thursday evening in the Cardinals' 64-54 semi-final victory. Brodnan scored 21 of his points in the second half as Arlington advanced into the regional title game.

REGIONAL ROUNDUP

Arlington High School, behind John Brodnan's 29 points, charged into the championship game of the Arlington regional basketball tournament with a 64-54 semi-final victory over neighboring St. Viator last night.

The victory, achieved before a noisy, near-capacity crowd in the Arlington gym, gave George Zigman's Cardinals the right to take on another cross-town and Mid-Suburban League rival, Hersey, for the title tonight. The game, expected to attract a capacity crowd of about 4,000, will begin at 7:30.

Hersey and Arlington have already met twice this year, with the Cardinals winning both times — 55-45 at Hersey in the league opener early in December and 51-45 at Arlington last month.

THE DEFEAT eliminated St. Viator from the tourney and ended its season with 13 wins, 14 losses. The Lions had defeated Palatine, while Arlington had downed Mundelein in first-round games last Tuesday. Hersey defeated Fremd, 67-53, in the other semi-final game Wednesday night.

Arlington, which won the Mid-Suburban League crown this year with a 13-1 record, ran its over-all mark to 18-6 last night. In the process, the Cards gained revenge for a 59-45 loss to St. Viator in semi-final action in last year's regional at Palatine.

Brodnan, a 6-1 junior, dazzled the crowd and riddled St. Viator defenders with spectacular moves and drives and a fine touch from outside. Brodnan has been Arlington's highest scorer all season and was third in the Mid-Suburban League with a 19.7 average.

FORWARDS MIKE MANDELE and Jack Hult and center Bill Kieck helped the Cardinals' cause with strong rebounding and good shooting from in close. Arlington was able to penetrate well all the way, while St. Viator could not and had to rely on shots from much farther out.

Arlington led at halftime, 31-25. St. Viator managed to stay in the game with the rebounding of its 6-5 center, Dave Kaskie, and fine outside shooting by guard Terry Cullen (who led the Lions with 15 points) and Bob Rech, who had 10. Mike Pettenuzzo played a good all-around game and had 14 for St. Viator.

The Cardinals never trailed in the game, jumping to a quick 5-0 lead after a minute and 15 seconds. Guard Bill Heffernan hit a long shot with just seven seconds gone, Kieck followed with a short one and Mandele sank a free throw.

ST. VIATOR retaliated with baskets by Rech and Pettenuzzo, but Arlington stayed in command, moving to an 11-5 lead on two buckets from short range by Mandele and Brodnan's first basket, from the side.

Rech hit two more baskets after Kaskie scored on a fine move, but Mandele's eight first-quarter points, plus another goal from the side by Kieck, gave Arlington a 17-12 lead after a quarter.

St. Viator made one comeback move to start the second quarter, with two long shots by Kaskie and Rech and a Pettenuzzo free throw closing the margin to 19-17, with Hult keeping Arlington ahead with a rebound basket.

BUT ARLINGTON broke away from that two-point difference and expanded it to 27-17 after a bullseye from the top of the key by Hult and two long ones just 20 seconds apart by Brodnan.

A drive by Pettenuzzo was offset by Kieck's basket. St. Viator closed the gap to 29-25 on a jumper by Cullen, three free throws by Kaskie and one by Pettenuzzo. The first of Brodnan's beautiful drives with just two seconds left in the half gave Arlington a 31-25 lead at that juncture.

Brodnan exploded for 21 of his points in the second half, 10 in the third quarter when Arlington asserted its superiority by pulling away for the last time.

BRODNAN STARTED the hot streak with a pair of free throws and later in the period hot on two 15-footers and two more flashy drives. Ken Peters helped with a basket from long range. The Lions managed just six points in the third quarter and trailed 46-31 at its conclusion.

St. Viator, desperate to get the ball, tried a pressing defense in the fourth quarter, but to no avail. Arlington easily broke the press for easy layups to stay safely in front, despite Cullen's hot shooting from outside.

'She's Alive Thanks To Him'

"As everyone else was sitting around, he was doing what he should have done to save someone's life. My wife wouldn't be alive today if it weren't for him," the man said.

He pulled Mrs George Bachar from the car and administered mouth-to-mouth resuscitation to her breathless body.

"IT WAS THROUGH his work that she's alive," said Mr. Bachar who is at home recuperating from injuries he sustained in the accident. The Bachars live at 1112 N. Highland, Arlington Heights.

Bachar said that he and his wife recently found out Gorman's name during a court hearing on the accident. A state policeman obtained Gorman's name and gave Gorman credit for his quick action.

Gorman credit for his quick action.

Connery To Seek 214 Post

An Arlington Heights resident with 22 years experience in the Chicago school system will soon file petitions for candidacy for the Dist. 214 school board.

Joseph J. Connery, 3030 N. Gibbons, said yesterday he will file petitions soon at the Dist. 214 offices and establish his candidacy for one of three seats open on the local high school board of education.

Connery, a resident of the village since 1956, is presently the principal of Steinmetz high school on Chicago's northwest side. He holds a doctorate degree in education and has held numerous posts in the Chicago school system.

From 1948-1952 Connery was a teacher in the Chicago public schools. He was awarded his masters degree in education from Loyola University in 1952 and in the same year was named assistant director of the Bureau of School Plant Planning and Population Surveys and was involved in the planning of a $50 million building program.

CONNERY HELD THAT position until 1955 when he was named the first principal of the Hess Upper Grade Center in Lawndale. the school had an enrollment of 2,800 students.

In 1960 Connery was named principal of Harlan High School, a post he served in until 1965 when he was appointed principal of Steinmetz.

In addition Connery served as principal of three summer school programs and vocational evening school programs.

Pointing to his years of experience with the Chicago school system, Connery feels he can bring an educator's professional expertise to the Dist. 214 board.

"I HAVE WORKED in many phases of education," he said, "and I think I can bring a real understanding of the problems of high schools to the board."

Connery identifies those problems as personnel matters, financing, and the particular needs of special education programs. He also feels he will bring practical knowledge of the schools to the board, although he emphasized he does not believe school board members should undermine the administrative powers of the district's professional staff.

Asked about the issue of smoking at Prospect High and other Dist. 214 schools, Connery's answer was short: "I don't allow smoking at Steinmetz high school," he said.

The candidate and his wife, Patricia, have seven children. Their oldest daughter, Carol, is a student at Marquette University. She is a graduate of Prospect High and three other Connery children are presently students there. Three other children are still in elementary school.

Inoculation Program Is Eyed

A mass immunization program to inoculate 50,000 Northwest suburban children, aged 5 through 10, against Rubella (German measles) may take place in mid-April.

Northwest Community Hospital officials met with representatives from 11 public school districts and spokesmen from Catholic and Lutheran schools in the area for a preliminary planning session last night.

The primary reason for the program is to reduce or eliminate the risk of expectant mothers contracting the disease.

Dr. A. Y. DeRamos told the group that women that have German measles in early pregnancy run a high risk of having babies with blindness, brain damage, deafness or heart defects.

OUTBREAKS OF German measles have run in cycles and the next cycle may take place this year, Dr. DeRamos said.

Pregnant women cannot be inoculated themselves as doctors do not know the effect of the vaccine on unborn infants.

Cost for the inoculation to parents will be $2. The amount, higher than the actual cost of the injection, will help defray expenses for families who are unable to pay.

Burton Chotiner, assistant administrator of Northwest Community Hospital, said that the tentative dates selected for the inoculation program are April 14 through April 20.

School administrators asked if expectant mothers could catch German measles from a child who received the vaccine. Dr. DeRamos passed out a letter from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare stating that the risk is insignificant.

DR. DeRAMOS SAID the risk, if any, would be much smaller than the possibility of women catching the disease from a child who had the illness.

The physician also pointed out that he knew of no undesirable side effects from the vaccine.

School districts committed to the program last night include Arlington Heights Dist. 25; Mount Prospect Dist. 57; Elk Grove Village Dist. 59; Prospect Heights Dist. 23; Wheeling Dist. 21; Rolling Meadows-Palatine Dist. 15 and River Trails Dist. 26.

Districts 15 and 59 as well as Schaumburg Dist. 54 and Barrington Hills Dist. 1 are highly committed to the program but said they would like further details before a final commitment.

Letters will be sent to parents outlining the program, explaining the ramifications of the disease and which children, because of allergies, should not take part in the program.

Area Youths Among 25 Arrested At U. of I.

Two Arlington Heights students were among the 25 arrested March 2 at Champaign-Urbana campus of the University of Illinois.

Mark Allen Wright, a freshman who lives at 1241 N. Walnut Avenue and Robert Edward Issacson, a senior who lives at 12 N. Kaspar were arrested after protesting the recruting of General Electric on the campus.

Teen Movie Makers Tell It Like It Is

by DAVE PALERMO

A handful of college and high school students in Mount Prospect have come upon a unique way of expressing their beliefs.

They aren't marching in the street, holding sit-ins or demonstrating in any way. In fact, few people are even aware of what they are doing.

They're making movies.

Youths using the visual medium for getting across ideas isn't new to the area. It's been going on for about five or six years.

What they do is take an 8 or 16 mm camera and a couple of amateur actors and go out and tell it like it is.

Paul Schreivogel, 39, 928 Greenfield Court, Mount Prospect, is the "high priest" of the movie makers and lectures on the subject at Harper College.

He for one likes the idea that young people are using films as a medium to express their beliefs and values.

"THE KIDS ARE THERE but you don't see them," he explained. "They're participating in a creative process all their own.

"It's exciting because it's new. It's the first new art form in the technological age . . . the first new art form in the past 5,000 years."

Schreivogel, who said filmmaking began coming into its own as an art form in the late 1950s, believes that young people are using films as a revolt against a "literate society." A society that ineffectively uses words to express beliefs.

"The kids have been raised in a literate society . . . a society in which everything is written down," he explained. "Words are only fronts for ideas. Words themselves have no literary meaning.

"Kids see that these definitions are no longer valid. they see values differently."

WHAT THE YOUTHS are saying through their films is what they've been painting on protest posters, printing in underground newspapers, or generally what they've been thinking about in the last decade.

Cinematically, the films are well done — due partly to technological advances in cameras. the camera work is innovative as well as the quality of the acting and film.

But what's most important, Schreivogel contends, is not the technical quality of the films, but the creativeness of the students.

Dave Amling, 101 W. Memory Lane, Mount Prospect, is a sophomore at Columbia College in Chicago. He also has been making movies since he was a student at Prospect High School.

A FREQUENT VISITOR at the Schreivogel home, Amling ran off a film he made while he was a high school senior.

The film, titled "Scarborough Fair," was done in remarkably clear color and his use of camera angles and double-exposures was impressive.

Shot in a countryside, the film includes four characters, three men and a woman.

There was no sound except a musical recording by Simon and Garfunkel and the Jefferson Airplanes. But the idea Amling was trying to get across was unique. As Schreivogel mentioned, "there was more Dave Amling in that film than any other he's done."

What the young filmakers are doing is riding on a crest of a revolution in movies that can be seen at area theaters.

Instead of movies serving as a form of entertainment, the flicks are dealing with realism. Films like Easy Rider, The Graduate and Bonnie and Clyde, to name a few, are putting across messages.

SCHREIVOGEL CONTENDS that the time when people go to movies to see the stars is over. "The hell with John Wayne and Rock Hudson. People are waiting for Catch-22 to come out. They could give a damn who the stars are."

The transition of traditionally entertaining movies into an art form which may soon be equated with literature, drama and painting, is recognized by high schools throughout the country.

Area high schools which will be offering film study courses next fall include Arlington Heights, Elk Grove, Hersey, Forest View and Wheeling. Prospect High School will be offering a film study program as part of the art curriculum.

Jim Wicklund, head of the English department at Arlington Heights High School, is one of the men most responsible for bringing the art of films into the high school.

"Movies are becoming more and more serious and less entertaining," said Wicklund, a close friend of Schreivogel. "Visual communication is more often used than nonvisual communication."

BOTH WICKLUND and Schreivogel feel that films are better understood by the youths than the adults.

"Lief is an instant drama and the youths communicate this in films," said Schreivogel. "The world is a kaleidoscope. There's no story line, no beginning or end, no high point or low point."

"The adults resented the Graduate, but the kids had a more valid view of the film," said Wicklund. "In Bonnie and Clyde the kids caught the metaphor."

The use of sex in films, both at the theaters and in underground films, is often misunderstood by the older generation agreed Wicklund and Schreivogel.

Wicklund told a story of a student-made film which included a scene consisting of a boy undressing a girl. The film was first shown to students and then a second time to a group of adults.

"The adults kept talking about the nude scene while the students didn't even mention the scene," he said.

"THE X RATED movies are supported by the adults," said Scheivogel. "Adults are hung up on sex, kids aren't."

The movie magazine SEE, commenting on the use of sex in youth-made movies, said "In film, especially in student film, there is a tendency for most films produced to concern themselves with nakedness — a physical and spiritual undressing . . . what is shown is not so much those who "people" the film as much as the pile of clothes those people discarded."

Wicklund maintained that the film study programs in school will not deal as much with making films as helping the students "develop a creative eye."

Schreivogel, comparing films with literature, said telling a student to make a film would be like "telling an English student to write a novel. They're two entirely different things," He said movies young people are making are too far advanced for public viewing; that television and motion picture shows are geared towards the masses, and that the majority of the public would not accept the films.

"You have to first raise the awareness level of the viewing audience. They might see truth and they don't want to see truth."

HIGH PRIEST of the movie-makers, Paul Schreivogel, 928 Greenfield Court, Mount Prospect, is pleased that young people in the area are using the film medium to express themselves. "It's exciting because it's new," he explained. "It's the first new art form in the technological age . . . the first really new art form in the past 5,000 years."

Assessments Are Explained

After complicated special assessment procedures were explained, a group of residents left last night's Arlington Heights Board of Local Improvements (BOLI) meeting better informed, but no happier.

The proposed project to pave Rockwell Street from Mitchell east to Evergreen would include the installation of a 21 foot street, with curbs and gutters.

About 20 residents who will be assessed for the project appeared at the meeting to voice a mild protest. The houses in the area do not face on Rockwell.

Since the project includes lot sides as well as fronts, the cost of the improvement is assessed against owners whose property lies along Rockwell and property owners for one-half block north and south of Rockwell.

The residents didn't like the idea, but accepted that it was BOLI's policy to handle sideage lots in this manner.

The estimated cost for the project is about $38,000 and, spread out among the 120 homeowners to be assessed, would cost each property owner slightly more than $300.

BOLI passed an ordinance to start the special assessment proceedings on the project. The ordinance must now go to the village board for final approval, before the project can continue through legal steps.

With no complications, the street may be paved this year.

Martin Voise, 721 S. Vail, resigned to the fate of the action said, "It's just that sometimes it's a little disconcerting to be confronted with this when you pay taxes for so many years, and it doesn't seem to help."

18 To Testify at Hearing

The names of 18 persons who will testify before the Elementary and Secondary Nonpublic Schools Study Commission Saturday in Arlington Heights were announced recently.

The announcement came from the Commission's administrative offices in Chicago. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, is chairman of the committee.

Of the 18 persons, 13 represent organizations. The remainder will be speaking as individuals. The commission's hearings will begin at the Arlington Park Towers, Wilke and Euclid Street, at 9:30 a.m.

THE SPEAKERS INCLUDE O. A. Candelaria, an Arlington Heights resident and superintendent of Maple School Dist. 30 in Northbrook, and two state representatives, Edward J. Copeland of Chicago and John S Matijevich of North Chicago.

Also, Mrs. Marie E. Prime of the Catholic Women's Club at St. Raymond's parish in Mount Prospect; Joseph Stucker, representing the St. Zachary parish in Des Plaines, and Ronald Brandt, president of the St Paul Lutheran School board in Mount Prospect, will testify.

Also, Paul McCabe of the St. Stephens school board (Des Plaines); Marvin O. Garlich, superintendent of Lincolnwood Dist. 74 and representing the Niles Township Superintendent's Association, and William Welch, representing the City Coalition for Public Schools (Wheaton), will testify.

John Connelley, president of the Immaculate Conception school board (Elmhurst), will also testify. Parent-teacher groups will be represented by Mrs. Jan Taylor (Plum Grove School PTA); Mrs. Joseph Meyer (Carl Sandburg PTA, Rolling Meadows); and Mrs. Dorothy J. Fisk (Northwest Suburban Council of PTAs, Rolling Meadows).

THE FIVE INDIVIDUALS from the Northwest suburban area include Edward A. Zuchowski (Park Ridge), Mrs. Marilyn Ankcorn (Rolling Meadows), Mr. Martha Loss (Palatine), Robert Burns (Mount Prospect) and James A. Parks (Park Ridge).

Two students will be present to represent St. Viator High School in Arlington Heights and Sacred Heart of Mary High School in Rolling Meadows.

Testimony is not limited to persons in the Northwest suburban area, or even the Chicago area. Persons wishing to testify should submit their names to the commission's administrative offices, 173 West Madison St., Chicago 60602, prior to the Saturday hearings.

The hearings, which are expected to focus attention on the Northwest suburban area and on the politically explosive issue of state aid to nonpublic schools, are open to the public. Two more hearings will be held — March 20 in Moline and April 3 at Southern Illinois University at Carbondale.

'Viet-Rock' Comes Off Convincingly

by MURRAY DUBIN

They looked as if they were ready to picket something.

The hair, the headbands, the peace and love symbols made you think they belonged in Champaign-Urbana rather than on the stage of the Mill Run Playhouse rehearsing tomorrow's performance of "Viet-Rock."

But as casual as they appeared and as unconcerned as they acted, when the lights went on and the music began, the 17 people in the "Viet-Rock" cast fused into a cohesive performing unit.

The funny musical, called "a contemporary study of our war," combines macabre humor with uproarious overstatement and a sobering look at the blood and guts of war.

STICKING LIKE glue to the Vietnam war, the cast sings, dances, curses, praises and laughs about the conflict. Revolving before the audience's eye on the circular stage, the Loyola and Mundelein drama students play cowboys and Indians in the first act and American and South Vietnamese troops later on.

Particularly convincing in his performance as an Army sergeant was Bill Jaeger, a long-haired, thin actor who reminded you of every "you should a seen my sergeant" story you've ever heard.

The only lapse from the Vietnam theme was the rousing number "The Onion That Ate Chicago," but even that, with blind justice falling off her pedestal, had strains of Vietnam running through it.

The second act began more quietly than the first, with the opening number "Please God" chilling the attentive audience But the razor-edged lines are only a minute away as the sergeant says, "Spill your blood, boobies! That's the highest form of love."

KRIS KUNZ, a leggy redhead who had "The Loner" stenciled to the back of her dungaree jacket, was great in the second act and through the entire show. Involved in the last three musical numbers of the show, she exemplified the enthusiasm and fervor that the entire cast brought to the theater with them.

The show's music will never rival that of "Hair," but it is adequate and Bubbles Lasowski and the Boys in the Band provide an effective background sound.

The performance, sponsored by the Northwest Suburban Peace Coalition, will begin at 8 p.m. and will feature Curtis MacDougall, a Democratic candidate for the 13th Congressional District race, speaking before the performance.

Brooks: Academy Is Success

by TOM JACHIMIEC

Clyde Brooks said recently he considered the Sidewalk Academy a success.

Brooks is president of Educational Laboratories, sponsor of the academy, a series of controversial speaking engagements that concluded last week at Forest View High School in Arlington Heights.

"I've has many letters of congratulations and phone calls that indicated the program was a success. People considered it healthy," he said.

"There were statements of disagreement of what was said, but these are healthy," said Brooks, a resident of Elk Grove Village.

AMONG THE SPEAKERS who appeared in the five weeks of talks were: Reverend George Riddick of Operation Breadbasket, Dr. Charles Hurst, president of Malcolm X College, Bobby Rush of the Black Panthers, the Rev. Francis Lawlor of the Southwest Associated Block Clubs, Renault Robinson, president of the Afro-Patrolman's League, Leonard Weinglass, a lawyer for the Conspiracy 7, Matthew Bonds, president of an African-American History group, and the Rev. Rollins Lambert, of St. Dorothy's Catholic Church in Chicago.

Clyde Brooks

All of the speakers have appeared on television talk shows, Brooks said.

Brooks asserted that one of the functions of the academy was to provide information on some of the pressing issues of the day.

"It was simply an honest attempt to provide information," Brooks said, adding, "I personally disagreed with some of the things some of the speakers said."

ONE CRITICISM THAT has been voiced at the academy series was that it did not provide conservative speakers.

"We tried," said Brooks, "but conservatives are more bashful and shy than liberals."

He said all of the speakers were not liberals. Rev. Lambert and Bonds, were moderates while Rev. Lawlor was a conservative, he said.

Brooks said it did not appear likely another Sidewalk Academy would be held in the Northwest Suburbs but that one may be held in other parts of the state.

"Educational Laboratories is state-wide, not just for Northwest Cook County," he said.

EXPLAINING THE purpose of the five-month-old organization, he said it rested primarily in curriculum development and human relations.

He said he plans to continue to work with schools for the improvement in the teaching of black history, in addition to improving relations between the races.

"I like to think of Educational Laboratories as an educational ministry," Brooks concluded.

He's New Trooper

Graduation ceremonies for an Arlington Heights resident and 57 other state police cadets were held last week at the State Fairgrounds in Springfield.

Gregory F. Fritz from Arlingtn Heights was a member of the 46th group of state troopers to graduate from the 28-year-old police academy. The new troopers reported to their first assignments on Monday and boost the total state police manpower to 1603 officers.

Plan 3 High-Rise Buildings

Architect's plans for high-rise apartments on he Arlington Park property now call for an initial construction of three 20-story buildings.

George Yarbenet, vice president of Transnation Development Corp. which owns and operates Arlington Park, met with the firm's architect yesterday. Yarbenet said that each apartment building will have 10 units per floor, with a grand total of 600 units in the complex. Construction cost is estimated at about $8 million for the apartments, described as medium to luxury in type.

The apartments will be located in Arlington Heights near Rohlwing Road where a golf driving range is presently in operation. The range will be discontinued when construction begins.

A $8 MILLION shopping center will be constructed on the southwest corner of Euclid Street and Wilke Road in Rolling Meadows. The Shell service station on the northwest corner will remain intact and the golf course, which lies between the station and the Arlington Park Towers hotel will stay "a long time," according to Yarbenet.

The shopping center is expected to house a department store, drug store, food market and small satellite stores. Transnation officials plan to appear before Arlington Heights and Rolling Meadows officials within the next two months.

Plans for the complex were unveiled at a press conference Wednesday by Philip J. Levin, Transnation board chairman. Levin said the race track operations would remain at Arlington Park and that while a domed sports arena was not feasible for 1970, he did not rule out the chances for an arena in the future.

Nonpublic School Aid To Be Debated

Last month it was Con-Con.

Tomorrow, the Elementary and Secondary Nonpublic Schools Study Commission, headed by State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, comes to Arlington Heights.

The commission, exploring the explosive issue of state aid to parochial and private schools, will begin its hearings at 9:30 a.m. at the Arlington Park Towers, Wilke Road and Euclid Avenue in Arlington Heights

Interest in the hearings reached such a pitch Wednesday that Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, announced that a second hearing will be held on March 20 in Hillside, in DuPage County.

That hearing is scheduled primarily for the benefit of those persons not living in the Northwest suburban area. Priority will also be given tomorrow to those who registered earliest to testify.

SCHLICKMAN SAID that anyone who wishes to testify before the commission will be permitted to do so.

A wide variety of persons have indicated that they wish to testify before the commission. The largest number of speakers that have signed up so far come from area Catholic boards and churches and parent-teacher groups.

Also, State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, reportedly is scheduled to testify.

Speakers scheduled to attend include state representatives Edward Copeland, Chicago, and John Matijevich, North Chicago.

Other scheduled speakers include O. A. Candelaria, an Arlington Heights resident and superintendent of Maple School Dist. 30 in Northbrook, and Ronald Brandt, president of the St. Paul Lutheran church board in Mount Prospect.

THE ISSUE OF state aid to nonpublic schools, perhaps the most controversial to face Illinois legislators and educators today, faces both the Illinois legislature and the Constitutional Convention.

Attempts were made during the last session of the legislature to change the state aid formula Meanwhile, Con-Con is mulling over changing the constitution's powers in regard to aid to nonpublic education.

An indication of the significance of the issue is that Catholic schools held an open house last weekend to dramatize the fact that Catholic education is quality education.

Also, the Catholic weekly, the New World, issued a one-page reprint of the positions on the issue taken by Gov. Richard B Ogilvie and Lt. Gov. Paul Simon. Both men have supported some form of state aid to nonpublic schools.

As Catholic schools suffer economic problems, the pressures for state aid increase. What the Schlickman commission must consider, in listening to the 30 or so persons that will speak Saturday, is not only whether state aid is desirable, but also if it is desirable, how much and in what form should it be extended.

Forum Slated To Air Candidates' Opinions

Deciding how to vote in local elections can sometimes be a problem.

The Wheeling Women's Club is sponsoring a candidates' forum Tuesday night to help local residents get to know the candidates running in various upcoming races.

Candidates who have filed for the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist 21 School Board, The Wheeling Public Library District Board, the High School Dist. 214 Board and the Harper Junior College Board have been invited to the forum by the Women's Club

The forum will be held at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the library of Jack London Junior High School, on Dundee Road in Wheeling

Demos Slate Primary Rally

Democratic candidates, who are bidding for state and local offices in the November general election, will convene in Mount Prospect March 10 to attend one of the party's biggest pre-primary rallies scheduled in the Northwest suburban area

The rally, sponsored by the Elk Grove Township Democratic Organization, will be held in the American Machinists Hall at Dempster Street and Mount Prospect Road beginning at 7 p.m.

And the guest list reads like a list of Who's Who in the Democratic Party in Illinois.

Although all of the Democratic candidates are slated to run unopposed in the March 17 primary, the rally will launch the Democrats' campaign to win the support and votes of residents in the November election.

Adlai Stevenson, candidate for the U. S. Senate, and Edward Warman of Skokie, candidate for Congress in the 13th Dist., are scheduled to attend Tuesday's rally.

OTHER DEMOCRATIC candidates who will participate in the political pow-wow include Paul Shanyfelt of Elk Grove Village, who is seeking the office of stat senator from the 3rd Dist.; Michael Bakalis, candidate for Illinois superintendent of Public Instruction; George Dunn of Chicago, the incumbent casdidate for presicago, the incumbent candidate for presisioners

Michael Bakalis

Ray Krier of Skokie, candidate for state central committeeman from the 13th Congressional District, and Chester Chesney, who will run unopposed for reelection as Elk Grove Township Democratic committeeman.

Chesney of Mount Prospect, a former Illinois congressman, will introduce the candidates at Tuesday's rally. "We think our March 10 rally will be the greatest political event of the pre-primary season in the Northwest suburbs for either party," he said

"The Democratic party expects to gather more votes in the Northwest suburban area this November than ever before These could be the votes that will mean victory in some offices," Chesney said.

On Dean's List At Iowa State

Five area students have been named to the fall quarter dean's list at Iowa State University at Ames.

They include Jean E. Milburn of 742 S. Beverly Lane, Arlington Heights, an applied art-interior design major; David J. Schimpf, a botany major of 416 W. Fairview St., Arlington Heights; and Brian E Campbell of 270 Ida Road, Hoffman Estates, an electrical engineering major.

Also, Melinda S. Breit, an elementary education major, of 2035 Frost, Palatine; and David S. Derezotes of 2405 Meadow Drive, Rolling Meadows, Majoring in aerospace engineering.
